

Violence and Gender

Call for Papers on Mental Health, Guns, and Gun Violence

Deadline for manuscript submission:
November 22, 2016

In light of recent events involving guns and gun violence, Violence and Gender is seeking high quality research on the topic of mental health, guns, and gun violence to be published in early 2017. The issue will provide a broad overview of the current state of affairs on a national and international scale.

The journal will consider Research Articles, Reviews, Perspectives, and Commentaries on the on the following topics:

Firearms and violence:

- Comparing and contrasting the use of firearms and other weapons in terror attacks
- Role of firearms at public protests
- Racial, ethnic, and gender-based violence & firearms
- Gender differences in use of firearms
- Mental health and guns: What we need to now
- What mental illness diagnosis poses the greatest risks for gun violence?
- Politics, gun violence and mental health: What policies should be considered and what policies should be implemented to prevent further violence?
- Legal mandates and policy recommendations and firearms
- Role of firearms in mass homicide
- International research on gun violence and mental health
- America's fascination with guns and violence
- Is the crime landscape changing, and what is the role of firearms?

Deadline for manuscript submission November 22, 2016

Advantages of publishing in Violence and Gender include:

- Rapid, high-quality peer review
- Maximum exposure: accessible in 170 countries worldwide
- Open access options available

For manuscript submission guidelines and further information about the Journal, please visit the Violence and Gender website.

SUBMIT TODAY

EMAIL TO A COLLEAGUE