Reporting on human trafficking manual published by OSCE, Moscow University, Russian Union of Journalists

The university taught a year-long course at its journalism faculty on reporting human trafficking issues beginning in the spring semester of 2012. The course allowed students to better understand the complexity of reporting on human trafficking cases, and included lectures and master classes by international and national experts.

"I am very pleased with the results of our collaboration," OSCE Special Representative and Co-ordinator for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings, Maria Grazia Giammarinaro said. "I hope the manual and other educational tools will be used for many years to come by generations of journalists."

"This significant project marks the first time that a Russian-language educational manual has been developed by a journalism faculty in close collaboration with the community of professional journalists, including investigative reporters, and integrated into a university curriculum," Nadezhda Azhgikhina, Executive Secretary at the Russian Union of Journalists said.

Get more knowledge:

Related Information:
Russian Union of Journalists, OSCE Manual on Reporting on Human Trafficking

###