Mission Statement: The Alliance seeks to optimize the preparedness of behavioral health providers working to enhance the resilience, recovery and reintegration of Service members, Veterans, and their Family members and communities throughout the military, post-military, and family life cycles.

Current Research

This study examined whether reductions in parent distress and improved functioning are mediated by improvements in family functioning. The study drew upon the implementation of the Families Overcoming Under Stress (FOCUS) Family Resilience Program at 14 active-duty military installations across the United States. The FOCUS program is a brief intervention designed to build on family strengths and enhance family resilience by bridging communication, developing effective parenting and family collaborative skills, and supporting the family's ability to flexibly respond to stress, trauma, and change while maintaining core functioning and care routines. This program consists of a sequence of 8–12 sessions that start with the parents, move to working with the children, and then culminate in three family sessions. The goal was to better understand the ways in which parental distress reverberates across military family systems and determine the pathways of program impact on parental distress. The findings indicated that families with more distressed military parents were more likely to sustain participation in the program, and reductions in distress among both military and civilian parents were facilitated by improvements in resilient family processes. The authors suggest that these findings are consistent with family systemic and resilience models and provide support to preventive interventions designed to enhance family resiliency processes as an important part of comprehensive services for distressed military families.

Opportunity to Support Military Spouse Behavioral Health Professionals

Military spouses struggle to enter the mental health profession due to frequent moves and other lifestyle challenges. Give an Hour and the National Military Family Association, with the support of United Health Foundation, have teamed up to help ease spouses’ transitions from graduate school through licensure to jobs in behavioral health. Their goal is to alleviate the national shortage of providers, and enhance the wellness of service members, veterans, and military families. Spouses can register for the Military Spouse Mental Health Profession Network and participate in the mentorship/supervisory component of the program. Those already established in the field can also help by offering to supervise or mentor a military spouse on his or her way to becoming a mental health professional. Live Webinar Training: Prolonged Exposure Therapy

A half day webinar training titled, Prolonged Exposure Therapy: Putting Techniques into Practice, is being offered by Center for Deployment Psychology from 1-5pm EST on April 4, 2017. The webinar will review key theoretical concepts used in the development of Prolonged Exposure Therapy for PTSD and present more recent work that extends the understanding of exposure as a mechanism of change. The trainer will describe specific problems encountered during in vivo and imaginal exposure, and suggest therapeutic responses designed to improve patient response and reduce symptoms. Learning objectives for the webinar include: 1) identifying several key psychological processes underlying exposure-based therapy; 2. translating theoretical concepts underlying exposure therapy into patient friendly language; 3. describing strategies to address poor or unexpected treatment response to in vivo exposure exercises; and 4.) identifying strategies to address engagement during imaginal exposure exercises. Free continuing education (CE) credits are available for the webinar. For CE questions, contact Bridget Schaub at bschaub@pesi.com. For registration questions, contact Ms. Kris Hannah at khannah@deploymentpsych.org. To register for the webinar, click here.

Webinar: Literature Review on Resilience in the Military

A pre-recorded one and a half hour webinar titled, Literature Review on Resilience in the Military, is being offered by the Defense Center on Excellence. The webinar will focus on defining resilience in high-stress occupations, as well as predictors of, and effects on resilience. The webinar will also cover pre-deployment training informed by this evidence. At the conclusion of the webinar, participants will be able to: 1) define the distinct elements of resilience; 2) describe how adverse conditions affect resilience; and 3) narrate the potential benefits of resilience in high-stress occupations. Presentation slides, a podcast of the webinar, and a transcript of the presentation are available here.

Non-A Appropriated Fund (NAF) Positions

NAF employment is considered federal employment. However, the monies used to pay the salaries of NAF employees come from a different source. Civil service positions are paid for by money appropriated by Congress. NAF money, on the other hand, is self-generated by activities and services that use NAF employees. Visit the following links to apply for NAF positions.

Non-Federal Job Opportunities

The federal government also uses contractors to provide behavioral health services to Service members and others. The government contracts with private contracting companies, who will then hire the individual providers to provide the necessary services. Several contractors known to hire behavioral health providers are listed below, along with links to websites that list job opportunities for providers.
