From Sports Equity to Full Equality in Education:
Title IX and Campus Sexual Assault

Date: Wednesday, June 10, 2015
Time: 11:00 AM - 12:30 PM Central Time

Presenter: Wendy Murphy, J.D.

Description: This webinar will provide an overview of the history of title IX and how it came to be widely understood as applicable to the problem of campus sexual assault. It will also provide information about recent changes in the law, and current policies and procedures now in place at most campuses, along with strategies for ensuring maximum legal protection for the civil rights of victims who experience gender-based harassment and violence in connection with education.

Questions? Contact BWJP at technicalassistance@bwjp.org.

Click Here to Register

************************************************************

'Beyond Safety' - Findings from UK's Project Mirabal
Across Six New Measures of Success

Date: Thursday, June 25, 2015

Time: 2:30 PM - 4:00 PM Central Time

Presenter: Dr. Nicole Westmarland Professor of Criminology in the School of Applied Social Sciences, Durham University United Kingdom.
Description: In this presentation Nicole Westmarland of Durham University describes how Project Mirabal, a multi-site longitudinal study of domestic violence perpetrator programs in the UK, consulted widely with relevant stakeholders to develop six new measures of success. These measures of success were then operationalized through the research. Results were striking in relation to reductions in physical and sexual violence. Reductions were also found in relation to coercion, control, and harassment although not to the same extent. Findings around children, fathering, communication, and self-awareness are also discussed.

Questions? Contact BWJP at technicalassistance@bwjp.org.

Click Here to Register

*****************************************************

Trauma-Informed Practice Scales for Domestic Violence Programs

Date: Monday, June 29, 2015
Time: 1:00 PM - 2:30 PM Central Time

Presenters: Cris M. Sullivan, Ph.D. is Professor of Ecological/Community Psychology and Director of the Research Consortium on Gender-based Violence at Michigan State University (MSU), Lisa A. Goodman, Ph.D. is a Professor in the Department of Counseling and Applied Developmental Psychology at Boston College, Rachel Ramirez, MA, MSW, LISW-S is the Training and Technical Assistance Specialist of the Ohio Domestic Violence Network, and Deb Heimel is Director of Operations at REACH in Waltham, MA.

Description: In this webinar, faculty will describe the development of a new tool that DV programs can use to evaluate and improve their work. The TIP Scales assess six domains of trauma informed practice, including Environment of Agency and Mutual Respect, Access to Information on Trauma, Opportunities for Connection, and Emphasis on Strengths, Cultural Responsiveness, and Inclusivity and Support for Parenting.
Rachel Ramirez will be talking about how dozens of Ohio's domestic violence programs are using the TIP scales to establish baseline measures to the extent to which program participants experience programs as trauma-informed. The TIP Scales have been an invaluable tool to launch a broader initiative aimed at identifying what we are doing well, what we need to do better, and how to ensure that we are providing the most effective, empowering, and helpful services possible to survivors, while also demonstrating to funders and others our incorporation of trauma-informed approaches in practice.”

Questions? Contact BWJP at technicalassistance@bwjp.org.

Click Here to Register