Committee on Armed Services
United States Senate

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Section 1631(d) of Public Law (P.L.) 111-383, the Ike Skelton National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for Fiscal Year (FY) 2011, requires the Secretary of Defense to submit to the Committees on Armed Services reports of sexual assaults provided by the Military Departments, along with analysis.

The enclosed "Department of Defense Fiscal Year 2013 Annual Report on Sexual Assault in the Military" presents Department of Defense (DoD) statistics and analysis of reports of sexual assault during FY 2013 and discusses policy and program improvements to the Department's Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) program. The numerical data and statistics contained in this report are drawn from metrics identified in the Department's evaluation plan, which fulfills additional reporting requirements outlined in P.L. 111-383 and P.L. 112-239.

This report is organized according to the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan, which presents a multidisciplinary approach with initiatives and objectives in five lines of effort to achieve unity of effort and purpose across the Department. The lines of effort are Prevention, Investigation, Accountability, Advocacy/Victim Assistance, and Assessment.

During FY 2013, the Department focused on improving victim response and support services. In FY 2014, the Department will intensify our efforts to prevent the crime and will implement the "2014-2016 DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy." A successful prevention strategy addresses the entire continuum of harm and includes a wide range of integrated elements addressing accountability, community involvement, communication, deterrence, incentives, and harm reduction.

A similar letter and the Department's report will be sent to the Chairman of the House Committee on Armed Services. The Department appreciates your commitment to the well-being of our Service members and we look forward to working with you and your colleagues on this important issue.

Sincerely,

Jessica L. Wright

ASSESSMENT OF PROGRESS

Each year, the Department of Defense (DoD) reports on sexual assault programs, initiatives, and policy enhancements developed and implemented during the prior fiscal year (FY). The Department also documents information about sexual assault reports made by and against Service members, as well as the disposition (outcomes) of allegations made in Unrestricted Reports. The following is a brief synopsis of last year's key finds compared to this year's key findings.

LAST YEAR'S KEY FINDINGS – FY 2012 (OCTOBER 1, 2011 THROUGH SEPTEMBER 30, 2012)

- Reports of Sexual Assault
  - Reports of sexual assault increased in three of four Military Services. In total, the DoD received 3,374 reports of sexual assault involving one or more Service members as either the victim or alleged subject (suspect) – a five percent increase over the 3,192 reports of received in FY11.
    - Of the 3,374 reports, about 60 percent involved Service member on Service member crime.
    - The 3,374 reports involved 2,828 Service member victims making a report for an incident that occurred while they were in military service.<sup>1</sup> (Figure 1)
  - Of the 3,374 reports in FY12, 2,558 were Unrestricted Reports and 816 remained Restricted at the end of the year.
  - Approximately four percent of the 3,374 reports of sexual assault were for sexual assault incidents that occurred prior to a member's military service.
- Estimated Past-Year Prevalence of Sexual Assault
  - Of those surveyed, 6.1 percent of Active Duty women and 1.2 percent of Active Duty men indicated experiencing unwanted sexual contact<sup>2</sup> (USC) in the 12 months prior to being surveyed.<sup>3</sup> These prevalence rates indicate that approximately 26,000 Active Duty members experienced some form of USC in the year prior to being surveyed.

<sup>1</sup> A total of 2,949 Service member victims were actually involved in the 3,374 reports, but 121 of the victims made reports for events that occurred to them before they entered military service; an additional 655 civilian victims reported sexual assault allegations against a Service member. Civilian victim reports that involve a Service member as the alleged offender are fully investigated, but are not included in this analysis so as to better provide an understanding of the victimization of Service members.

<sup>2</sup> USC is the survey term that describes the crimes in the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) that constitute sexual assault, which range from penetrating crimes, such as rape, to non-penetrating crimes, such as abusive sexual contact. USC involves intentional sexual contact that was against a person's will or occurred when the person did not or could not consent. The term describes completed and attempted oral, anal, and vaginal penetration with any body part or object, and the unwanted touching of genitalia and other sexually related areas of the body.

<sup>3</sup> The Department uses the Workplace and Gender Relations Survey of Active Duty Members (WGRA) to estimate the past-year prevalence of sexual assault (USC) among Active Duty Service members. The Defense Manpower Data Center (DMDC) has administered the WGRA on a regular basis since 1995.

- Of the 6.1 percent of Active Duty women surveyed who indicated experiencing USC: 31 percent reported a completed penetration, 26 percent reported attempted penetration, 32 percent reported unwanted sexual touching, and 10 percent did not specify the USC experienced.
- Of the 1.2 percent of Active Duty men surveyed who indicated experiencing USC: 10 percent reported a completed penetration, 5 percent reported attempted penetration, 51 percent reported unwanted sexual touching, and 34 percent did not specify the USC experienced.
- Command Action
  - Of the 2,661 subjects with case dispositions reported in FY12, the Department had legal authority<sup>4</sup> over 1,714 (64 percent) of them.
  - Of the 1,714 Service member cases considered by convening authorities, sufficient evidence existed to take some kind of action against 1,124 of them (66 percent). This action could have been for a sexual assault crime or any other misconduct identified during the criminal investigation. (Figure 2)
  - Of the 880 subjects who received action on a sexual assault offense (Figure 3):
    - 68 percent had court-martial charges preferred (initiated)
    - 18 percent were entered into nonjudicial punishment proceedings under Article 15, Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ)
    - 15 percent received an adverse administrative action or discharge

THIS YEAR'S KEY FINDINGS – FY 2013 (OCTOBER 1, 2012 THROUGH SEPTEMBER 30, 2013)

- Reports of Sexual Assault
  - Reports of alleged sexual assault increased in all four Military Services. In total, the DoD received 5,061 reports of alleged sexual assault involving one or more Service members as either the victim or alleged subject (suspect) – a 50 percent increase over the 3,374 reports of received in FY12.
    - Of the 5,061 reports, about 54 percent involved Service member on Service member crime.
    - The 5,061 reports involved 4,113 Service member victims making a report for an incident that occurred while they were in military service.<sup>5</sup> (Figure 1)
  - Of the 5,061 reports in FY13, 3,768 were Unrestricted Reports and 1,293 remained Restricted at the end of the year.
  - Approximately 10 percent of the 5,061 reports of sexual assault were for sexual assault incidents that occurred prior to a member's military service.

<sup>4</sup> Legal authority for the Department is limited to Service members who are subject to the UCMJ and, therefore, its military justice jurisdiction. Except in rare circumstances, a civilian is not subject to the UCMJ for the purpose of court-martial jurisdiction or other military justice discipline.

<sup>5</sup> A total of 4,605 Service member victims were actually involved in the 5,061 reports, but 492 of the victims made reports for events that occurred to them before they entered military service; an additional 913 civilian victims reported being sexually assaulted by a Service member. Civilian victim reports that involve a Service member as the alleged offender are fully investigated, but are not included in this analysis so as to better provide an understanding of the victimization of Service members.

- Estimated Past-Year Prevalence of Sexual Assault
  - No USC rate is available, as no survey was conducted during this fiscal year. A survey is being fielded in 2014 to update past-year prevalence rates of USC and sexual harassment.<sup>6</sup>
- Command Action
  - Of the 3,234 subjects with case dispositions reported in FY13, the Department had legal authority over 2,149 (66 percent) of them.
  - Of the 2,149 Service member cases considered by convening authorities for action, sufficient evidence existed to take some kind of action against 1,569 of them (73 percent). This action could have been for a sexual assault crime or any other misconduct identified during the criminal investigation. (Figure 2)
  - Of the 1,187 subjects who received action on a sexual assault offense (Figure 3):
    - 71 percent had court-martial charges preferred (initiated)
    - 18 percent were entered into nonjudicial punishment proceedings under Article 15, UCMJ
    - 12 percent received an adverse administrative action or discharge

SUMMARY

The Department assesses the unprecedented increase in reports received in FY13 as consistent with a growing level of confidence in the DoD response system. This year, a record number of victims sought assistance and care by making a report. Since 2006, the average annual increase in reports of sexual assault has been approximately five percent. In FY13, reports of sexual assault increased by 50 percent from FY12. Given the relatively unchanged rates of unwanted sexual contact since 2006 (between four percent and seven percent for women and between one percent and two percent for men), it is unlikely the increase in reports this year is due to increased crime.

Scheduled for release in April 2015, the 2014 Workplace and Gender Relations Survey of Active Duty Members (WGRA) will update rates of past-year prevalence of USC.

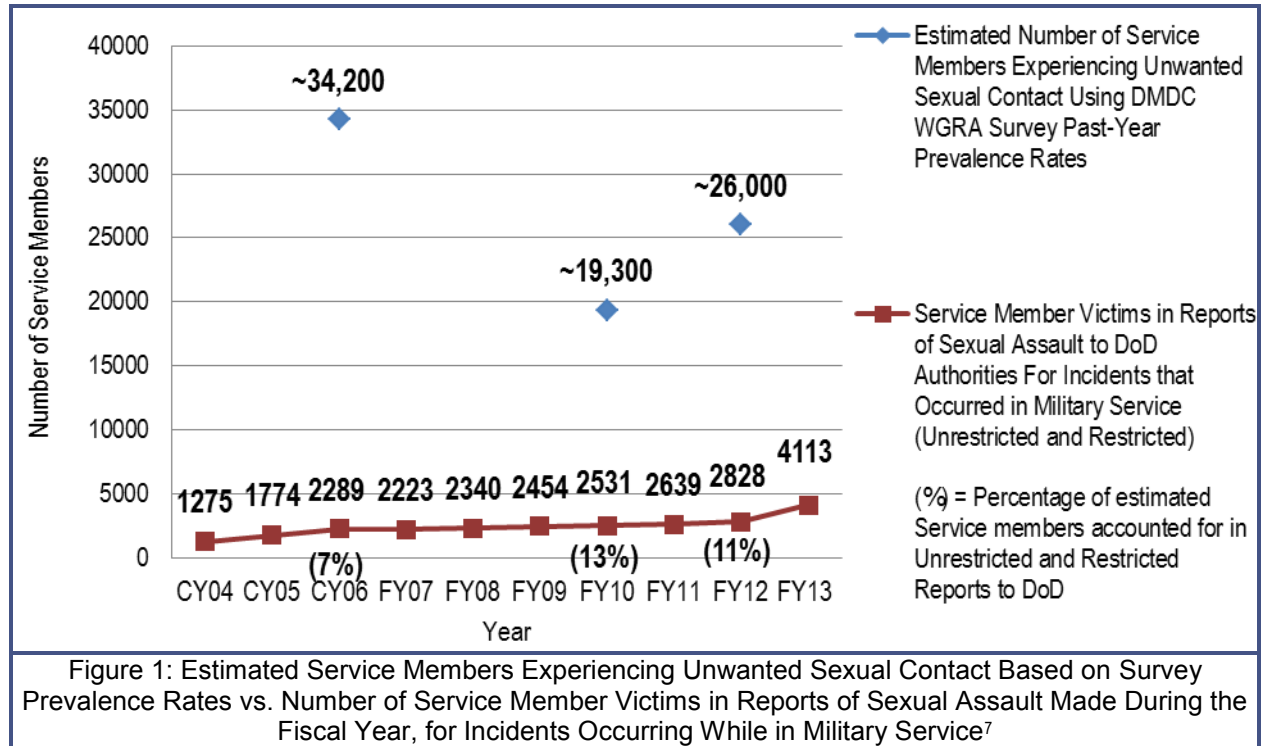

Provisions enacted in FY13, such as the special victims' advocacy program, will further support victim participation in the military justice system.

Despite improvements in reporting, sexual assault remains a persistent problem. The Department is committed to ensuring that the needs of the victims are addressed while ensuring the interest of justice is served. While holding offenders appropriately accountable sends a strong deterrence message to those that might commit the crime, further progress in reducing the prevalence of sexual assault can only come through prevention. During FY14, the Department will intensify our efforts to prevent the crime and will implement a coordinated, DoD-wide prevention strategy designed to reduce the occurrence of sexual assault. The Department will also continue to provide victims advocacy and support services to help victims along their path of recovery. In addition, the Department will continue implementing and improving a comprehensive and multi-disciplinary Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) program that inspires reporting, provides a high quality response system, and holds offenders appropriately accountable.

<sup>6</sup> The WGRA is conducted every two years by the Secretary of Defense, as required by 10 USC section 481. In 2013, the Secretary directed that the 2014 WGRA be conducted by an agency external to the Department. Results of the 2014 WGRA will be reported in the FY14 Annual Report, to be released in April 2015.

<sup>7</sup> This graph depicts the estimated number of Service members who experienced USC in the past year (based on the WGRA's year prior to being surveyed prevalence rates), versus the number of Service member victims in actual reports of sexual assault made to the DoD in the years indicated. Note that although 4,605 Service members were involved in sexual assault reports in FY13, 492 of them made a report for events that occurred prior to their entry into military service.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Sexual Assault is a crime that is not tolerated, condoned, or ignored in the DoD. It is one of the most serious challenges facing our military. The Department worked aggressively during FY13 to implement a multi-disciplinary approach while impressing upon every Service member their individual role in combatting and responding to the crime. In 2005, the Department established the SAPR program to promote prevention, encourage increased reporting of the crime, and improve response capabilities for victims. The DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office (SAPRO) is responsible for the policy that supports the SAPR program and oversight activities that ensure its effectiveness as provided for in Department of Defense Instruction (DoDI) 6495.02.

Federal law requires the Department to provide Congress with an annual report on sexual assaults involving members of the Armed Forces. This report satisfies the requirement, which is in section 1602 of the Ike Skelton National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for Fiscal Year (FY) 2011 (Public Law [P.L.] 111-383) and calls upon the Secretary of Defense to develop and implement an evaluation plan for assessing the effectiveness of the DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) program.<sup>8</sup> The report presents the Department's programmatic activities and policy enhancements and also provides an analysis of reports of sexual assault made during FY13 (October 1, 2012, through September 30, 2013). Enclosed within this report are supplementary reports from the Secretaries of the Military Departments and the Chief of the National Guard Bureau (NGB).

DoD SAPRO organizes and reports Department progress in the SAPR program using the five lines of effort from the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan, revised<sup>9</sup> and published in April 2013. In May 2013, the Secretary of Defense formally directed the implementation of the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The DoD SAPR Strategic Plan presents a multidisciplinary approach with initiatives and objectives in five lines of effort to achieve unity of effort and purpose across the Department. The lines of effort are Prevention, Investigation, Accountability, Advocacy/Victim Assistance, and Assessment. A summary of accomplishments under each line of effort follows:

- Prevention. The objective of the Prevention line of effort is to deliver consistent and effective prevention methods and programs that reduce, with a goal to eliminate, the occurrence of sexual assault. The desired end state is a culture wherein all elements of the military community work together to preclude and negate the opportunity for sexual assault. During FY13, the Department developed and began executing a campaign plan to update prior DoD prevention work and create a new 2014-2016 DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy. Throughout the year, the Military Services and the NGB conducted SAPR stand-downs to focus all Service members and civilian employees on SAPR principles and to review credentials, qualifications, and refresher training for victim-sensitive personnel positions. Common SAPR training enhancements were developed collaboratively for implementation throughout the Services. The Military Services also conducted visual inspections of workplaces to eliminate materials that might create a degrading or offensive work environment. In addition, the Services revised performance evaluations for commanders to incorporate an evaluation of their role in establishing command climates of dignity and respect. SAPR program questions were added to the DoD climate surveys so that commanders can assess and take action on factors within their units to enhance prevention and victim support (see Assessment, below). All SAPR initiatives lay a foundation for the advancement of a culture of sexual assault prevention. Given the complex nature of the problem, coordinated action is occurring across all levels of military society.

- Investigation. The objective of the Investigation line of effort is to achieve high competence in the investigation of sexual assault. The end state is where investigative resources yield timely and accurate results. On average, it took about 109 days (or almost four months) to conduct a sexual assault investigation in FY13. During FY13, DoD SAPRO worked with the Services to establish a Special Victim Capability. The Special Victim Capability delivers a distinct, recognizable group of professionals who collaborate to provide effective, timely, and responsive worldwide victim support, and a capability to investigate and prosecute special victim offenses. Additionally, the DoD Inspector General (IG) completed two evaluations. The first was on the Military Criminal Investigation Organizations' (MCIO) initial and annual sexual assault investigation training. The second evaluation was on the investigative sufficiency of completed sexual assault investigations. In conclusion, these enhanced capabilities equip DoD's fact finders with the knowledge and skills to conduct investigations that minimize the risk of re-traumatization and support victims' desire to stay engaged in the military justice process.
- Accountability. Achieving high competence in holding offenders appropriately accountable is the objective of the Accountability line of effort, while the end state is where perpetrators are held appropriately accountable. Victim participation and engagement throughout the entire military justice process is critical to holding offenders appropriately accountable. Providing legal advice and representation to sexual assault victims give victims confidence that they will be treated fairly as they navigate the criminal justice process. During FY13, the Air Force established a Special Victims' Counsel (SVC) pilot program, which provided Airmen and other eligible persons who reported they were a victim of sexual assault the opportunity to be assigned a military attorney, called a Special Victims' Counsel, at Air Force expense. Due to the overwhelmingly positive feedback from victims involved in the pilot program, the Secretary of Defense directed the Secretaries of the Military Departments to establish a special victims' advocacy program to provide legal advice and representation to victims throughout the military justice process.<sup>10</sup> Based on the results of a review of Article 60 of the UCMJ that he directed, the Secretary of Defense recommended to Congress that military law be changed so that a convening authority would no longer have the authority to set aside a conviction for major offenses, such as sexual assault except in limited circumstances. The Department also worked in FY13 to provide information to the Response Systems to Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel in support of its independent assessment of the systems used to investigate, prosecute, and adjudicate crimes involving adult sexual assault and related offenses under the UCMJ.

- Advocacy/Victim Assistance. The objective of the Advocacy/Victim Assistance line of effort is to deliver consistent and effective victim support, response, and reporting options. The end state is to provide high quality services and support to instill confidence and trust, strengthen resilience, and inspire victims to report. During FY13, the Department implemented numerous advocacy and victim assistance programs, initiatives, and policy enhancements.

To expand victim rights, the Secretary of Defense directed the General Counsel to develop a method to incorporate the rights afforded to victims through the Crime Victims' Rights Act into military justice practice.<sup>11</sup> The General Counsel was also directed to develop language that will amend the Manual for Courts-Martial to provide victims of crime the opportunity to provide input to the post-trial action phase of courts-martial. The Department also implemented policy for the extended retention of Department of Defense (DD) Forms 2910 and 2911 in cases of Restricted Reports, when requested by the victim.

To enhance victim protections, the Secretary of Defense directed the Secretaries of Military Departments to develop and implement policy allowing the administrative reassignment or transfer of a Service member who is accused of committing a sexual offense based on credible report.<sup>12</sup> Furthermore, the Director of National Intelligence issued new security clearance guidance that is intended to de-stigmatize mental health counseling used by sexual assault victims in their recovery. The Secretary of Defense also directed the Military Departments to improve overall victim care and trust in the chain of command, to increase reporting, and to reduce the possibility of ostracizing victims. To do this, the Military Departments will implement and monitor methods in forthcoming years to improve victim treatment by their peers, co-workers, and chains of command. Victim input will be solicited in the development of these methods.

<sup>10</sup> Special Victims' Counsel/Victims' Legal Counsel program full operating capability was established in each Service in January 2014.

<sup>11</sup> During FY14, the Department is implementing section 1701 of the FY14 NDAA, which mandates crime victims' rights be incorporated into military law. Article 6b of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) now sets forth basic rights of crime victims. This new provision of the UCMJ was enacted by Congress on December 26, 2013.

<sup>12</sup> DoDI 6495.02, Enclosure 5, 5.b.(11), "SAPR Program Procedures," Incorporating Change 1, February 12, 2014. Available at: <http://www.sapr.mil/index.php/dod-policy/directives-and-instructions>.

To improve and expand victim advocacy services, the Department completed the fielding of the DoD Sexual Assault Advocate Certification Program (D-SAACP), developed an advanced training course for D-SAACP-certified sexual assault response coordinators (SARC) and SAPR victim advocates (VA), and developed standardized core competencies and learning objectives for SARCs and SAPR VAs. The Department also sustained and expanded DoD Safe Helpline services, continued collaborating with civilian community victim advocates, and continued to provide training for recovery care coordinators.

- Assessment. The objective of the fifth line of effort is to effectively standardize, measure, analyze, and assess program progress. The end state is where the Department incorporates responsive, meaningful, and accurate systems of measurement and evaluation into every aspect of the SAPR program. Each year, the Department integrates data from sexual assault reports, scientifically conducted surveys, and other research to provide a fully transparent view of DoD SAPR program progress. During FY13, the Department implemented the requirement from section 572 of the NDAA for FY13 requirement that the commander of each military command, within 120 days of assuming command and at least annually thereafter while retaining command, conduct a climate survey for purposes of preventing and responding to sexual assaults in their unit. To enhance commander accountability and improve oversight into command climate, the Secretary of Defense mandated these climate surveys be provided to the next level up in the chain of command (within 30 days of receiving these results).

The Defense Sexual Assault Incident Database (DSAID), the centralized, case-level database for the collection and maintenance of information regarding sexual assaults involving a member of the Armed Forces, became fully operational during FY13 with the integration of all Services either entering data manually or electronically interfacing with an existing Service system. DoD SAPRO continued to enhance and refine DSAID to establish it as the system of record for future annual reports.

The Department also developed a set of metrics that more frequently measure SAPR program progress.<sup>13</sup> Throughout FY13, the Joint Chiefs, the Military Services, and DoD SAPRO worked to develop an initial set of metrics and harmonize surveys and other sources of data that support the metrics. An initial set of six metrics was tracked throughout the year.

Throughout FY13, all levels of Department leadership focused on increasing victim trust and confidence in the SAPR response system. This work reflects an understanding that commanders and leaders create the climate in which victims choose to report. They facilitate the reporting of sexual assaults by gaining victims' confidence in the response system when they understand the problem of sexual assault and work to support a unit climate of dignity and respect.

During FY13, there were 5,061 reports<sup>14</sup> of sexual assault<sup>15</sup> (see Figure 4, below). This figure represents an increase of 50 percent over FY12 numbers. The average annual increase in reports of sexual assault has been approximately five percent since the first full year of Restricted Reporting in 2006, as compared to a 50 percent increase in reporting between FY12 and FY13. Of the 3,768 Unrestricted Reports, 56 percent of the matters investigated by the MCIOs involved an initial allegation of a penetrating offense (rape, sexual assault, and nonconsensual sodomy).

In addition, there was a substantial increase in the number of reports made by victims for incidents they experienced prior to joining the military. In FY13, about 10 percent of the 5,061 reports of sexual assault received from Service members were for sexual assaults that occurred to them prior to entering military service. In past years' reporting, that figure has never exceeded four percent. The vast majority of alleged perpetrators in these reports are outside the jurisdiction of military law. The Department believes these reports reflect an increased level of confidence in the DoD response system and a sign that victims trust the Department to treat and support them in their recovery.

<sup>14</sup> Each report consists of an official report documented by a SARC and/or a MCIO of an adult sexual assault that falls under UCMJ articles defining rape, sexual assault, aggravated sexual contact, abusive sexual contact, nonconsensual sodomy, and attempts of these crimes.

<sup>15</sup> Sexual assault is an underreported crime. This means the number of sexual assaults estimated to occur each year vastly outnumber reports made to DoD authorities. While sexual assault remains underreported, the Department views increased reporting of the crime as beneficial for victims. Research shows that victims that report sexual assault engage care at higher rates than victims that do not report. In addition, victim reporting is a means by which alleged offenders may be held appropriately accountable.

There is no indication that the spike in reporting reflects an increase in crime. Past-year rates of unwanted sexual contact (USC) in active duty women and men have stayed in a relatively narrow range since the Department began using its current measure in 2006.<sup>16</sup> These data, and others described in this report, provide indications that the wide range of SAPR initiatives implemented over the past several years are having a positive impact throughout the force, as more victims are reporting and accessing SAPR support.

The Department takes appropriate action in every case where it has jurisdiction and sufficient evidence to do so. This year, the Department had sufficient evidence and jurisdiction to take some kind of disciplinary action against 73 percent of military subjects. Disciplinary action was not possible for the remaining 27 percent of military subjects due to evidentiary or jurisdictional matters.

Despite increased reporting, sexual assault remains a persistent problem. While assisting victims and holding alleged offenders appropriately accountable are important, further progress in reducing the prevalence of sexual assault can only come through prevention. During FY14, the Department will focus on preventing the crime by implementing the 2014-2016 DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy. Prevention is more than training and education of individuals. A successful prevention strategy addresses the entire continuum of harm, shapes the environment, and includes a wide range of integrated elements targeting accountability, community involvement, communication, deterrence, incentives, and harm reduction at every level of military society.

In future years, the Department will continue to improve its assistance to victims to aid their recovery and participation in the military justice system, should they so desire. In addition, the Department will continue implementing and improving a comprehensive and multi-disciplinary SAPR program that inspires reporting, provides a high quality response system, and holds offenders appropriately accountable.

<sup>16</sup> Past-year rates of USC have ranged between 4.4% and 6.8% for active duty women and between 0.9% and 1.8% for active duty men.

INTRODUCTION

REPORT REQUIREMENT

This report is the DoD FY13 Annual Report on Sexual Assault in the Military.<sup>17</sup> This is the Department's tenth annual report on sexual assault in the military; it describes sexual assault reports that were made during FY13 (October 1, 2012 through September 30, 2013).<sup>18</sup> This report also describes many of the Department's sexual assault programs, initiatives, and policy enhancements developed and implemented during FY13. The report organizes and communicates the Department's progress using the five lines of effort from the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan, revised and published in May 2013.

DoD SAPR STRATEGIC PLAN

The DoD SAPR Strategic Plan is the authoritative guidance to all stakeholders and defines Department priorities, objectives, and initiatives with regards to SAPR. In FY13, the DoD SAPRO and the Military Services revised the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan to align with and operationalize the key tasks defined in the Joint Chiefs of Staff's (JCS) Strategic Direction to the Joint Force.<sup>19</sup> The 2013 update to the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan is the first since 2009, when the plan was originally published. The DoD SAPR Strategic Plan presents a multidisciplinary approach with initiatives and objectives in five lines of effort to achieve unity of effort and purpose across the Department. The lines of effort are Prevention, Investigation, Accountability, Advocacy/Victim Assistance, and Assessment. (see Figure 5, below.) (see Enclosure 1 to read the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan in its entirety.)

In May 2013, the Secretary of Defense directed the implementation of the revised DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. In collaboration with the JCS and the Service SAPR program representatives, DoD SAPRO developed an initial set of program metrics associated with certain lines of effort and established standard operating procedures for tracking the Department's progress in the implementation of the tasks.<sup>20</sup>

Through his May 2013 memo, the Secretary of Defense also directed the Military Services to align their programs with the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The Military Services wrote individual SAPR Strategic Plans that aligned with the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan and reported back to the Secretary of Defense on their alignment in July 2013.

OVERSIGHT

Eliminating sexual assault in the military is one of the Department of Defense's highest priorities. The Secretary of Defense is committed to continually assessing and improving the Department's SAPR efforts. To support this effort, the Acting Under Secretary of Defense (USD) for Personnel and Readiness (P&R) and the Director of DoD SAPRO provided weekly updates to the Secretary of Defense and other senior Department leaders on the progress of new and ongoing SAPR initiatives, development of new policy, and implementation of legislation. The Secretary used these regularly scheduled meetings to consider recommendations from senior leadership and hold Department leaders accountable to further enhance SAPR policies and program.

To foster program consistency and unity of effort across the Military Services and the NGB, the Director of DoD SAPRO hosts regular SAPR Integrated Product Team (IPT) meetings with DoD and Military Service SAPR leadership.<sup>21</sup> Established in FY10, the SAPR IPT provides a forum for the oversight of program execution, clarification of policy matters, and sharing of important research and best practices. In FY13, the SAPR IPT guided the development of policies and programs to comply with new legislation and directives from the Secretary of Defense.

During FY13, the White House National Security Staff created standing oversight bodies to support SAPR program execution and progress. In cooperation with the White House Council on Women and Girls and the Office of the Vice President, the National Security Staff created the Health of the Force (HOF) Coordinating Group and Working Group. The HOF Coordinating Group is comprised of the USD(P&R), the Vice Chairman of the JCS, the Vice Chiefs of Staff of the Military Services, and the Assistant Commandant of the Coast Guard. The HOF Coordinating Group, on behalf of the President and Vice President, provides oversight and coordinate solutions that require White House executive action.

The graphic in Figure 6 depicts the Department's oversight functions and actors that are engaged when a sexual assault is reported. This graphic demonstrates the Department's integrated system of check and balances that provide for:

- Professional advocacy;
- Independent investigations and legal review;
- Elevated disposition decisions;
- General officer first response oversight;
- Command engagement to ensure safety and victim care; and

- Cross functional oversight mechanisms, capabilities, and services that enable a comprehensive and concerted policy to respond to a report of sexual assault, and the accountability provided by the Secretary of Defense, the JCS, and DoD SAPRO.

This system is built on the foundation of our DoD strategic approach and is grounded in law and policy. It incorporates promising practices of each Service and initiatives directed by the Secretary of Defense to strengthen sexual assault response and oversight. The Department's oversight and response system has been vastly improved in recent years—particularly in FY12 and FY13. Enhancements have professionalized advocacy, fielded specially-trained investigators and prosecutors, enhanced the administration of military justice, provided new protections and services to victims, enhanced legal advocacy, increased commander accountability for establishing appropriate climates, and provided new roles and oversight for the entire response system. Initiatives implemented during FY13 are described throughout this report.

The sexual assault response system also demonstrates how the unit commander does not have sole responsibility for all aspects of the response system. There are multiple cross-functional and parallel actors with oversight mechanisms, capabilities, and services to create checks and balances that ensure the system is delivering care, ensuring safety, and responding with independent investigations and elevated decision-making. The system of checks and balances also ensures that every report of sexual assault is competently and thoroughly investigated, offenders are held appropriately accountable, and leaders are providing oversight to ensure the system is working.

POLICY ENHANCEMENTS

In FY13, the Department implemented numerous policy changes. Most notably, the Department reissued the SAPR program DoD Directive (DoDD 6495.01) and DoD Instruction (DoDI 6495.02), with a range of new policies, training requirements, and safety measures.<sup>22</sup> These changes reflect feedback from survivors and advocacy groups, as well as the Military Services, NGB, military investigators, DoD Office of General Counsel, and DoD Health Affairs. These updated policy documents also incorporate recommendations from the Government Accountability Office (GAO), the DoD IG, and the Defense Task Force on Sexual Assault in the Military Services (DTF-SAMS), as well as requirements from the NDAA FY09, FY11, FY12, and FY13. The updated Directive also aligns the definition of “sexual assault” with changes to Articles 120 and 125 of the UCMJ, legislated in the FY12 NDAA<sup>23</sup>.

Key policy enhancements implemented by the reissuance of DoDD 6495.01, DoDI 6495.02, and the release of other Department directives and instructions include:

PREVENTION POLICY ENHANCEMENTS

- ✓ A requirement for the DoD SAPRO Director to develop strategic program guidance, joint planning objectives, and standard terminology in support of DoD SAPR policies.<sup>24</sup>
- ✓ Enhanced and standardized requirements for Annual SAPR Training, Accessions training, Professional Military Education (PME), Pre- and Post-Deployment training, Pre-Command training, General Officer/Flag officer (GO/FO) and Senior Executive Service (SES) training, military recruiters, and training for civilians who supervise military personnel.
- ✓ A requirement for commanders to meet with the SARC within 30 days of taking command for one-on-one SAPR training. The training must address a variety of topics, including crime report trends for the unit and area of responsibility, as well as Restricted Reporting confidentiality parameters.
- ✓ Specialized requirements for the following responders: SARCs, SAPR VA, healthcare personnel and providers assigned to a Military Treatment Facilities (MTF), MCIOs, judge advocates (JA), legal assistance attorneys, and chaplains.

INVESTIGATION POLICY ENHANCEMENTS

- ✓ Clarification of existing requirements for all adult sexual assault investigations to be conducted by MCIOs (i.e., Army Criminal Investigations Command [CID],

ACCOUNTABILITY POLICY ENHANCEMENTS

- ✓ Establishment of procedures that provide each Service member who reports a sexual assault with the opportunity to consult with legal assistance counsel, and in cases where the victim may have been involved in collateral misconduct, to consult with defense counsel. Also clarifies an existing requirement for the Department of Defense (DD) Form 2701, Initial Information for Victims and Witnesses of Crime (detailing victims' rights), to be distributed to the victim in Unrestricted Reports by DoD law enforcement agents.
- ✓ Revision of the list of UCMJ offenses for which sex offender notification is required and added the requirement of notifying the United States Marshals Service Sex Offender Targeting Center.<sup>26, 27</sup>

ADVOCACY/VICTIM ASSISTANCE POLICY ENHANCEMENTS

- ✓ A mandate that sexual assault victims be informed of the option to request a Military Protective Order in an Unrestricted Reporting case.
- ✓ Policy for expedited transfers of victims making a credible report of sexual assault.
- ✓ Document retention policy to improve storage and retrieval of the DD Form 2910, Victim Reporting Preference Form (wherein the victim elects a Restricted or Unrestricted Report), and the DD Form 2911, the forensic examination report.
- ✓ Standards and periodic training for healthcare personnel on safeguarding a victim's Restricted Report.<sup>28</sup>
- ✓ Directions for SARCs to provide a response to sexual assault victims that is gender-responsive, culturally-competent, and recovery-oriented. Further directs SARCs to explain to the victim that the services of the SARC and SAPR VA are optional and may be declined, in whole or in part, at any time.<sup>29</sup>
- ✓ Requirement for the Surgeons General of the Military Departments to use the Department of Justice's (DOJ) A National Protocol for Sexual Assault Medical Forensic Examinations as the standards for forensic examination of victims of sexual assault (Source: DOJ Office on Violence Against Women). The Surgeons General must also implement processes that provide sexual assault patients with priority treatment as emergency cases.

- ✓ Establishment of a DoD-wide SARC and SAPR VA certification program and a requirement for all SARCs and SAPR VAs performing victim advocacy duties to be certified through this program.
- ✓ Requirement for victims to receive a clear explanation of the SAPR program, the available reporting options, exceptions to the Restricted Reporting option, and protections of communications provided under Military Rule of Evidence (MRE) 514, Victim-Victim Advocate privilege.<sup>30</sup>
- ✓ Established the DoD Safe Helpline as the universal hotline to provide crisis intervention and information to sexual assault victims and others in the DoD community.<sup>31</sup>

ASSESSMENT POLICY ENHANCEMENTS

- ✓ Requirement for the Case Management Group (CMG) chair to request a safety assessment be conducted by trained personnel for each sexual assault victim and report the assessment at the CMG meeting. If a victim is assessed to be in a high-risk situation, the CMG chair will immediately stand up a multi-disciplinary high-risk response team to continually monitor and take steps to maintain the victim's safety.
- ✓ Policy for the creation, implementation, and maintenance of the DSAID.

PROGRAM OVERSIGHT POLICY ENHANCEMENTS

- ✓ Requirement for a GO/FO or an SES civilian to serve as the Director, DoD SAPRO, who is the single point of authority, accountability, and oversight for the DoD SAPR program.
- ✓ Requirement for the USD(P&R) and DoD SAPRO to update the Deputy Secretary of Defense on SAPR policies on a semi-annual basis.
- ✓ Direction for the SAPR IPT to serve as the implementation and oversight arm of the DoD SAPR Program.
- ✓ Requirement for an officer from each of the Armed Forces in the grade of O-4 or above to serve at SAPRO for a minimum tour length of 18 months.

WAY AHEAD

In FY14, the Department plans to:

- Issue policy to assign responsibilities and prescribe procedures for the oversight, management, and implementation of D-SAACP.
- Issue policy for the implementation of a Special Victim Capability across the Department of Defense, providing a distinct, recognizable group of appropriately skilled personnel to investigate and prosecute, as appropriate, the following covered offenses:
  - Unrestricted Reports of adult sexual assault;

- Unrestricted Reports of domestic violence involving sexual assault and/or aggravated assault with grievous bodily harm; and
- Child abuse involving sexual assault and/or aggravated assault with grievous bodily harm.
- Update instructions for enlisted and officer separations that allow a member, who made a report of sexual assault and is subsequently recommended for involuntary separation, to request GO/FO review of the circumstances of and grounds for the involuntary separation. The updated Instructions will also require processing for administrative separation those Service members who were convicted of certain sexual assault offenses at court-martial, but did not receive a punitive discharge as punishment.
- Issue a change to DoDI 6495.02, "SAPR Program Procedures," so that the SAPR DoDI will conform to new legislation established by the FY13 NDAA.

PROGRAM ENHANCEMENTS AND IMPROVEMENTS

In FY13, the Department implemented numerous SAPR program improvements to reflect changes in DoD policy, Secretary of Defense directives, and legislation. This section highlights progress made on these program improvements and the implementation initiatives during FY13. The programs and initiatives are organized by line of effort.

LINE OF EFFORT 1: PREVENTION PROGRAMS AND INITIATIVES

Prevention is the first line of effort in the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The objective of the Prevention line of effort is to deliver consistent and effective prevention methods and programs that reduce, with a goal to eliminate, the prevalence of sexual assault. The desired end state is to reinforce the cultural imperatives of mutual respect and trust, professional values, and team commitment to create an environment where sexist behaviors, sexual harassment, and sexual assault are not condoned, tolerated, or ignored. Prevention includes developing and sustaining a climate of dignity and respect, training and education, and mitigating criminal threats.

Enhancing prevention programs was an area of increased focus in FY13. Prior to FY13, a Prevention Team was established within DoD SAPRO and resourced with subject matter experts in military leadership, training curriculum development, thought innovation, and communications. During FY13, the Prevention Team developed innovative ideas and undertook initiatives to implement the tasks in the Prevention line of effort.

Updated the DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy

A key prevention task in the DoD SAPR Strategy is to conduct a collaborative review to update the 2008 DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy. During FY13, the DoD SAPRO Prevention Team embarked on a four-phased plan to revise the 2008 DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy.

During FY13, the DoD SAPRO Prevention Team completed Phase I, the Planning and Research Phase. Phase I was comprised of two key tasks. In Task 1, the DoD SAPRO Prevention Team conducted research and analysis to understand factors in the current military environment and culture that give rise to sexual assault. In Task 2, the team developed processes and instruments to identify and assess evidence-based prevention programs, organizational practices, and research from subject matter experts for best or promising practices for possible inclusion in the prevention strategy.

Phase II, which involves deployment of innovation and assessment teams, was initiated in May 2013 and will continue into FY14 (through November 2013). Phase II consists of two tasks—which are also tasks listed in the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. Task 1 uses the tools created in Phase I to assess prevention programs, organizational practices, and research. Task 2 consists of researching and identifying innovative ideas to improve overall prevention program effectiveness and outcomes.

The Prevention Team held more than 45 online, telephone, and in-person sessions with subject matter experts to identify proven and successful prevention practices. Subject matter experts included representatives from sexual assault prevention, victim advocacy, and training organizations; large public universities (e.g., Pennsylvania State University, University of Michigan, the University of Maryland); government agencies (e.g., Federal Bureau of Investigation, The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [CDC]); and subject matter experts who have experience working in the DoD environment.<sup>32</sup> Sources for researching and identifying innovative prevention programs included sexual assault internet databases (e.g., PreventConnect, National Sexual Violence Resource Center); internal and external literature reviews; and foreign militaries (e.g., Australia). Figure 7 depicts many of the programs assessed and organizations interviewed during site visits by the Prevention Team during FY13.

The Phase III, Prevention Strategy Revision and Update, will be the focus of the first half of FY14. The DoD SAPRO Prevention Team will consolidate the research and observations from Phases I and II to form the revised Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy. The DoD SAPRO Prevention Team will coordinate with the Military Services to review findings and develop a unified DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy. This phase ends with the publication of a revised prevention strategy, currently slated for Spring 2014.

Phase IV, consists of two key tasks: developing metrics to assess the effectiveness of the DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy and annually revising and updating the strategy.

<sup>32</sup> Any reference to any non-federal entity is not intended to be an endorsement of that entity by DoD.

Improved the Command Climate

Conducted SAPR Stand-downs across the Military Services

In May 2013, the Secretary of Defense directed the Secretaries of the Military Departments, the Chairman of the JCS, the Chiefs of the Military Services, and the Chief of the NGB to collaborate with the Combatant Commanders to develop and implement SAPR stand-downs.<sup>33</sup> The goal of the stand-downs was for leaders, recruiters, SARCs, SAPR VAs, and every member of the Armed Forces to clearly understand that they are accountable for fostering a climate where sexist behaviors, sexual harassment, and sexual assault are not tolerated, condoned, or ignored and where all adhere to the core values of dignity, trust, and respect.

The stand-down plans included three elements: the active review of credentials and qualifications of currently serving recruiters, SARCS, and SAPR VAs; refresher training on ethics and standards for recruiters, SARCS, and SAPR VAs; and purposeful and direct commander and leader engagement with Service members and civilian employees on SAPR principles and command climate.

The Secretary of Defense reviewed and approved the implementation plans developed by each of the Military Services and directed that all stand-downs be completed by July 1, 2013 for the Active Component. The Reserve Component initiated their stand-down commensurate with the Active Component, with the goal of completing as much as possible by July 1, 2013, and fully complete no later than September 30, 2013.<sup>34</sup>

Conducted Visual Inspections across the Military Services

Also in May 2013, the Secretary of Defense directed the Military Services to conduct visual inspections to ensure an environment free from degrading or offensive materials. The visual inspections were conducted during the spring and summer of FY13. As the Military Services conducted their inspections, actions were taken as appropriate, including removing offensive and degrading materials, counseling of personnel if offensive materials were found, and pursuing disciplinary action where supported by evidence. Overall, the inspection resulted in the removal of unacceptable materials from DoD workplaces.

Assessed Commander Effectiveness

In May 2013, the Secretary of Defense directed the Military Services to enhance commander accountability by developing methods to assess commanders' performance in establishing command climates of dignity and respect and incorporating sexual assault prevention and victim care principles into their leadership approach.

In response, the Military Services developed and implemented substantive changes to their respective Officer and Non-Commissioned Officer (NCO) evaluation systems:

- The Army issued a Directive in September 2013 requiring all raters to assess officers and NCOs on their respective performance evaluation reports on establishing climates of dignity and respect and adhering to SAPR principles.<sup>35</sup>
- The Navy published a Directive in August 2013 requiring that officer and enlisted performance evaluations clearly evaluate the individual's contribution to a productive and professional command climate, where sexual harassment and assault, hazing, discrimination, and other inappropriate conduct are not tolerated.<sup>36</sup>
- The Marine Corps reviewed its performance evaluation system to ensure it promotes command climate accountability, to include reviewing the potential benefits of 360° assessments for O-5/O-6 commanding officers and increasing the transparency of accountability for misconduct.<sup>37</sup>
- The Air Force revised its policy on officer and enlisted evaluation systems, clearly defining officer and NCO responsibilities to create healthy unit climates, including sexual assault prevention and victim care.<sup>38</sup>
- The National Guard will execute the aforementioned Army and Air Force directives.

All policies are currently in effect.

Conducted a Review to Ensure Consistency in Policies Prohibiting Inappropriate Relationships

In August 2013, the Secretary of Defense ordered a review to ensure current policies prohibiting inappropriate relations between recruiters and recruits and trainers and trainees are consistent across the Military Services. The Offices of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Military Personnel Policy (MPP) and Readiness reviewed the pertinent policies. The policies were found to be similar in most aspects, but varied in terminology, level of responsibility, and the specificity with which prohibited actions are identified.

In response, MPP and Readiness will collaborate during FY14 to draft policy that addresses the gaps and inconsistencies identified.

Implemented Training Enhancements

Pre-command and Senior Enlisted Leader SAPR Training

In January 2012, the Secretary of Defense directed DoD SAPRO to evaluate and report on the Military Services' SAPR training provided to prospective commanders and senior enlisted leaders. Upon review and receipt of the report, the Secretary of Defense directed the Military Services to develop and implement standardized core competencies and learning objectives applicable to pre-command and senior enlisted leader SAPR training and to develop and implement methods for objectively assessing the effectiveness of such training. In March 2013, the standardized core competencies and learning objectives were released to the Military Services and the NGB. During FY13, the Military Services implemented a dedicated block of SAPR instruction for commanders and senior enlisted leaders that allowed sufficient time to achieve the learning objectives; developed Commander's Guides for SAPR; and assessed commanders' and senior enlisted leaders' understanding and mastery of key SAPR concepts and skills.

SAPR Training Core Competencies and Learning Objectives

In September 2012, the Secretary of Defense directed the Secretaries of the Military Departments to develop and implement standardized core competencies and learning objectives for other courses involving SAPR. This effort was also responsive to sections 584 and 585 of the NDAA FY12, which mandated consistent SAPR training across the Military Services and NGB. During FY13, DoD SAPRO, the Military Services, NGB, and training experts collaborated to develop standardized core competencies and learning objectives for the following SAPR courses: Annual Refresher, Accessions, Pre-deployment, Post-deployment, Chaplain, PME, SARC, and SAPR VA. The Military Services collaborated and shared best practices to ensure agreement and consistency in training. The revised curricula, based on these core competencies and learning objectives, will be implemented in a coordinated effort among the Military Services, the NGB, and the entire DoD community during FY14. The core competencies and learning objectives satisfy the FY12 NDAA requirements and can be found at <http://www.sapr.mil/index.php/prevention>.

Explanation of SAPR Policies and Resources within 14 Days of Entrance

In FY13, the Department implemented a requirement in section 574 of the FY13 NDAA to explain DoD sexual assault policy and the SAPR resources available to new Service members. The policy and resources are now explained within 14 days of the member's initial entrance to Active Duty or into a duty status with a reserve component.

Ensuring Safety in Recruiting Organizations, Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC), and Military Entrance Processing Stations (MEPS) Programs

In May 2013, the Secretary of Defense directed assessments of the selection, SAPR training, and oversight of recruiters; the dissemination of program information to potential and actual recruits; and the assessment of prevention and education programs in ROTC environments and curricula. The Military Departments, the NGB, and the Office of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for MPP began conducting reviews in FY13.

The Army reviewed credentials of currently-serving recruiters and refresher training for recruiters; conducted an extensive series of internal assessments of the Sexual Harassment/Assault Response and Prevention (SHARP) program; reviewed its selection process for certain positions, to include recruiters; and conducted a review of the U.S Army Recruiting Command (USAREC) force. The Army also added a requirement for specialized SHARP instruction for its recruiters, and implemented a revised training support package for recruiter training. Additionally, the Army developed a distributed learning program for future Soldiers that can be accessed and used in Recruiting Stations.

The Department of Navy (DON) assessed SAPR programs in recruiting environments through site visits to 27 Navy and Marine Corps locations. At each location, assessment staff met with command leadership, interviewed stakeholders, and conducted focus groups with applicants and trainees. DON SAPRO assessed SAPR training programs for ROTC environments by working directly with the Naval Service Training Command headquarters organization.

The Air Force evaluated SAPR curriculum at all venues of training utilizing a cross-functional Recruiter Analysis Group and a multidisciplinary ROTC Curricula and Environment IPT. Areas of focus included recruiter selection, training and oversight, and ROTC curricula and environments.

The National Guard Bureau assessment was limited to a review of SAPR programs in recruiting organizations since the Directors of the Army National Guard (ARNG) and the Air National Guard (ANG) do not have purview over ROTC programs or MEPS. The ARNG conducted data calls to carry out its assessment: one to determine whether states hired recruiters in accordance with Active Guard Reserve hiring policy, and another to assess the status of ethics and annual refresher training for recruiters. For its assessment, the ANG leveraged the Dissuade, Deter, Detect Initiative implemented by the Air Force Recruiting Service as a benchmark for reviewing and identifying enhancements to processes in ANG Recruiting and Retention.

The U.S. Military Entrance Processing Command (USMEPCOM) conducted an assessment of its SAPR Program beginning in May 2013. The assessment focused on ensuring applicant safety during processing at MEPS and examining prevention and response for MEPS staff. As part of its review, USMEPCOM provided a briefing to the DoD SAPR Executive Committee during an on-site visit to the Baltimore MEPS on July 16, 2013.

SAPR Lessons included in the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute (DEOMI) Curriculum

In FY13, DoD SAPRO continued its partnership with DEOMI to include SAPR lessons in DEOMI curriculum. SAPR lesson topics include the relationship between sexual harassment and sexual assault and the differences in reporting and response between sexual assault and equal opportunity (EO). The curriculum improves attendee skills with practical exercises.<sup>39</sup> These programs help equip EO and equal employment opportunity (EEO) professionals with skills to properly address and refer complainants' concerns of sexual harassment and sexual assault. The training is provided by DEOMI certified instructors with participation from senior DoD SAPRO staff.

Over 779 students attended SAPR lessons presented by DEOMI in FY13. Students are asked to provide feedback on the course after they have returned to the field

<sup>39</sup> Department of Defense Directive (DoDD) 1020.02, "Diversity Management and Equal Opportunity in the Department of Defense," February 2009. In accordance with DoDD 1020.02, sexual harassment falls under the purview of the Department's Diversity Management and Equal Opportunity program.

(approximately one to six months after the SAPR lesson, depending on DEOMI course). During FY13, a total of 186 students completed the student post evaluations of the SAPR lesson. The results of these evaluations are presented in this report to affect improvements to the quality and effectiveness of the SAPR lessons. Overall, the response to both military and civilian DEOMI courses has been positive: average participant ratings of the SAPR lesson course content and effectiveness ranged from 3.1 to 3.6 out of a possible rating of 4.0 in post-course evaluations.

DEOMI also provides a SAPR lesson in the Leadership Team Awareness Seminar (LTAS), a five-day resident, student-centered training program, for senior leaders with an orientation on the intrapersonal, interpersonal, and organizational aspects of human relations issues in order to gain an understanding of their impacts on unit cohesion and mission effectiveness. The target audience for this seminar is senior officers (commanders and key staff/department heads [O-3 to O-6]) and senior enlisted advisors (E-7 to E-9), as well as civilians including legal officers, chaplains, and inspector general personnel in leadership positions. In FY13, over 163 military and DoD civilian personnel representing all of the Military Services attended the LTAS SAPR lessons presented by DEOMI.

Observed Sexual Assault Awareness Month

Sexual Assault Awareness Month (SAAM) is recognized across the country every April by both civilian and military communities. The Department developed its FY13 theme, "We own it...We'll solve it...Together!" to emphasize a collective approach to combatting sexual assault. Throughout April, military and civilian employees of the Department heard messages from the President of the United States and senior Department leaders:

- President Barack Obama signed a Presidential Proclamation declaring April 2013 as National SAAM. In his proclamation, the President wrote, "we must also recommit to ending [sexual assault] in our military – because no one serving our country should be at risk of assault by a fellow Service member."<sup>40</sup>
- The Secretary of Defense released a video message to the force and published a written message, "We are strong because of our values of service, sacrifice and loyalty -- and doing what is right. We watch out for each other and respect each other. By drawing on these strengths, we can and we must stop sexual assault within our ranks.”<sup>41</sup>

- The Acting USD(P&R) distributed field guidance and published a memo in which she stressed the “sustained vigilance,” “steadfast team effort,” and personal commitment required for the prevention of sexual assault.<sup>42</sup> The Acting USD(P&R) also served as keynote speaker at the SAAM kick-off event at Aberdeen Proving Grounds.
- The Chairman of the JCS published a video message in which he urged every Service member to work to prevent the crime from occurring and encouraged victims to seek help they need.

Commanders throughout the Military Services were encouraged to recognize the professionalism of their newly D-SAACP-certified SARCs and SAPR VAs during SAAM. SAPRO recognized the Exceptional SARCs of the year from each Service, the NGB, and the Coast Guard. The SARCs were recognized for their outstanding efforts in assisting sexual assault victims and their exceptional commitment to preventing this crime. The honorees included: Army Sgt. 1st Class Josalette Simmons, Fort Bragg, N.C.; Kathleen Schofield, Naval Air Station Whidbey Island, Wash.; Marine Corps Maj. Robyn Mestemacher, 1st Marine Expeditionary Force; Janaee Stone, Hill Air Force Base, Utah; Army Capt. Jennifer Hunt, National Guard Joint Force Headquarters, Fla.; and Kristin Cox, Coast Guard District 13.

DoD SAPRO developed SAAM materials that were made available to support installation and unit sexual assault prevention and education efforts. Event ideas, SAAM messages from senior leaders, field guidance, sample media materials, and graphics were among the materials available for reproduction and distribution to support local SAAM campaigns. The Department also hosted a display in the Pentagon calling attention to the importance of sexual assault prevention. Finally, the DoD Safe Helpline supported the efforts of military installations during SAAM by providing outreach materials and by manning information booths to help raise awareness of the Department’s anonymous crisis intervention resource.

LINE OF EFFORT 2: INVESTIGATION PROGRAMS AND INITIATIVES

Investigation is the second line of effort in the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The objective of Investigation is to achieve high competence in the investigation of sexual assault. The end state is where investigative resources yield timely and accurate results. The MCIOs conduct all investigations of unrestricted sexual assault reports in accordance with the DoDI 6495.02, DoDI 5505-18, “Investigation of Adult Sexual Assault” (published January 25, 2013), and applicable Military Service regulations. Victim confidence and participation is integral to a thorough investigation, and investigative techniques must maximize the recovery of physical and testimonial evidence while minimizing the potential for victim re-traumatization.

Established a Special Victim Capability

In 2012, the Secretary of Defense proposed legislation for the development of a Special Victim Capability within each of the Military Services. This initiative was ultimately included as section 573 of the FY13 NDAA, which required the Secretary of Defense to prescribe regulations mandating that the Secretary of each Military Department establish a Special Victim Capability for the purpose of investigating and prosecuting allegations of special victim offenses (child abuse, domestic violence, and sexual assault) and providing support for the victims of such offenses. Section 573 required all Military Departments to have an initial special victim capability available no later than January 2014.

DoD SAPRO conducted working groups throughout FY13 to support the creation of the Special Victim Capability in the Military Services. The working groups created objectives, milestones, and a timeline for the implementation for the capability, which is grounded on the following key principles:

- The Special Victim Capability is a capability—not a specific person or team—to provide each of the Military Services flexibility in implementation. At the same time, there is standardization and consistency in the delivery of the Special Victim Capability across the Department.
- The Special Victim Capability is available globally where our DoD members serve and where incidents are investigated and prosecuted, as appropriate.

- The Special Victim Capability qualifying offenses are defined as child abuse (involving sexual abuse and/or grievous bodily harm), domestic violence (involving sexual assault and/or aggravated assault with grievous bodily harm), and adult sexual assault offenses.
- Personnel who are part of the Special Victim Capability include criminal investigators, JAs, Victim Witness Assistance Program (VWAP) personnel, and paralegal support personnel, who receive specialized training for their role in the Special Victim Capability.

In accordance with section 573(e) of the FY13 NDAA, the Department will provide a report on the establishment of the Special Victim Capabilities within the Military Services. The report will be submitted in FY14 after the Department conducts a thorough analysis of the proposed investigative and prosecution capabilities in conjunction with the DoD IG, the Military Services, the Judge Advocates General (JAG), and the MCIOs.<sup>43</sup> A review of the full operating capability will be included in the FY14 Annual Report.

<sup>43</sup> The Acting USD(P&R) submitted the report Establishment of Special Victim Capabilities Within the Military Departments to Respond to Allegations of Certain Special Victim Offenses on December 12, 2014. The report outlined how the Special Victim Capability will enable the Department to deliver a distinct, recognizable group of professionals collaborating to provide effective, timely, and responsive worldwide victim support, and a capability to investigate and prosecute special victim offenses.

DoD IG Assessed MCIO Initial and Annual Training

In February 2013, the DoD IG published findings and recommendations for MCIO initial and annual training in a report titled, Evaluation of the Military Criminal Investigative Organizations' Sexual Assault Investigation Training. The evaluation focused on the following questions: “What sexual assault investigation training do the MCIOs provide?;” “How do the MCIOs ensure that sexual assault investigation training is effective?;” and “How do the MCIOs leverage their resources and expertise?” The comprehensive evaluation consisted of interviews; a compliance check with DoDI 6495.02; a review of curriculum; processes used by the MCIOs to measure effectiveness; end-of-course critiques course and exercise grade sheets; criteria for practical exercise; graduation and supervisory validation survey reports; performance objectives; and instructor biographies and training certifications.

The DoD IG found that each MCIO provides initial baseline, periodic refresher, and advanced sexual assault investigation training to assigned criminal investigative personnel who may conduct sexual assault investigations. The training hours devoted to initial baseline training tasks were found to be varied among the MCIOs.

All MCIO training academies measured the effectiveness of initial and advanced training courses, and they use the results to adjust training content to increase effectiveness. However, the MCIOs do not measure the effectiveness of periodic refresher training. CID attempted to consolidate advanced sexual assault investigation training with the other Services' MCIOs. Instead of this consolidation, CID and NCIS share highly qualified and subject matter experts to assist with training course development and delivery. Also, CID assisted NCIS by instructing at their advanced sexual assault investigation training course.

The DoD IG issued several recommendations in its report. The DoD IG recommended that the Director, NCIS ensure lesson materials for initial sexual assault investigation training covers all essential training tasks.<sup>45</sup> The DoD IG also recommended that the Director and Commanders of the MCIOs form a working group to review (1) initial baseline sexual assault investigation training programs to establish common criteria and minimum requirements, (2) periodic refresher sexual assault investigation training programs to establish common criteria and minimum requirements for measuring effectiveness,<sup>46</sup> and (3) advanced sexual assault investigation training programs to further capitalize on efforts to leverage training resources and expertise.

DoD IG Assessed MCIO Investigative Sufficiency and Compliance

In July 2013, the DoD IG published its findings from an evaluation of the MCIOs' sexual assault investigations that were completed in 2010. The report is titled, Evaluation of the Military Criminal Investigative Organizations Sexual Assault Investigations.<sup>47</sup> DoD IG conducted its evaluation to determine whether the MCIOs completed investigations as required by DoD, Military Service, and MCIO guidance. Their evaluation focused on the following question: "Did the MCIOs investigate sexual assaults as required by guiding policies and procedures?" The review was based on a random sampling of completed cases closed in 2010 involving the sexual assaults of adult victims defined under Articles 120 and 125 of the UCMJ.

The DoD IG found that 89 percent of MCIO investigations that were reviewed met or exceeded the investigative standards or did not have significant deficiencies. The DoD IG returned cases with significant deficiencies (11 percent) to the MCIOs for corrective action.

The DoD IG issued several recommendations in its report. The first recommendation was that the Director and Commanders of the MCIOs implement measures to improve crime scene processing, evidence collection, supervision, and documentation to reduce investigative deficiencies. The second recommendation was that the Commanders of CID and AFOSI evaluate their existing policies regarding the collection of clothing worn by suspects and victims subsequent to a sexual assault. The third recommendation made was for the Director of NCIS to evaluate current policy regarding the timely

<sup>46</sup> The MCIOs objected to efforts to improve periodic refresher training; however, they concurred with recommendations to improve initial baseline training and to review advanced training and work toward leveraging resources, advising they have begun many new initiatives relative to sexual assault investigation training. notification and coordination with servicing JAs upon the initiation of sexual assault cases, as well as the continued coordination with the servicing JAs until final case disposition. The fourth recommendation was that the Commander of CID and Director of NCIS evaluate existing policy guidance regarding the timely completion of records checks. The final recommendation was for the Director of NCIS to implement policy requiring SARC notifications and documentation.

<http://www.dodig.mil/pubs/documents/DODIG-2013-091.pdf>.

The Secretary of Defense recognized the value of this thorough examination and in his August 2013 SAPR memo requested that the DoD IG evaluate the adequacy of closed sexual assault investigations on a recurring basis.

Established Metric: DoD Investigation Length

As part of the effort to create metrics to measure improvements in SAPR programming under the FY13 DoD Strategic Plan, the Joint Chiefs approved a metric that tracks the average and median length of a sexual assault investigation. On average in FY13, it took about 109 days to conduct a sexual assault investigation. It should be noted that investigation length is not a measure of a thorough and professional investigation. The time it takes to conduct an investigation may vary greatly depending on the complexity of the allegation and evidence, among other factors. Figure 12 illustrates the metric data for investigation length.

LINE OF EFFORT 3: ACCOUNTABILITY PROGRAMS AND INITIATIVES

Holding alleged offenders appropriately accountable is the objective of the Accountability line of effort. The Department provides a fair and equitable system of accountability that promotes justice and assists in maintaining good order and discipline. Attorneys and commanders are a critical part of this system of accountability and are the center of gravity to the third line of effort. Commanders have the responsibility of establishing good order and discipline, holding perpetrators appropriately accountable, and establishing a climate that is intolerant of behaviors that give rise to sexual assault. The Staff JAs, prosecutors, and defense attorneys promote justice through their respective roles in the military justice system—either directly to a military commander, when prosecuting a sexual assault case or other crime under the UCMJ, or supporting a victim or defendant as legal assistance counsel.

Established Special Victims' Counsel/Advocacy Programs

Victim participation and engagement throughout the entire military justice process is critical to holding offenders appropriately accountable. Providing legal advice and representation to sexual assault victims give victims' confidence that they will be treated fairly as they navigate the criminal justice process.

The Air Force began its Special Victims' Counsel (SVC) pilot program in January 2013. The SVC pilot program provides Airmen and other eligible persons who report they are a victim of sexual assault the opportunity to be assigned a special victims' counsel. SVCs are Active Duty JAs whose sole role is to represent victims in an attorney-client relationship throughout the investigation and military justice process. For the Air Force, each SVC works under the direction of the Air Force Legal Operations Agency in Washington, DC.

SVC attends victim interviews with investigators, trial counsel, and defense counsel, and answer questions their clients have about the investigatory and military justice processes. Sexual assault victims are assigned a SVC within 48 hours (when practicable) of the SVC Program Office receiving a request.

Given the initial success of the Air Force pilot program and the affirmation from the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (US CAAF), the Secretary of Defense directed the Secretaries of the Military Departments in August 2013 to establish a special victims' advocacy program to provide legal advice and representation to victims throughout the military justice process.<sup>48</sup> The Military Departments were required to have initial operating capability in place by November 2013 and have full operating capability by January 2014. Information on the DoD-wide implementation of this program will be included in the FY14 Annual Report. Initial feedback from victims who have been provided this representation has been overwhelmingly positive.

Provided Information to the Independent Review and Assessment Panel (Response Systems Panel)

Section 576 of the FY13 NDAA required the Secretary of Defense to establish a Response Systems to Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel. The panel is a federal advisory committee consisting of nine appointees, five of whom were appointed by the Secretary of Defense and four of whom were appointed by the Chairmen and Ranking Members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees.

The panel was directed to conduct an independent review and assessment of the systems used to investigate, prosecute, and adjudicate crimes involving adult sexual assault and related offenses under the UCMJ. The panel will submit a report of its findings and recommendations to the Senate and House Armed Services Committees. The report is due in June 2014.

<sup>48</sup> To support the establishment of the special victims' advocacy programs, Congress appropriated $25M in the FY14 Appropriations Bill to the Department for transfer to the Army, Air Force, Navy, and Marine Corps for the purposes of establishing of the program.

During FY13, the Department supported the Response System Panel's review and assessment by presenting multiple briefings; and providing large volumes of documentation and information regarding DoD programs, initiatives, and policies on sexual assault response systems. DoD SAPRO continues to be responsive to the information requests of the Response Systems to Adult Sexual Assault Crimes Panel as they review DoD practices and recommend improvements to DoD response systems.

Created a New DSAID Case Synopsis Module

In FY13, the Department initiated work to create a case synopsis module in DSAID to streamline capturing and reporting case outcomes across the Military Services. The Military Service's legal officers will use the case synopsis module to validate subject dispositions, track subject case outcomes, and record subject punishment information, as applicable. The Department aggregates and analyzes this data to amend, if necessary, SAPR policy, program development, and oversight. This module will also assist in the reporting of the several thousand cases appended to the DoD's Annual Report each year, as required by legislation.

Updated Policy that Impacts Sex Offender Registration Programs

The DoD revised and reissued DoDI 1325.07, "Administration of Military Correctional Facilities and Clemency and Parole Authority," in FY13 to implement policy, assign responsibilities, and prescribe procedures to carry out the administration and operation of military correctional programs and facilities and military clemency and parole programs. Included in this revision are requirements for collection of deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) samples from each person who is or has been convicted of a qualifying military offense and expansion of the requirements to take DNA samples at arrest or similar appropriate stages of the military law enforcement and investigation process. This revision also changes the offenses for which sex offender notification is required, and adds a notification requirement to the United States Marshals Service Sex Offender Targeting Center.<sup>49</sup>

Also in FY13, the DoD IG began evaluating the Department's compliance with provisions of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA), which mandates registration of Service members convicted of certain sexual offenses. The report will be released in FY14.

Reviewed Article 60 of the UCMJ

To enhance the administration of justice, the Secretary directed the Office of the DoD General Counsel in March 2013 to conduct a review of authorities under Article 60 of the UCMJ. The Secretary of Defense also directed the Office of the General Counsel to develop a legislative proposal outlining any recommended changes to Article 60 of the UCMJ. Following this review, the Secretary of Defense recommended that Congress change military law so that a convening authority would no longer have the authority to set aside a conviction for major offenses, such as sexual assault. Convening authorities would also be required to explain in writing any changes made to the findings or sentences of a court-martial.

Congress included changes to Article 60 in section 1702 of the FY14 NDAA, which the Department will implement in FY14. These changes are intended to increase the confidence in the military justice system.

Judge Advocates Directed to Serve as Article 32 Investigating Officers

In his August 2013 memorandum, the Secretary of Defense directed the Military Services to implement policy that mandates JAs to serve as investigating officers for all Article 32 hearings on sexual assault offense charges. Implementation of this policy was set for FY14 and will be addressed in the FY14 Annual Report.

LINE OF EFFORT 4: ADVOCACY/VICTIM ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS AND INITIATIVES

Advocacy and Victim Assistance is the fourth line of effort in the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The objective is to deliver consistent and effective victim support, response, and reporting options, with the end state of providing high quality services and support to instill confidence and trust, strengthen resilience, and inspire victims to report. Survivors are offered and provided advocacy services, medical care, counseling, legal assistance, victim witness assistance, and chaplain services when requested and in a safe environment that encourages reporting and respects confidentiality. Critical to successful advocacy and victim assistance are trained and knowledgeable professionals who are known and available to Service members and whose services and programs inspire victim reporting.

The Department's advocacy and victim assistance programs, initiatives, and policy enhancements developed and implemented during FY13 are described below.

Expanded Victim Rights

The Department worked in FY13 to expand the legal rights of a sexual assault victim following the report of a sexual assault. Granting victims additional legal rights encourages reporting and participation in the military justice process.

Incorporating Victim Rights into Military Justice Practice

In May 2013, the Secretary of Defense directed the General Counsel to develop a method to incorporate the rights afforded to victims through the Crime Victims' Rights Act into military justice practice, to the extent appropriate.<sup>50</sup> Findings and recommendations are due in FY14.

Established New DoD Policy on Standards for Victim Assistance Services

During FY13, DoD SAPRO continued working with other DoD offices to develop new Department policy on victim assistance. DoDI 6400.07, "Standards for Victim Assistance Services in the Military Community," establishes policy, assigns

Considering Crime Victims' Input in Post-Trial Action Phase

In his August 2013 memorandum, the Secretary of Defense directed the Office of the General Counsel to develop draft language for an Executive Order to amend the Manual for Courts-Martial to provide victims of crime the opportunity to provide input to the post-trial action phase of courts-martial. The General Counsel is expected to develop language in FY14 that will be submitted to the President for consideration in an Executive Order.

Retaining Victim Records for an Extended Period of Time

With the reissuance of the DoDI 6495.02 in FY13, the Department implemented policy for the extended retention of DD Forms 2910 and 2911 in cases of Restricted Reports, when requested by the victim.<sup>53</sup> Section 1723 of the FY14 NDAA, passed into law in December 2013, mandated the retention of these forms for 50 years in all Restricted Reporting cases, regardless of whether it is requested by the victim. The Department's SAPR policy will be updated to reflect this requirement.

Enhanced Victim Protections

The Department worked in FY13 to enhance victim protections. Granting additional protections may give victims confidence to seek the support they need.

Implemented Policy Allowing the Administrative Reassignment or Transfer of Service Member Accused of Sexual Offense

The Secretary of Defense ordered the Secretaries of the Military Departments in 2013 to develop and implement policy allowing the administrative reassignment or transfer of a Service member who is accused of committing a sexual offense, balancing the interests of the victim and the alleged offender. In March 2013, DoDI 6495.02 was released and allows for such reassignment or transfer of a member who is accused of committing a sexual assault or related offense.<sup>54</sup> In FY14, the Military Services will review and update their respective policies to conform to the Secretary of Defense's directive and DoDI 6495.02. The policies will also fulfill the requirements of section 1713 of the FY14 NDAA.

Issued Updated Security Clearance Guidance Supporting Victims of Sexual Assault

In FY13, the Director of National Intelligence issued new guidance to support victims of sexual assault who hold or wish to hold a government security clearance. Question 21 on Standard Form 86, "Questionnaire for National Security Positions," asks whether the applicant has in the last seven years consulted a health care professional regarding an emotional or mental health condition or if they were similarly hospitalized. The following language was added to Question 21.2:

"Please respond to this question with the following additional instruction: Victims of sexual assault who have consulted with a health care professional regarding an emotional or mental health condition during this period strictly in relation to the sexual assault are instructed to answer No."

The added exemption came after a comprehensive review, in consultation with the members of Congress, DoD, other Federal agencies, and victim advocacy groups. Prior to this guidance, some victims may have been reluctant to seek mental health counseling for fear they may have had to disclose the counseling on their application.

Implementing and Monitoring Methods to Improve Victim Treatment by Peers, Co-Workers, and Chains of Command

In his May 2013 memorandum, the Secretary of Defense ordered the Secretaries of the Military Departments to enhance response and victim treatment by:

- Improving overall victim care and trust in the chain of command;
- Increasing reporting; and
- Reducing the possibility of ostracizing victims by implementing and monitoring methods to improve victim treatment by their peers, co-workers, and chains of command.

The Military Departments were instructed to solicit victim input for the development of these methods. In addition, the Department is using interviews, focus groups, and sensing sessions with victims and victim assistance personnel to assess the quality of service victims receive from responders (i.e., healthcare, military justice, and sexual assault prevention and response). The Department is also developing a victim experience survey in FY14 to better understand the victim's perspective in the response system and identify areas for improvement. The Military Departments will submit their methods to improve response and victim treatment in FY14.

Improved and Expanded Victim Services

The Department worked in FY13 to improve and expand direct victim services and to train and prepare knowledgeable professionals whose services support victims along their path of recovery. It is critical that every survivor is treated with the sensitivity they deserve, the privacy they prefer, and the responsive support they need. Consistent and effective response may inspire other sexual assault victims to come forward and make a report.

Completed fielding of the D-SAACP

In accordance with section 584 of FY12 NDAA, the Department fully implemented the D-SAACP in FY13. The development and implementation of this certification program for SARCs and SAPR VAs also fulfills recommendations made by DTF-SAMS.<sup>55</sup> At the conclusion of FY13, the Department had certified over 22,000 SARCs and SAPR VAs through the D-SAACP.

Table 1: Number D-SAACP Certified SARCs and SAPR VAs by end of FY13

| Service        | Certified SARCs and SAPR VAs |
|----------------|------------------------------|
| Army           | 11,714                       |
| Navy           | 4,583                        |
| Marine Corps   | 1,642                        |
| Air Force      | 2,243                        |
| National Guard | 2,683                        |
| Total   | 22,865                |

Each D-SAACP applicant had to submit letters of recommendation from supervisors and senior commanders attesting to their professional ability, their willingness to perform the job duties, and assuring the requisite background check has been completed. Other requirements include an acknowledgement of the applicant's adherence to a professional code of ethics and proof of 40 hours of National Advocate Credentialing Program<sup>56</sup> (NACP)-approved training. To recognize SARCs and SAPR VAs with advanced experience, the Department established a tiered certification with four levels – starting at Level I, for those serving as entry level SARCs and SAPR VAs, and going through Level IV, representing those with eight or more years of service to victims.

The National Organization for Victim Assistance (NOVA) administers the D-SAACP through a contract with DoD SAPRO. NOVA's organization encompasses a network of over 14,000 crime and crisis victim assistance professionals dedicated to competent, committed, and compassionate service.

A NOVA review committee comprised of civilian sexual assault victim advocacy experts confirms each application meets the certification requirements. Certification is valid for two years, after which certified SARCs and SAPR VAs can reapply with updated letters of recommendation, memoranda of evaluation of experience, and proof of 32 hours of required continuing education, among other requirements. In coordination with the D-SAACP, DSAID access is now restricted to SARCs certified through the D-SAACP.

D-SAACP will continue to certify qualified SARCs and SAPR VAs through FY14 and beyond. The certification of SARCs and SAPR VAs enhances the quality of support victims receive, professionalizes the role of victim advocacy, and encourages the development of victim advocacy expertise throughout the Department. Given the successful implementation of this program, Service members can be confident they have access to professional victim advocates and that all survivors will be treated with dignity and respect throughout their recovery and the justice process.

Developed an Advanced Training Course for Certified SARCs and SAPR VAs

DoD SAPRO and the Military Services collaborated with the DOJ Office of Justice Programs (OJP), Office for Victims of Crimes (OVC) during FY13 to develop an advanced training course for SARCs and SAPR VAs. The 20-hour online course, called “Advanced Military Sexual Assault Advocate Training (AMSAAT),” provides advanced sexual assault victim advocacy skills training by leveraging gaming technology to produce an interactive, online environment designed specifically for a military audience. This training will be housed at OVC. Course participation authorization will be limited to D-SAACP-certified SARCs and SAPR VAs as the course is intended to expand upon skills learned during initial training.

The AMSAAT curriculum is based on OVC Training and Technical Assistance Center (TTAC) learning development best practices and DoD policy, and incorporates key elements of the DoD’s SARC and SAPR VA Training Competencies Framework (see “Improved Victim Services: Developed Standardized Core Competencies and Learning Objectives Specifically for SARCs and SAPR VAs,” below). In particular, course participants will learn how to better comprehend a survivor’s perspective; understand the intricacies in his/her role as an advocate for victims of sexual assault in a military setting; provide crisis management support in complex or particularly sensitive cases; fully understand the ethical implications of an advocacy role; and train other Service members for sexual assault awareness.

The course will provide an advanced training option for SARCs and SAPR VAs that counts toward the DoD certification requirement for continuing education credits. AMSAAT is scheduled to launch in FY14.

Developed Standardized Core Competencies and Learning Objectives Specifically for SARCs and SAPR VAs

DoD SAPRO, in conjunction with the Military Services, developed standardized core competencies and learning objectives specifically for SARCs and SAPR VAs in FY13. Each core competency is based upon mandates from DoDI 6495.02 and incorporates the D-SAACP framework. DoDI 6495.02 requires that SAPR training leverages adult learning theory, which includes interaction and group participation.<sup>57</sup> DoDI 6495.02 also requires that SAPR VA training be scenario-based, interactive, and provide for instructor-critiqued role play wherein a trainee SAPR VA offers crisis intervention to a sexual assault victim.<sup>58</sup> The SARC and SAPR VA core competencies include:

- Apply the SAPR program to aid victims of sexual assault;
- Demonstrate awareness of the impact of sexual assault on victims;
- Respond to victim reports and manage crises effectively;
- Coordinate services and advocate for victims;

- Conduct prevention activities;
- Communicate effectively;
- Facilitate education and training;
- Uphold ethical standards; and
- Manage the SAPR program at the installation level.

Learning objectives are defined for each of the above core competencies. Considerations and recommendations applying adult learning theory concepts and learning strategies are also included for each of the nine core competencies.

The core competencies and learning objectives fulfill the requirements outlined in the guidance issued by the Acting USD(P&R) in September 2013 directing the Military Departments to implement standardized core competencies and learning objectives in courses conducted in FY14. The core competencies and learning objectives also meet the FY12 NDAA requirements (sections 584 and 585) that the Military Departments provide consistent SAPR training to all members of the Armed Forces and DoD civilian employees. The complete reference of core competencies and learning objectives for SARCs and SAPR VAs can be found at

Expanding SARC and SAPR VA Training on the Victim-Victim Advocate Privilege

The revised DoDI 6495.02 requires training for all SARCs and SAPR VAs on the implementation of MRE 514.<sup>59, 60</sup> MRE 514 provides a victim with the privilege to refuse to disclose and to prevent any other person from disclosing a confidential communication made between the victim and a SAPR VA, in a case arising under the UCMJ, if the communication was made for the purpose of facilitating advice or supportive assistance to the victim.<sup>61</sup> Training on the MRE 514 is included in the core competencies and learning objectives for SARCs and SAPR VAs. The protection of communications with an advocate allows for victims a greater opportunity to explore and better understand their options under the SAPR program.

Sustained the DoD Safe Helpline

The Department sustained and enhanced services delivered through the DoD Safe Helpline in FY13.<sup>62</sup> The DoD Safe Helpline is a confidential, anonymous crisis support service for Service members of the DoD community affected by sexual assault. Safe Helpline provides live, one-on-one expert advice and information. Available 24/7 globally, users can “click, call or text” for anonymous and confidential support.

When users visit the DoD Safe Helpline, the staff provides one-on-one tailored assistance and offers a variety of up-to-date service referrals for resources on and off military bases and installations. Service referrals include information for SARCs, along with military police, legal, medical, mental health, and spiritual military resources. The referral database also houses information for civilian affiliate rape crises centers and the Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA) resources for helpline users seeking information and crisis support away from the military response system.

Additionally, DoD SAPRO collaborated with the Department of Labor (DOL) and the DVA to enhance resources for transitioning Service members (TSMs). Leveraging the Safe Helpline's existing infrastructure, the Department presents to TSMs clear and easily accessible information on counseling, benefits determinations, transitions, and employment. This enables TSMs to access those resources provided by DOL and DVA for long-term support upon leaving the military. By bridging the gap from the DoD to these resources, the Department provides a continuum of care to Service members as they transition to veteran status.

The DoD Safe Helpline is administered by the Department via a contract with the non-profit Rape, Abuse & Incest National Network (RAINN). Safe Helpline is staffed by approximately eighty personnel who work from RAINN's office in Washington, DC. Safe Helpline staff complete 70 hours of training on sexual assault crises intervention, neurobiology of trauma, and the military.<sup>63</sup> They also participate in monthly in-service trainings and receive clinical supervision and ongoing support from professional supervisors. Safe Helpline staff must undergo criminal background checks to be eligible for employment.

In FY13, over 130,000 people received information at the DoD Safe Helpline website and 7,429 people were helped through a live chat, telephone session, or texting service.

In FY13, DoD SAPRO was awarded the American Telemedicine Association's 2013 President's Award for Innovation for the DoD Safe Helpline Mobile Application, the nation's first sexual assault response application (app).<sup>64</sup> The American Telemedicine Association gives the award to the most novel use of technology leading to innovative health applications and social services support. The app allows Service members transitioning to civilian life to have access to critical resources that assists in managing the short and long-term effects of sexual assault. The app contains the option for users to record their current emotional state and create tailored self-care plans to address sadness, hopelessness, and feelings of disconnectedness. App users can communicate with live sexual assault response professionals via phone or anonymous online chat from their mobile devices for support. Users can also navigate resources (e.g., disability assistance, medical benefits, housing help, and employment assistance), or search for resources near their base or installation. The app is available free to DoD personnel. Since inception, the app has been downloaded 3,783 times.

Expanded the DoD Safe Helpline

In response to a need for peer support services identified by users of the Safe Helpline, the Department augmented the Safe Helpline to include the Safe HelpRoom, the nation's first secure, moderated peer-to-peer support forum. Launched in FY13, the Safe HelpRoom hosts twice weekly group chat sessions during which survivors can connect with and support one another in a moderated and secure online environment. Since inception, 52 sessions have been hosted at SafeHelpline.org.

Access to peer support helps survivors to feel less lonely, isolated or judged. Extensive research shows that speaking with peers can lead to improved coping skills, a greater sense of adjustment and reduced stress, depression, and anxiety. Survivors report that they appreciate practical advice and information about coping options from peers. Offering an online forum helps overcome barriers to assistance some victims face, given that it is free, anonymous, and available anywhere via the Internet.

While not intended to replace counseling, the Safe HelpRoom contributes to the Department's efforts to provide a continuum of high quality services for victims. It is completely anonymous; it does not track IP addresses and complies with rules that prohibit the sharing of personally identifiable information.

Collaborated with Civilian Community Victim Advocates for Holistic Victim Care

"Strengthening Military-Civilian Community Partnerships to Respond to Sexual Assault" is an interactive two-day training that encourages civilian rape crises centers to establish partnerships with local military installations in order to more effectively respond to the needs of sexual assault victims in the military. The course development was a collaborative effort between the DOJ, OJP, OVC, the Pennsylvania Coalition Against Rape (PCAR), Military Services, and DoD SAPRO. The training was initially developed by PCAR with grant funding by OVC and has been expanded over the last three years by OVC.

In FY13, OVC TTAC revised and updated the training materials, conducted train-the-trainers event in Washington, DC to develop a cadre of 50 local victim advocates to present the training program in communities across the United States, and conducted three initial regional trainings in areas near military installations (San Diego, CA; Columbia, SC; and Salemburg, NC).

This training provides civilian rape crises centers with knowledge of military culture, response protocol, and installation support for military members, and supports the establishment of partnerships with local military installations. This initiative also supports a DTF-SAMS recommendation (Engage with Community Organizations) to strengthen civilian partnerships and promotes the awareness of the DoD Safe Helpline.<sup>65</sup>

Provided Recovery Care Coordinator Training

During FY13, DoD SAPRO continued to provide quarterly training to Recovery Care Coordinators (RCC).<sup>66</sup> DoD SAPRO training for RCCs introduces sexual assault reporting options and emphasizes the importance of connecting Service members with a SARC when it appears the Service member wants to discuss a past sexual assault. During FY14, DoD SAPRO will work on an online training program for RCCs who are unable to attend the in-person training prior to working in the field.

Always Consider the Voices of Victims: Survivor Forums

The DoD SAPRO Director held two Survivor Forums in FY13. The dual purposes of the Survivor Forums are to gain a heightened understanding of victim experiences and treatment in military units and to better understand the investigative, accountability, and advocacy response systems from a victim's perspective. The DoD SAPRO Director spoke individual volunteer victims, male and female, commissioned officer and enlisted. The sexual assaults experienced by the survivors were all Unrestricted Reports and represented crimes ranging from rape to abusive sexual contact.

The insights gained from the DoD SAPRO Director's personal conversations with sexual assault survivors allows DoD SAPRO to better assess the impact of the SAPR program on individuals and to evaluate possibilities for program and policy improvements. Survivors said they chose to share their experiences with the DoD SAPRO Director because they want to help prevent others from being treated badly after reporting a sexual assault. The survivors left the forums knowing their voices were heard and that their input will be used to inform the Department's prevention and response efforts.

<sup>66</sup> The Recovery Coordination Program (RCP) provides the support of Recovery Care Coordinators (RCCs) to wounded, ill, and injured Service members to ensure they get the non-medical support they need to create the life they want. The Care Coordination Directorate of the Office of Warrior Care Policy is responsible for policy and oversight of the Recovery Coordination Program.

Established Metrics

As part of the effort to create metrics to measure improvements in SAPR programming under the FY13 DoD Strategic Plan, the Joint Chiefs approved several metrics that track victim reporting and support. These metrics are illustrated and explained in Figures 15 to 19.

LINE OF EFFORT 5: ASSESSMENT PROGRAMS AND INITIATIVES

The fifth line of effort in the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan is Assessment. The Department aims to effectively standardize measure, analyze, assess, and report program successes. Assessment is an enduring process of data collection and analytics designed to improve program effectiveness, and is embedded within the four other lines of effort. The end state is to incorporate responsive, meaningful, and accurate systems of measurement and evaluation into every aspect of SAPR programs in order to determine their effectiveness.

The Department’s assessment programs, initiatives, and policy enhancements developed and implemented during FY13 are described below.

Established New Requirements for Command Climate Surveys

Section 572 of the FY13 NDAA mandated that the commander of each military unit, within 120 days of assuming command and at least annually thereafter while retaining command, conduct a climate survey for purposes of preventing and responding to sexual assaults in their unit. The DEOMI Organizational Climate Survey (DEOCS) includes an opportunity for members of the Armed Forces to express their opinions regarding the manner and extent to which their leaders, including commanders, handle organizational, EO, and EEO issues within a unit. In FY13, the DEOCS was expanded to include questions pertaining to sexual assault prevention and response.

In an effort to enhance commander accountability and improve insight into command climate, the Secretary of Defense directed in May 2013 that the results of the annual command climate surveys be provided to the next level up in the chain of command (within 30 days of receiving the results). Providing commanders the results of their subordinates' annual command climate surveys enhances accountability and improves insight into climate at every level of the chain of command.

The policy was implemented in July 2013 through a memorandum signed by the Acting USD(P&R) ("Command Climate Assessments"). By the end of the calendar year, the Military Departments and the NGB had published operating instructions and regulations implementing this requirement as follows:

- The Secretary of the Army published Army Directive 2013-29, Army Command Climate Assessments, on December 23, 2013 and is applicable to Active and Reserve forces.
- The Chief of Naval Operations issued NAVADMIN 336/13 message, Guidance on Command Climate Assessments on December 30, 2013, which is also applicable to Active and Reserve forces. This guidance identifies timelines within the parameters of DoD guidance and requires commanding officers to assess three of the following areas: survey results, record reviews, personal interviews, observations, or focus groups. This message also mandates that the DEOCS will be used to meet the climate survey requirement and Equal Opportunity Advisors/Program Managers will track and maintain oversight of the climate assessment process.
- The Marine Corps released MARADMIN 464/13 message Command Climate Assessments on September 17, 2013, directing changes to the command climate assessment program applicable to Active and Reserve forces. This directive specifies timelines that are within the parameters of DoD guidance and tasks commanders with ensuring all members administratively attached to their commands have the opportunity to participate in the assessment process. It also mandates that the DEOCS and the Marine Corps Command Climate Survey (MCCCS) be used and instructs commanding generals to track compliance.
- The Air Force Deputy Chief of Staff for Manpower, Personnel and Services (A1) released an e-mail message to Major Command Vice Commanders on July 31, 2013, providing the DoD guidance on command climate assessments for implementation within the Department of the Air Force. The Air Force followed up the email message with implementing instructions and processing procedures that identifies timelines within the parameters of DoD guidance. The message informs Air Force leadership of the transition from the Unit Climate Assessment (UCA) instrument to the DEOCS and that the EO offices are identified to conduct climate assessments for commanders.
- The Chief, NGB issued a policy memorandum, National Guard Command Climate Assessment Policy, on November 19, 2013, directing the NGB to implement DoD command climate assessment guidance. This policy specifies timelines that are within the parameters of DoD guidance.

Tracked Command Climate Survey Results

In FY12, DoD SAPRO worked with DEOMI to develop questions to help assess SAPR climate for unit commanders. A number of measurements were tracked in FY13 on data available at that time.<sup>67</sup>

A total of 1,562,897 respondents completed the SAPR questions on the DEOCS and Air Force UCA from the beginning of data collection (2 March 2012) through the end of the period analyzed (23 December 2013). Of these 1,562,897 respondents:

- 473,345 responded during the 2012 Baseline
- 430,873 responded during FY13 Quarter (Q)3
- 384,216 responded during FY13 Q4, and
- 274,463 responded during FY14 Q1.

In samples of this size, small differences may be statistically significant but not practically significant.<sup>68</sup> Therefore, DEOMI analysts created subsets of the dataset to test for mean differences between the FY13 Q4 and FY14 Q1 datasets. For this trend analysis, analysts selected to sample approximately 10 percent of the data in order to reduce the probability that significant results are not practically significant. A resulting total of 38,652 cases were randomly selected from the FY13 Q4 dataset and 27,588 cases were randomly selected from the FY14 Q1 dataset. The table below displays the demographic composition of all four random samples included in the trend graphs that follow.

Perceptions of Leadership Support. The survey included two questions regarding the perceptions of leadership support for sexual assault prevention and response. A five-point Likert scale ranging from “Strongly Agree” (5) to “Strongly Disagree” (1) was used for the perception of leadership support for sexual assault prevention and response items. Items are coded such that a high score indicates a more favorable climate. These item stems are listed below:

<sup>67</sup> Data is not available for Q1 and Q2 in FY13 due to a contract dispute that interfered with the collection and analysis of DEOCS results. Quarter 1, FY14 data was included to help provide additional content and evidence of progress. Caution should be taken in interpreting DEOCS results. The DEOCS uses a convenience sample, meaning that it is only valid for the individuals to whom the survey was administered at the time identified. As a result, the information presented cannot be reliably “trended” and may not be representative of the DoD as a whole.

1. My leadership promotes a climate that is free of sexual assault.
2. My leadership would respond appropriately in the event a sexual assault was reported.

Of the individuals who took the DEOCS, officers reported higher perceptions of leadership support for SAPR than did enlisted members (Figure 20). Men reported higher perceptions of leadership support for SAPR than women (Figure 21).

Perceptions of Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault. The survey includes one question regarding “Perceptions of Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault.” This item is listed below along with the response options that identify ten potential barriers and an option to select “none of the above.”

- Which of the following would be reasons why a victim of sexual assault would not report the incident within your unit (Mark all that apply):
  - Lack of privacy/confidentiality
  - Stigma, shame, fear
  - Fear of being reduced in the eyes of the commander or colleagues
  - Fear of disciplinary action due to victim’s misconduct
  - Fear of re-victimization
  - Fear of operational impacts on training, security clearances, and overseas deployments
  - Not knowing how to report
  - Not thinking anything would be done
  - Not wanting to get fellow Service members (e.g., perpetrator, bystanders) in trouble for actions or collateral misconduct
  - Concern Victim Advocate (VA) will not keep restricted report confidential
  - None of the above, sexual assaults would be reported

The percentages shown represent the proportion of respondents that perceived no barriers to reporting sexual assault within their units. A higher percentage means that fewer barriers to reporting were perceived by those surveyed. Surveyed officers perceived fewer barriers to reporting than did enlisted members who were surveyed (Figure 22). Men surveyed perceived fewer barriers to reporting than did women who were surveyed (Figure 23).

Bystander Intervention Climate. The survey includes two Bystander Intervention Climate questions. These items are listed below. One item is situation-based and asks respondents to indicate which action they would take if in a given situation. The second item presents respondents with a scenario and asks at which point they would most likely intervene if they witnessed the escalating situation.

- Suppose you see a Service member put something in a person's drink. You're unsure what it was and question if your eyes were playing tricks on you. What are you most likely to do in this kind of situation?
  - Nothing
  - Leave to avoid any kind of trouble
  - Watch the situation to see if it escalates
  - Tell the person what you saw the Service member do
  - Confront the Service member
- Imagine you go TDY for some training. The first night you go to a restaurant/bar with a large group of colleagues, whom you just met. At what point would you intervene in the following escalating situation?
  - A senior leader at the training buys your colleague a drink and he/she is told a drink may never be refused, as doing so would go against tradition
  - The senior leader buys your colleague a second and third drink despite his/her repeated objections
  - Your colleague appears intoxicated and disoriented, and continues to be the senior leader's main focus of attention
  - The senior leader repeatedly hugs your colleague, rubs his/her shoulders, and offers to walk him/her back to quarters
  - You see the senior leader quietly taking your intoxicated colleague out of the place
  - As they leave, your colleague tries to push away the senior leader and says, "no"
  - In this scenario, I would not intervene at any point

The "Bystander Intervention Climate" questions are scored by combining responses to create a composite score. The composite score is coded such that a high score indicates a more favorable climate for Bystander Intervention by the individuals surveyed. These scores reflect the collective intentions of the individuals surveyed. This means as a whole, the responses from the individuals in the groups scoring more highly selected an earlier or more assertive intervention in the given situations. Junior enlisted members scored lower than the other rank groups on Bystander Intervention Climate (Figure 24). Males scored lower than females (Figure 25).

Knowledge of Sexual Assault Reporting Options. The survey includes one item regarding respondent’s Knowledge of Sexual Assault Reporting Options. Response options are “true” or “false,” with “true” being the correct answer. The item is listed below.

A restricted report allows a Service member to report a sexual assault and get help, but without notifying command or criminal investigators. (True)

The following figures depict percentages of correct responses to the Knowledge of Sexual Assault Reporting Options question across the DoD of those surveyed by demographic variables as collected by the DEOCS and Air Force UCA. ### Elevated Sexual Assault Incident Oversight by Requiring Incident Oversight Reports to be Taken to GO/FO

In August 2013, the Secretary of Defense directed the Acting USD(P&R) to develop policy, standardized across the Military Services, that requires status reports of unrestricted sexual assault allegations and actions taken to the first GO/FO within the chain of command, without delaying reporting to the relevant MCIO. DoD SAPRO drafted a Directive-Type Memorandum (DTM) outlining this requirement, titled “Sexual Assault Incident Report Oversight (SAIRO),” that will be coordinated with the Military Services in FY14.

Maintained and Refined DSAID

The FY09 NDAA directed the DoD to develop a centralized, case-level database for the collection and maintenance of information regarding sexual assaults involving a member of the Armed Forces. The database is called the DSAID. DSAID enhances a SARC’s ability to provide comprehensive and standardized victim case management. DSAID also enables DoD to meet Congressional reporting requirements and conduct improved oversight of case management.<sup>69</sup> DSAID was implemented in FY12 for the Air Force and NGB. It became fully operational by the beginning of FY13, with the integration of all Military Services and the NGB either entering data manually or electronically interfacing with an existing Service system.

During FY13, DoD SAPRO continued the development and refinement of DSAID to establish it as the system of record to populate the FY14 DoD Annual Report on Sexual Assault in the Military. During FY13, the following accomplishments were made with regards to DSAID:

- Achieved acquisition full deployment, having completed all compliance processes to successfully acquire and deploy an information technology system;
- Completed integration of the Department of Navy's Consolidated Law Enforcement Operations Center (CLEOC) system;
- Enhanced the expedited transfer functionality to capture more information and allow for the tracking of multiple transfers;
- Modified functionality for SARCs to upload a DD Form 2910 for Unrestricted Reports, thus enhancing access to documentation to assist victims in obtaining a record copy of the form;
- Implemented a reporting functionality for Service SAPR Program Managers, to include quarterly and annual reports, Military Service Academy (MSA) reports, and real-time standard reports;
- Implemented a web based, self-guided training solution for SARCs and SAPR PMs consisting of simulations demonstrating DSAID's capabilities;
- Included D-SAACP certification information for SARC and SAPR VA profiles to track certification status;<sup>70</sup>
- Added a case synopsis module to ease the documentation of subject case disposition, military justice outcomes, and punishments, as appropriate; and
- Began implementation of an interface with Army's Criminal Investigation/Intelligence System (ACI<sup>2</sup>) to capture sexual assault investigative data, rendering DSAID as the enterprise solution for the Department (will be completed in the second quarter of FY14).

In accordance with the section 563 of the FY09 NDAA, the Department has met all required mandates for database development. The Department has also adhered to the revised delivery timeline while providing bi-annual status updates detailing implementation progress of DSAID. The Department has also certified DSAID for compliance with all security requirements and is accredited for operation by the Designated Approval Authority Representative.

DoD SAPRO continues to enhance DSAID according to internal and external requirements, while collaborating with the system developer and the Military Services throughout the full system development lifecycle, in accordance with industry best practices. The Department will continue to work with the Military Services to refine the process and gain greater data integrity.

Developing New Measures of Assessment: Metrics

A key objective of the Department's SAPR program is to report program progress in preventing sexual assault and caring for victims. Historically, SAPR statistics, data trends, and measures of program effectiveness have been collected and assessed annually with the Military Services and the JCS. The statistics and analysis of reports have been presented in this annual report, which also support reporting on sexual assault-related policy and program improvements.

The DoD SAPR Strategic Plan directs the development of a set of metrics that measure SAPR program effectiveness on a more frequent basis than the Annual Report. Throughout FY13, DoD SAPRO worked with the Military Services to develop a set of metrics to assess the effectiveness of our programs in prevention, accountability, investigations, advocacy/victim assistance, and assessment. The metrics are referred to as SAPR Metrics 1.0.

SAPR Metrics 1.0 consists of six, Military Service-validated data points that measure trends and capture snapshots of programs and initiatives. The trends measured include:

- Metric 1 – Reports of Sexual Assault;
- Metric 2 – Military Victim Reports Per 1000 Service Members;
- Metric 3 – Percentage of Sexual Assault Reports for Incidents Occurring Prior to Service; and
- Metric 4 – Voluntary Conversions from Restricted to Unrestricted Reports.

The snapshots captured in SAPR Metrics 1.0 include:

- Metric 5 – Investigation Length; and
- Metric 6 – Full Time SAPR Personnel<sup>71</sup> Certification.

The data originate from the following sources:

- DSAID;
- DEOCS;
- DMDC's Workplace and Gender Relations Surveys (WGR);
- MCIO Reports of Investigation; and
- Reports of Trial and other military justice data sources.

Many of these sources have also historically been used to assess program progress annually in this report, and will be relied upon to measure SAPR program effectiveness on a more frequent basis as appropriate.

DoD SAPRO coordinated with the White House, the JCS, and the Military Services to gain consensus on the data points and resources used to assess progress. The DoD will continue to refine and develop additional metrics and transparently report the findings. The official FY13 data for the six metrics have been embedded in Investigation (Metric 5) and Advocacy/Victim Assistance (Metrics 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5) sections of this report.

Harmonized Survey Methodologies

During FY13, DoD SAPRO conducted a collaborative effort with the Joint Staff and the Military Services to harmonize survey methodologies, frequency, and key metrics. Since 2006, the Department has conducted the Workplace and Gender Relations Survey of Active Duty Members (WGRA). The WGRA is the primary instrument the DoD uses to assess the prevalence, or occurrence, of sexual assault and sexual harassment in the military over a year's time. The WGRA also measures some of the Department's progress and victim satisfaction. The WGRA has been conducted in 2006, 2010, and 2012. Beginning in FY14, DoD will conduct the WGRA every two years as mandated by section 481 of title 10 U.S. Code.<sup>72,73</sup> In accordance with the Congressional mandate, the WGRA results set the statistical standard in these areas for the Department on a biennial basis. In odd years, the Military Services will conduct, at their discretion, their own surveys, focus groups, and program assessments to measure progress of their respective SAPR programs.

STATISTICAL DATA ON SEXUAL ASSAULT

BACKGROUND ON DoD SEXUAL ASSAULT DATA

What It Captures

Reports of Sexual Assault

- The Department uses the term “sexual assault” to refer to a range of crimes, including rape, sexual assault, nonconsensual sodomy, aggravated sexual contact, abusive sexual contact, and attempts to commit these offenses, as defined by the UCMJ. When a report is listed under a crime category, it means the crime was the most serious of the infractions alleged by the victim or investigated by investigators. It does not necessarily reflect the final findings of the investigators or the crime(s) addressed by court-martial charges or some other form of disciplinary or administrative action against a subject.
- Pursuant to reporting requirements levied by Congress, DoD sexual assault data captures the Unrestricted and Restricted Reports of sexual assault made to the Department during an FY that involves a military subject and/or a military victim.
- In the context of the DoD statistics that follow, an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault is an allegation by one or more victims against one or more alleged offenders (referred to in the Department as “subjects of investigation” or “subjects”) that will be referred to and investigated by an MCIO (CID, NCIS, or AFOSI). The number of Unrestricted Reports is based on data received from the MCIOs.
- Data on Restricted Reports is limited because these are reports of sexual assault made to specified parties within the Department (that is, SARC, SAPR VA, or healthcare provider) that allow the report to remain confidential and the victim to seek care and services. Given the victim’s desire for confidentiality, these reports are not investigated and victims are not required to provide many details about these sexual assaults. As a result, only data about the victim and the offense is recorded. Alleged subject identities in Restricted Reports are not requested or maintained by the Department.
- The Department’s sexual assault reporting statistics include data about contact sexual crimes by adults against adults, as defined in Articles 120 and 125 of the UCMJ and Article 80, attempts to commit these offenses. This data does not include sexual assaults between spouses or intimate partners that fall under the purview of DoD Family Advocacy Program (FAP), nor does this data include sexual harassment which falls under the purview of EO. While most victims and subjects in the following data are aged 18 or older, DoD statistics also capture some victims and subjects aged 16 and 17. Service members who are approved for early enlistment prior to age 18 are included in this category. Because the age of consent under the UCMJ is 16 years, military and civilian victims aged 16 and older who do not fall under FAP are included as well.
- The number of sexual assaults reported to DoD authorities in FY13 does not necessarily reflect the number of sexual assaults that occurred in FY13.

- Civilian research indicates victims only report a small fraction of sexual assaults to law enforcement. For example, of the 1.1 million U.S. civilian women estimated to have experienced nonconsensual vaginal, oral, or anal penetration in 2005, only about 173,800 (16 percent) said they reported the matter to police. For the estimated 673,000 U.S. civilian college-aged women who experienced nonconsensual vaginal, oral, or anal penetration, only about 77,395 (11.5 percent) indicated they reported it to the police.<sup>74</sup> The definition of sexual assault used in this college sample refers to penetrating crimes only. Consequently, it captures fewer crimes than the DoD definition of sexual assault, which encompasses both penetrating and non-penetrating sexual offenses, and attempts to commit these offenses.
- This civilian reporting behavior is mirrored in the U.S. Armed Forces. Over the past seven years, the Department estimates that fewer than 20 percent of military sexual assault victims report the matter to a military authority.

Subject Dispositions

Once the investigation of an Unrestricted Report is complete, Congress requires the Military Services to provide the outcome of the allegations against each subject named in an investigation. These are called “subject dispositions.”

- The Department holds those Service members who have committed sexual assault appropriately accountable based on the available evidence.
  - Legal authority for the Department is generally limited to Service members who are subject to the UCMJ and, therefore, its military justice jurisdiction. Except in rare circumstances, a civilian is not subject to the UCMJ for the purpose of court-martial jurisdiction or other military justice discipline. In FY13, there were no such civilians tried by a court-martial for allegedly perpetrating sexual assault.
- Each year, the Department lacks jurisdiction over several hundred subjects in its investigations. These are the civilians, foreign nationals, and unidentified subjects who are reported to have sexually assaulted Service members.
- Local civilian authorities in the United States and our host nations overseas hold primary responsibility for prosecuting U.S. civilians and foreign nationals, respectively, for perpetrating sexual assault against Service members.
- In a number of cases each year, a civilian authority or host nation will assert its legal authority over a Service member. This typically occurs when Service members are accused of sexually assaulting a civilian or foreign national.
- A civilian authority, such as a state, county, or municipality, may prosecute Service members anytime they commit an offense within its jurisdiction. In some cases, the civilian authority may agree to let the military exercise its UCMJ jurisdiction over its members. Service member prosecutions by civilian authorities are made on a case-by-case and jurisdiction-by-jurisdiction basis.

- A host nation's ability to prosecute a Service member is subject to the Status of Forces Agreement (SOFA) between the United States and the foreign government. SOFAs vary from country to country.
- Upon completion of a criminal investigation, the MCIO conducting the investigation provides a report documenting its evidentiary findings to the subject's military commander and the servicing staff judge advocate for review and legal action, as appropriate. However, for the crimes of rape, sexual assault, nonconsensual sodomy, and attempts to commit these crimes, a convening authority who is at least a special court-martial convening authority and in the grade of O-6 (colonel or Navy captain) or higher retains initial disposition authority.
  - The special court-martial convening authority is responsible for determining what initial disposition action is appropriate, to include whether further action is warranted and, if so, whether the matter should be resolved by court-martial, nonjudicial punishment, or adverse administrative action. The special court-martial convening authority's initial disposition decision is based upon his or her review of the matters transmitted, any independent review, and consultation with a judge advocate. Subordinate unit commanders may provide their own recommendations regarding initial disposition to the convening authority.
    - Commanders at all levels of responsibility do not make disposition decisions by themselves. Military attorneys assist commanders in identifying the charges that can be made, the appropriate means of addressing such charges, and the punishments that can be administered if supported by the evidence.
    - There are many cases each year when disciplinary action is not possible due to legal issues or evidentiary problems with a case. For example, a commander may be precluded from taking disciplinary action against an alleged offender when the investigation fails to show sufficient evidence of an offense to prosecute or when the victim declines to participate in the justice process.
    - In the data that follows, when more than one disposition action is involved (for example, when nonjudicial punishment is followed by an administrative discharge), subject disposition is only reported once per subject. This is done according to the most serious disciplinary action taken, which in descending order is preferral of court-martial charges, nonjudicial punishment, administrative discharge, and other adverse administrative action.

Who It Describes

- Unrestricted and Restricted Reports capture sexual assaults committed by and against Service members. However, people outside of the U.S. Armed Forces sometimes commit sexual assault against a Service member or can be sexually assaulted by a Service member. Information describing these victims and subjects is also included in the following statistics.
- An Unrestricted Report of sexual assault can include one or more victims, one or more subjects, and one or more crimes. The configuration of Unrestricted

Reports is determined by the MCIOs, as they are the primary source of Unrestricted Reporting information. Therefore, the number of Unrestricted Reports received in a given year does not usually equal the number of victims or the number of subjects in those reports.<sup>75</sup>

- Restricted Reports, by policy, only involve one victim per reported incident.
  - No Personally Identifying Information is maintained for alleged subjects.
  - Subsequent to a change in DoD policy through the reissuance of DoDD 6495.01 in January 2012, military dependents (aged 18 and over) may now make Restricted Reports of sexual assault. By law, the statistics provided to Congress are limited to those reports of sexual assault that involve Service members as either a victim or a subject. Consequently, Restricted Reports by adult military dependents alleged to involve a Service member (other than spouse or intimate partner) as the offender are now included in the Department's annual statistics. Restricted Reports by adult military dependents that did not involve a Service member are recorded but not included in statistical analyses or reporting demographics.
- Demographic information on victims and subjects is only drawn from completed investigations of Unrestricted Reports and from SARC records of victims in Restricted Reports.

When It Happened

- The information in this report is drawn from sexual assault reports made to the Military Services during FY13 (October 1, 2012, to September 30, 2013).
- The data that follows is a snapshot in time. In other words, the following information describes the status of sexual assault reports, investigations, and subject dispositions on September 30, 2013 (the last day of FY13).
  - Many investigations extend across FYs. For example, it often takes several months to investigate a report of sexual assault. As a result, those investigations that were opened toward the end of the FY typically carry over to the next FY.
  - Subject dispositions can also extend across FYs. As a result, a substantial portion of dispositions are “pending” or not yet reported at the end of the year. The Department tracks these pending dispositions and requires the Military Services to report on them in subsequent years' reports.
  - Under the Department's SAPR policy, there is no time limit as to when someone can report a sexual assault to a Department authority. Consequently, in any given year, the Department may not only receive reports about incidents that occurred during the current year, but also incidents that occurred in previous years.
- Reports are also sometimes made for sexual assaults that occurred prior to a Service member's enlistment or commissioning. When this occurs, the Department provides care and services to the victim, but may not be able to punish the offender if he or she is not subject to military law. At the victim's request, Department authorities may assist the victim in contacting the appropriate civilian or foreign law enforcement agency.

<sup>75</sup> This approach will change in FY14 (October 1, 2013 to September 30, 2014), when DSAID becomes the system of record for reporting sexual assaults by and against Service members.

- The definition of "sexual assault" in the UCMJ has changed several times over the last several years:
  - For incidents that occurred prior to the changes made to the UCMJ on October 1, 2007, the term "sexual assault" referred to the crimes of rape, nonconsensual sodomy, indecent assault, and attempts to commit these acts.
  - For incidents that occurred between October 1, 2007 and June 27, 2012, the term "sexual assault" referred to the crimes of rape, aggravated sexual assault, aggravated sexual contact, abusive sexual contact, wrongful sexual contact, nonconsensual sodomy, and attempts to commit these acts.
  - For incidents that occur on or after June 28, 2012, the term "sexual assault" refers to the crimes of rape, sexual assault, aggravated sexual contact, abusive sexual contact, nonconsensual sodomy, and attempts to commit these acts.

How It's Gathered

- Data about Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault reports is drawn from official investigations conducted by the MCIOs.
- SARCs collect data about Restricted Reports of sexual assault and forward it to the Military Service SAPR program offices.
- Each FY, the USD(P&R) submits a data call to the Military Departments to collect the required statistical and case synopsis data. DoD SAPRO aggregates and analyzes this data.

Why It's Collected

- Congress requires data about the number of sexual assault reports and the outcome of the allegations made against each subject.
- The Department also collects this data to inform SAPR policy, program development, and oversight.

OVERVIEW OF REPORTS OF SEXUAL ASSAULT MADE IN FY13

This section closely follows the flow chart shown in Exhibit 1. Points in the flow chart have been labeled with a letter that corresponds to the information in the text that follows.

In FY13, the Military Services received a total of 5,061 reports of sexual assault involving Service members as either victims or subjects (Exhibit 1, Point A, and Exhibit 2), which represents a 50 percent increase from the 3,374 reports made in FY12. It should be noted that while many of these reports may be about incidents that occurred in FY13, some incidents may have occurred in prior years. Of the 5,061 reports, 492 (or approximately 10 percent) were made for incidents that occurred prior to the victim entering military service.

How many sexual assault reports were made in FY13?
5,061 Reports
(3,768 Unrestricted Reports + 1,293 Reports Remaining Restricted)

- The Military Services received 3,768 Unrestricted Reports involving Service members as either victims or subjects (Exhibit 1, Point B, and Exhibit 2), a 47 percent increase from FY12. Of the 3,768 Unrestricted Reports, 106 (or 3 percent) were made for incidents that occurred prior to the victim entering military service.
- The Military Services initially received 1,501 Restricted Reports involving Service members as either victims or subjects, a 58 percent increase from FY12. Two-hundred eight (208) (14 percent) of the initial Restricted Reports later converted to Unrestricted Reports. These 208 converted Restricted Reports are now counted with the Unrestricted Reports. There were 1,293 reports remaining Restricted at the end of FY13 (Exhibit 1, Point C, and Exhibit 2). Of the 1,293 Reports Remaining Restricted, 386 (or 30 percent) were made for incidents that occurred prior to the victim entering military service. Per the victim’s request, the remaining Restricted Reports were confidential and not referred for investigation. No subject identities were officially recorded with Restricted Reports.

Exhibit 2: Total Reports of Sexual Assault Made to the Department — Unrestricted Reports and Restricted Reports, CY04–FY13

In the 5,061 reports received by the Department, there were a total of 5,518 victims, including 4,605 Service member victims of sexual assault (Exhibit 3). In FY13, 3,150 Service members made an Unrestricted Report and 191 Service members converted to an Unrestricted Report for a total of 3,341 Unrestricted Reports by Service members. One-thousand two-hundred sixty-four (1,264) Service members made and maintained Restricted Reports.

Research shows that reporting the crime is most victims' primary link to getting medical treatment and other forms of assistance.<sup>76</sup> The Department's SAPR policy encourages increased reporting of sexual assault, works to improve response capabilities for victims, and works with and encourages victims to willingly participate in the military justice process. This year, there was an unprecedented 50 percent increase in the reporting of sexual assault involving military members. Based on prior, past-year prevalence rates of sexual assault and other factors, the Department attributes this increase in reporting to more victims coming forward to report a crime, and may not be due to an overall increase in crime.

In 5,061 reports of sexual assault made in FY13, what was the total number of victims?
5,518 total victims

Why are there more victims than reports?
An Unrestricted Report of sexual assault can include one or more victims, one or more subjects, and one or more crimes. Therefore, the number of Unrestricted Reports received in a given year does not usually equal the number of victims or the number of subjects in those reports.

Of the 5,518 victims, how many were Service members?
In FY13, there were 4,605 Service member victims in sexual assault reports, however 4,113 Service members made a report for an incident that occurred to them while in military service.

Who were the other victims?
The remaining 913 victims were U.S. civilians, foreign nationals, and others who were not on Active Duty with the U.S. Armed Forces.

Exhibit 3 demonstrates the increase in the number of Service member victims making reports of sexual assault from Calendar Year (CY) 2004 to FY13. The reports were for incidents occurring to the member while in military service.

Exhibit 4 demonstrates the difference between the number of Service members who indicate experiencing USC on the WGRA, and the number of Service member victims in sexual assault reports. This “gap” in reporting narrowed this year, given the increase in reports of sexual assault. The Department assesses the increase in reports as unlikely to have resulted from increased crime, given historical prevalence rates and other factors.

The Department expects that the “gap” between the survey-estimated number of Service members experiencing USC and the number of Service members accounted for in actual sexual assault reports can be reduced in two ways:

- Over time, prevention initiatives are expected to reduce past year prevalence rates of USC, as measured by the WGRA. As rates decrease, the estimated number of Service members who experience USC in a given year should also decrease.
- Over time, initiatives that encourage victims to report and improve the military justice system are expected to increase the number of Service members who choose to make an Unrestricted or Restricted Report.

Although reports to DoD authorities are unlikely to account for all of USC estimated to occur in a given year, it is the Department’s intent to narrow this gap between prevalence and reporting in order to reduce the underreporting of sexual assault in the military community.

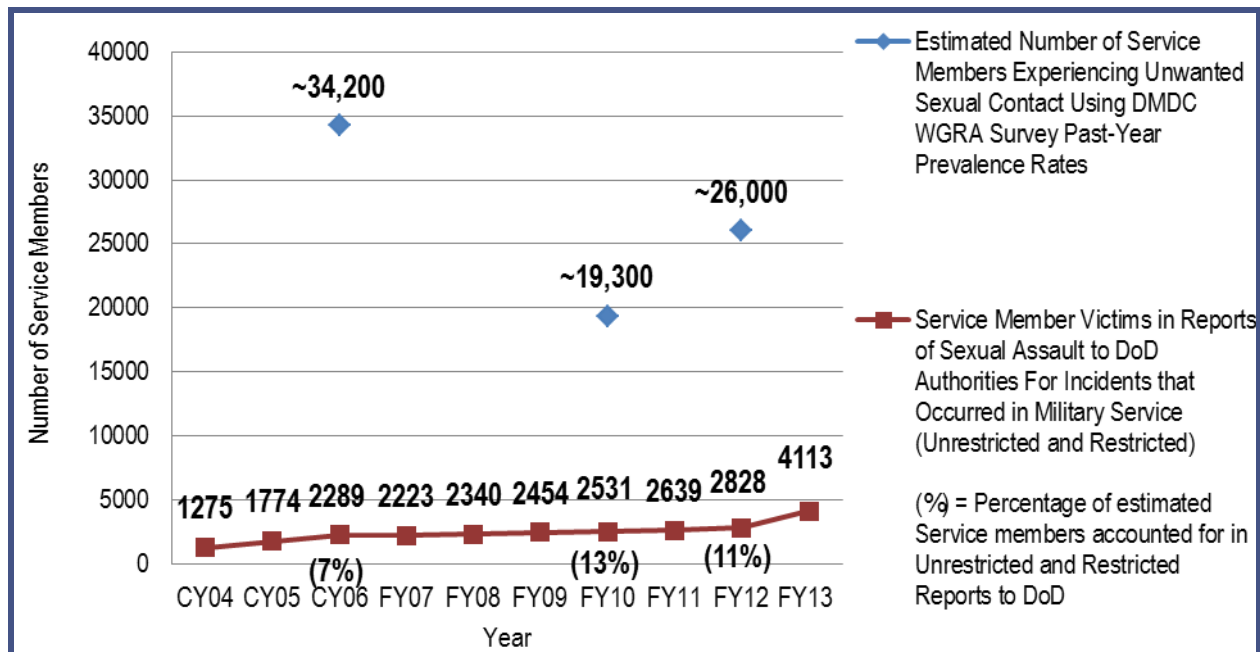

Exhibit 4: Estimated Service Members Experiencing Unwanted Sexual Contact Based on Past-Year Prevalence Rates vs. Number of Service Member Victims<sup>77</sup> in Reports of Sexual Assault Made During the Fiscal Year, for Incidents Occurring While in Military Service, CY04–FY13

Notes:

1. The 2,289 Service member victims in Unrestricted and Restricted Reports of sexual assault to DoD authorities in CY06 accounted for approximately 7 percent of the estimated number of Service members who may have experienced unwanted sexual contact (~34,200) that year, as calculated using data from the 2006 WGRA.
2. The 2,531 Service member victims in Unrestricted and Restricted Reports of sexual assault to DoD authorities in FY10 accounted for approximately 13 percent of the estimated number of Service members who may have experienced unwanted sexual contact (~19,300) that year, as calculated using data from the 2010 WGRA.
3. The 2,828 Service member victims in Unrestricted and Restricted Reports of sexual assault to DoD authorities in FY12 accounted for approximately 11 percent of the estimated number of Service members who may have experienced unwanted sexual contact (~26,000) that year, as calculated using data from the 2012 WGRA.

<sup>77</sup> This graph depicts the estimated number of Service members who experienced USC in the past year (based on WGRA past-year prevalence rates), versus the number of Service member victims in actual reports of sexual assault made to the DoD in the years indicated. Note that although 4,605 Service members were involved in sexual assault reports in FY13, 492 of them made a report for events that occurred prior to their entry into military service. This leaves 4,113 making a report for an incident that occurred during military service.

Exhibit 5 shows the rates of victim reporting by Military Service during the past seven FYs.

Note: Victim reporting rates are calculated using the number of Service member victims in Unrestricted and Restricted Reports and Active Duty Military Service end strength for each year on record with DMDC.

FY13 UNRESTRICTED REPORTS OF SEXUAL ASSAULT

Data from Unrestricted Reports is collected and reported to the Department by the MCIOs. In FY13, there were 3,768 Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault involving Service members as either the subject or victim of a sexual assault (Exhibit 1, Point B); 2,962 (79 percent) of the 3,768 Unrestricted Reports involved Service members as victims. Because some incidents involved multiple victims, 3,341 Service member victims were involved in these 2,962 Unrestricted Reports.

Why show a reporting rate?
A reporting rate allows for the comparison of reports across groups of different sizes. Reporting rates also allow for year after year comparisons, even when the total number of people in a group has changed.

Each year, the majority of sexual assault reports received by the MCIOs involve the victimization of Service members by other Service members. In FY13, 2,310 of the 3,768 Unrestricted Reports (61 percent) involved allegations of Service member-on-Service member sexual assault (Exhibit 6 and 7).

Exhibit 6 illustrates how Service members were involved in Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault received in FY13.

Exhibit 6: Unrestricted Reports of Sexual Assault by Service Member Involvement, FY13

Exhibit 7 illustrates how Service members have been involved in Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault over the past seven reporting periods.

Exhibit 7: Unrestricted Reports of Sexual Assault by Service Member Involvement, FY07–FY13

Crimes Alleged in Unrestricted Reports

In the 3,768 Unrestricted Reports made to the Department in FY13, the majority of offenses alleged were in three categories: rape; aggravated sexual assault/sexual assault; and abusive sexual contact. MCIOs categorize Unrestricted Reports by the most serious offense alleged in the report, which may not ultimately be the same offense for which evidence supports a misconduct charge, if any. Exhibit 8 shows the proportions of offenses as originally alleged in Unrestricted Reports in FY13.<sup>78</sup>

What crimes are alleged in most reports?
Most Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault involve three crimes: rape, aggravated sexual assault/sexual assault, and abusive sexual contact.

<sup>78</sup> The DoD SAPR program uses the term “sexual assault” to refer to the range of crimes in military law that constitute contact sexual offenses between adults. Since 2004, there have been three versions of Article 120, Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), which defines some of those crimes. Prior to FY08, the UCMJ offenses that constituted “sexual assault” were: Rape (Article 120), Nonconsensual Sodomy (Article 125), Indecent Assault (Article 134), and Attempts to commit these crimes (Article 80). From FY08 to June 27, 2012, the UCMJ offenses that constituted “sexual assault” were: Rape (Article 120), Aggravated Sexual Assault (Article 120), Aggravated Sexual Contact (Article 120), Abusive Sexual Contact (Article 120), Wrongful Sexual Contact (Article 120), Nonconsensual Sodomy (Article 125), and Attempts to commit these crimes (Article 80). Since June 28, 2012, the UCMJ offenses that constitute “sexual assault” are: Rape (Article 120), Sexual Assault (Article 120), Aggravated Sexual Contact (Article 120), Abusive Sexual Contact (Article 120), Nonconsensual Sodomy (Article 125), and Attempts to commit these crimes (Article 80). Note: Misconduct addressed by the offense “Aggravated Sexual Assault” became “Sexual Assault.” “Wrongful Sexual Contact” as a separate offense was eliminated. Misconduct previously addressed by “Wrongful Sexual Contact” is now captured by the offense “Abusive Sexual Contact.”

Table 3 shows the breakdown of Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault by offense originally alleged and the military status of the victim.

| Most Serious Offense Alleged in Report       | Total Unrestricted Reports | Number of Reports Involving Service Members as Victims | Number of Reports Involving Non-Service Members as Victims |

Investigations of Unrestricted Reports

According to DoD policy, all Unrestricted Reports must be referred for investigation by an MCIO. However, reports received for incidents prior to military service usually cannot be investigated when the alleged offender is not subject to military law. In FY13, MCIOs initiated 3,642 sexual assault investigations (Exhibit 1, Point D). The length of an investigation depends on a number of factors, including:

- The offense alleged;
- The location and availability of the victim, subject, and witnesses;
- The amount and type of physical evidence gathered during the investigation; and
- The length of time required for crime laboratory analysis of evidence.

Depending on these and other factors, investigation length may range from a few months to over a year. Consequently, sexual assault investigations and their outcomes can span multiple reporting periods. Of the 3,337 sexual assault investigations completed during FY13 (Exhibit 1, Point F), 2,182 were opened in FY13 and 1,155 were opened in years prior to FY13.

- The outcomes of 1,460 sexual assault investigations that were opened in FY13 but not completed by September 30, 2013, will be documented in future reports (Exhibit 1, Point E).

The MCIOs reported that 81 of the 3,592 subjects in investigations completed in FY13 had a previous investigation for a sexual assault allegation.

Sexual Assault Subject Dispositions in FY13

Congress requires the Department to report on the dispositions (outcomes) of the sexual assault allegations made against Service members. At the end of FY13, there were 3,858 subjects receiving or waiting for a disposition for the allegations against them at the close of FY13 (Exhibit 1, Point H).

The goals of a criminal investigation are to identify what crimes have been committed, who has been victimized, and who may be held accountable for the crime. The Department seeks to hold those Service members who have committed sexual assault appropriately accountable based on the available evidence. However, in order to comply with Congressional reporting requirements, the Department’s sexual assault data represents a 12-month snapshot in time. Consequently, at the end of FY13, 624 of the 3,858 subject dispositions were still in progress and will be reported in forthcoming years’ reports (Exhibit 1, Point I).

The 3,234 subjects from DoD investigations for whom dispositions were reported in FY13 included Service members, U.S. civilians, foreign nationals, and subjects that could not be identified (Exhibits 1 and 9, Point J).

A chief difference between the civilian and military legal systems is that in the civilian system, a prosecuting attorney may review the evidence and, if appropriate, file charges against all identified suspects within the attorney’s area of legal authority. However, for the vast majority of cases in the military justice system, commanders are limited to taking legal or disciplinary action against

Can the Department take action against everyone it investigates?

No. In FY13, the Department could not take action against 1,085 subjects because they were outside the Department’s legal authority, they could not be identified, or the allegations of sexual assault against them were unfounded.

only those Service members who are subject to the UCMJ. Each year, the Department lacks jurisdiction over several hundred subjects in its sexual assault investigations. In FY13, the Department could not consider taking action against 1,085 subjects because the allegations of sexual assault against them were unfounded or because they were outside the Department's legal authority (for example, they could not be identified, they were civilian or foreign nationals, they were being prosecuted by a civilian or foreign authority, or they had died or deserted).

When an MCIO makes a determination that available evidence indicates the individual accused of sexual assault did not commit the offense, or the offense was improperly reported or recorded as a sexual assault, the allegations against the subject are considered to be unfounded. As a result, no action is taken against the accused.

- Allegations against 437 subjects were unfounded (false or baseless) by an MCIO during FY13 (Exhibit 9, Point K).

The Department's legal authority extends only to those persons subject to the UCMJ. As a result, 503 subjects of DoD investigations fell outside its authority for disciplinary action:

- There were 289 subjects who remained unidentified despite a criminal investigation (Exhibit 9, Point L).
- The Department could not take action against 199 civilians or foreign nationals because they were not subject to military law (Exhibit 9, Point M).
- Fifteen (15) subjects died or deserted before disciplinary action could be taken against them (Exhibit 9, Point N).

While a Service member is always under the legal authority of the Department, sometimes a civilian authority or foreign government will exercise its legal authority over a Service member who is suspected of committing a crime within its jurisdiction. This year, a civilian or foreign authority addressed the alleged misconduct of 145 Service member subjects (Exhibit 9, Point O).

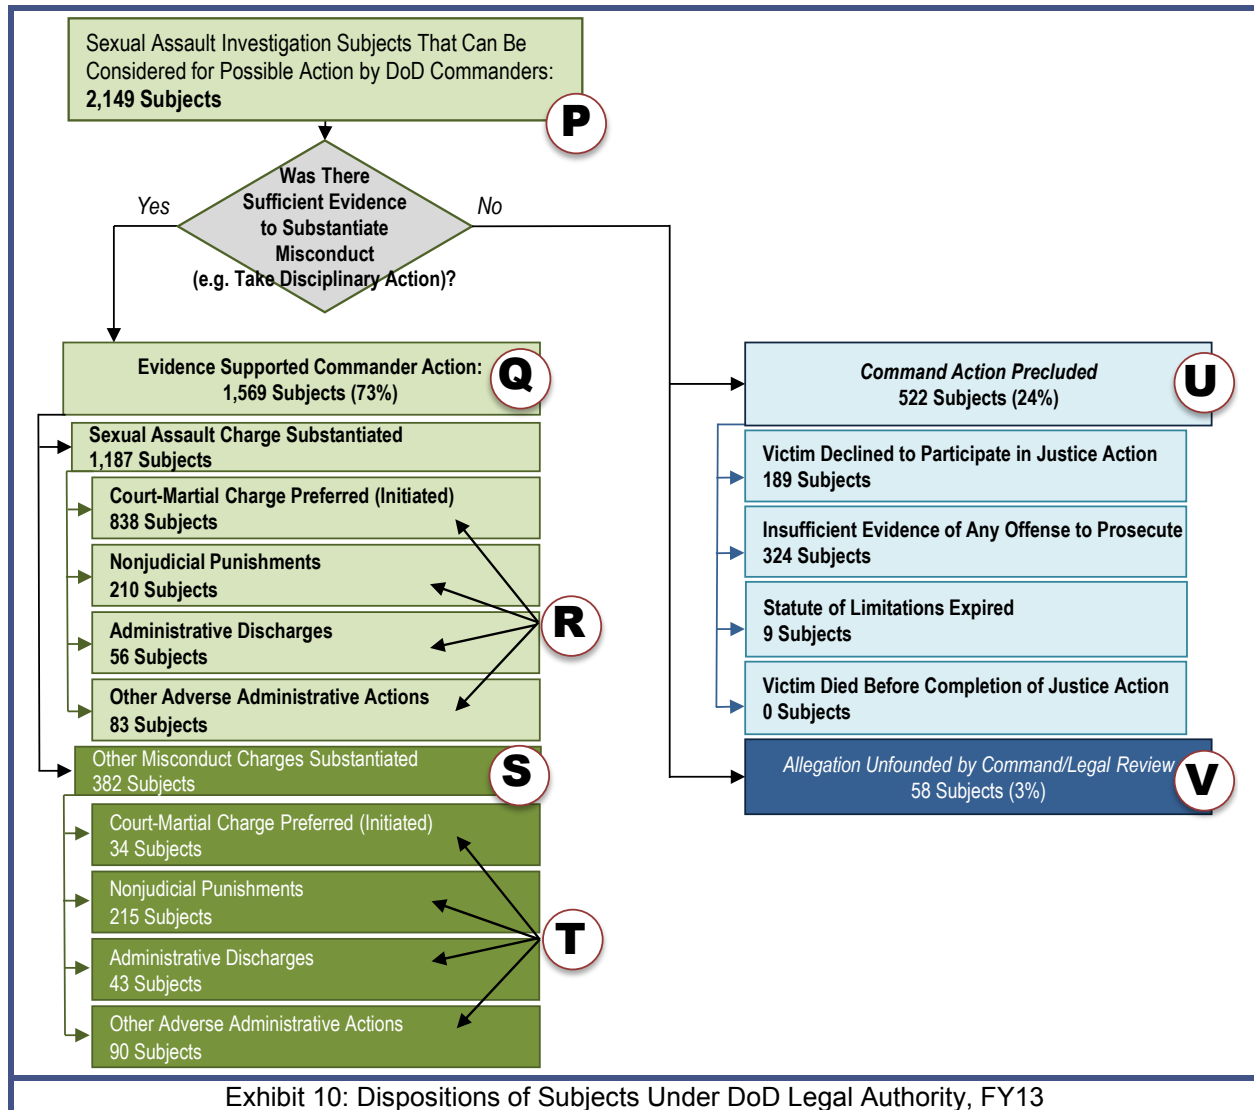

Exhibit 10: Dispositions of Subjects Under DoD Legal Authority, FY13

Military Subjects Considered for Disciplinary Action

In FY13, 2,149 subjects investigated for sexual assault were Service members under the legal authority of the Department (Exhibit 9 and 10, Point P and Table 4). However, legal factors sometimes prevent disciplinary action from being taken against some subjects. For example, commanders were unable to take disciplinary action against 522 of these military subjects because there was insufficient evidence of an offense to prosecute, the victim declined to participate in the military justice process, or the statute of limitations had expired (Exhibit 10, Point U and Table 4). In addition, commanders declined to take action against 58 military subjects because, after a review of the facts of the case with a military attorney, they determined the allegations against those subjects were unfounded (Exhibit 10, Point V and Table 4). Since FY07, the percentage of Service member subject for whom command action is precluded or declined has decreased. Exhibit 11A illustrates that DoD authorities were able to hold a larger percentage of Service member subjects appropriately accountable in FY13 than in FY07.

For 1,569 military subjects, commanders had sufficient evidence and the legal authority to support some form of disciplinary action for a sexual assault offense or other misconduct (Exhibit 10, Point Q and Table 4). When more than one disposition action has been involved, subject disposition is only reported once per subject. This is done according to the most serious disciplinary action taken, which in descending order is preferential of court-martial charges, nonjudicial punishment, administrative discharge, and other adverse administrative action.

The following represents the command actions taken for the 1,187 subjects for whom it was determined a sexual assault offense warranted discipline: 71 percent (838 subjects) had court-martial charges preferred (initiated) against them, 18 percent (210 subjects) were entered into proceedings for nonjudicial punishment under Article 15 of the UCMJ, and 12 percent (139 subjects) received a discharge or another adverse administrative action (Exhibit 10, Point R and Table 4).

What percentage of Service member subjects who received disciplinary action for sexual assault had court-martial charges preferred against them in FY13?
71 percent
In FY07, only 30 percent of subjects receiving disciplinary action had court-martial charges preferred against them.

For 382 subjects, evidence supported command action for other misconduct discovered during the sexual assault investigation (such as making a false official statement, adultery, underage drinking, or other crimes under the UCMJ), but not a sexual assault charge (Exhibit 10, Point S and Table 4). Of these 382 military subjects for whom probable cause existed only for a nonsexual assault offense: 9 percent (34 subjects) had court-martial charges preferred against them, 56 percent (215 subjects) were entered into proceedings for nonjudicial punishment, and 35 percent (133 subjects) received some form of adverse administrative action or discharge (Exhibit 10, Point T and Table 4).

Military Justice

The information that follows describes what happens once a military subject’s commander has found that there is sufficient evidence to take disciplinary action. Exhibit 11B shows that from FY07 to FY13, commanders’ referral of court-martial charges against military subjects for sexual assault offenses increased from 30 percent of subjects in FY07 to 71 percent of subjects in FY13. During the same period, reliance upon nonjudicial punishment, other adverse administrative actions, and administrative discharges decreased substantially.

Exhibit 11A: Percentage of Military Subjects with Misconduct Substantiated, Command Action Precluded, and Command Action Declined, FY09 to FY13

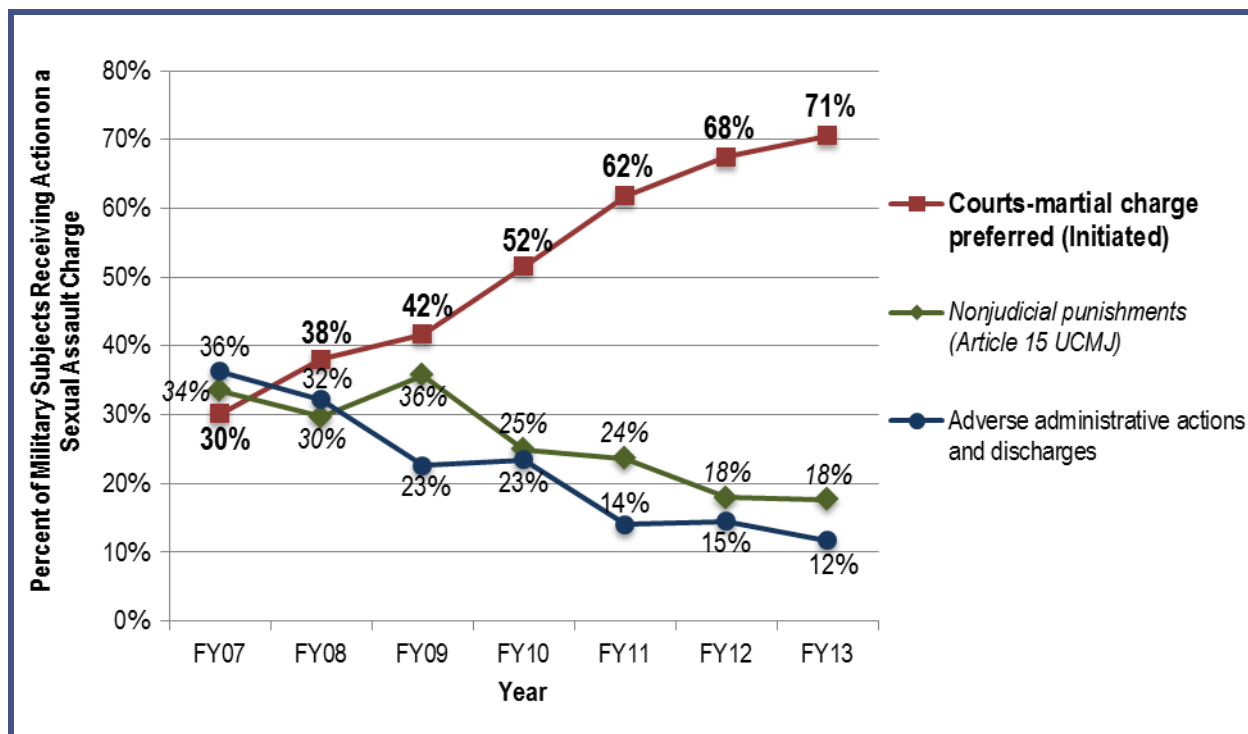

Exhibit 11B: Breakdown of disciplinary actions taken against subjects for sexual assault offenses, FY07 to 13

Notes:

1. Percentages are of subjects found to warrant disciplinary action for a sexual assault offense only. Other misconduct (false official statement, adultery, etc.) is not shown.
2. Percentages listed for some years exceed 100 percent due to rounding of percentages to the nearest whole point.

Courts-Martial for a Sexual Assault Offense

As noted previously, of the 1,187 military subjects against whom disciplinary action was initiated for a sexual assault offense, 838 had court-martial charges preferred against them (Exhibit 10, Point R and Table 4). Exhibit 12 illustrates what happened to these subjects after court-martial charges were preferred on them. The dispositions and the sentences imposed by courts-martial are for those subjects with at least one sexual assault charge adjudicated in FY13. Of the 838 subjects who had court-martial charges preferred against them for at least one sexual assault charge in FY13, 707 subjects' court-martial outcomes were completed by the end of the FY:

What percentage of Service member subjects charged and tried for sexual assault offenses were convicted in FY13, and what kind of punishment did they receive?

77 percent of Service members tried for a sexual assault offense were convicted of at least one charge at trial. The convictions included any charged crime or lesser included offense (a sexual assault or some other charge such as burglary, physical assault, etc.)

Most subjects received four kinds of punishment: Confinement, a Fine or Forfeiture of Pay, Reduction in Rank, and a Punitive Discharge or Dismissal.

- Court-martial charges were dismissed against 133 subjects. However, commanders used evidence gathered during the sexual assault investigations to take nonjudicial punishment against 26 of the 133 subjects. The punishment may have been for any kind of misconduct for which there was evidence. Most of the 26 subjects who received nonjudicial punishment were adjudged two categories of punishment: reductions in rank and fines.

- Ninety (90) subjects were discharged or granted a resignation in lieu of court-martial.
- Of the 484 subjects whose cases proceeded to trial: 370 subjects (76 percent) were convicted on any charge at court-martial. Most convicted Service members received at least four kinds of punishment: confinement, reduction in rank, fines or forfeitures, and a discharge (enlisted) or dismissal (officers) from service.
- Sex offender registration was required for 197 military members convicted for a qualifying offense at court-martial.
- One-hundred fourteen subjects (114) (24 percent) were acquitted of all charges.

Resignations and discharges in lieu of court-martial are granted in certain circumstances. These separation actions may only occur after court-martial charges have been preferred against the accused. For such an action to occur, the accused must initiate the process. Resignation or discharge in lieu of court-martial requests include a statement of understanding of the offense(s) charged and the consequences of administrative separation, an acknowledgement that any separation could possibly have a negative characterization, and an acknowledgement that the accused is guilty of an offense for which a punitive discharge is authorized or a summary of the evidence supporting the guilt of the accused. These statements are not admissible in courts-martial should the request ultimately be disapproved. Discharges of enlisted personnel in lieu of court-martial are usually approved at the Special Court-Martial Convening Authority level. Resignations of officers in lieu of court-martial are approved by the Secretary of the Military Department.

In FY13, 83 of 84 enlisted members who received a discharge in lieu of court-martial were separated Under Other Than Honorable Conditions (UOTHC), the lowest characterization of discharge possible administratively (the characterization of discharge was not available for 1 subject granted a discharge in lieu of court-martial). The UOTHC discharge characterization is recorded on the Service member's DD Form 214, Record of Military Service, and significantly limits separation and post-service benefits from the Department and DVA. Military Service policies direct that those Service members convicted on a sexual assault charge who do not receive a punitive discharge at court-martial should be processed for administrative discharge. This requirement for administrative separation processing was codified in the FY13 NDAA. This year, the Services documented that 40 convicted subjects that did not receive a punitive discharge or dismissal will be processed for administrative separation from military service.

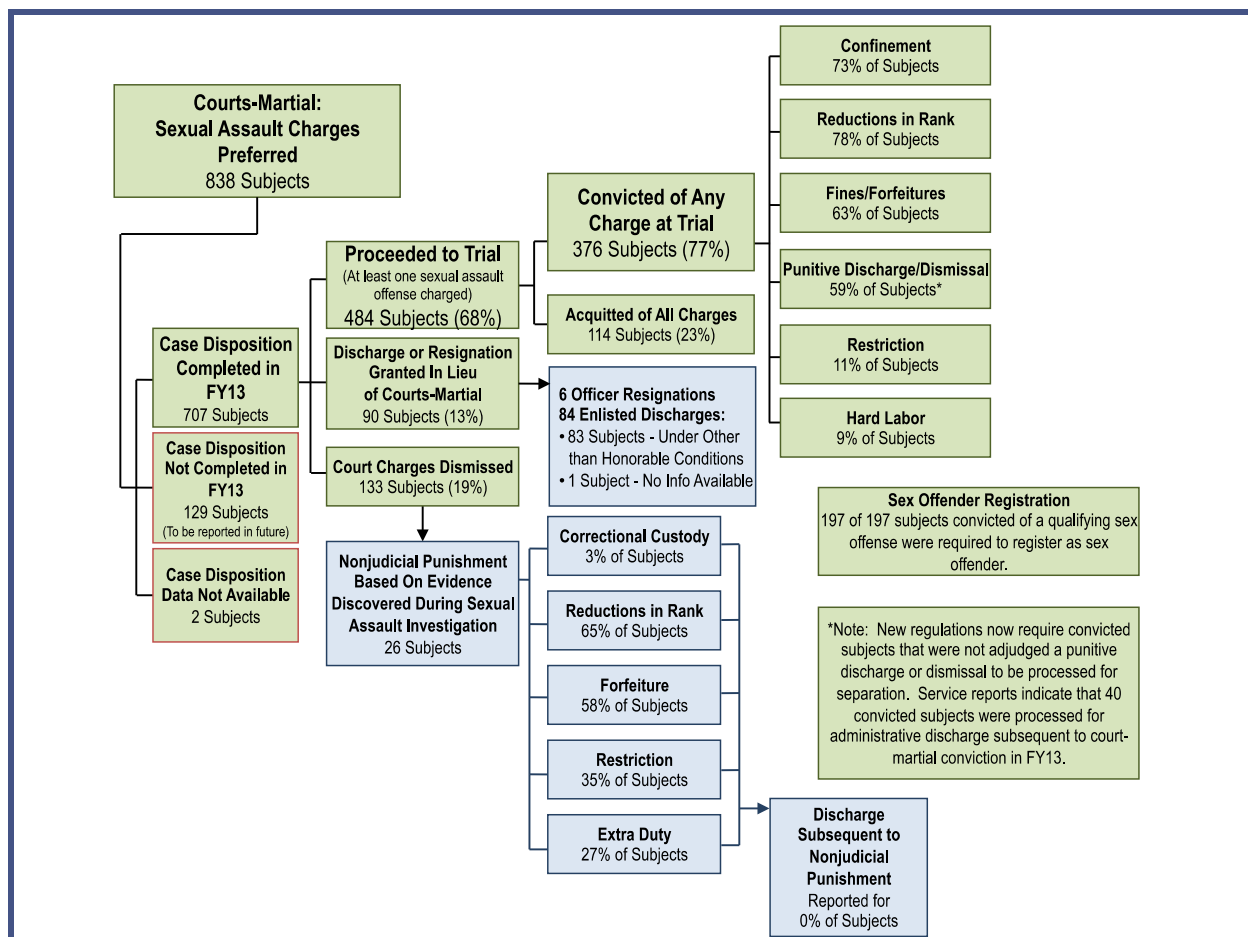

Exhibit 12: Dispositions of Subjects Against Whom Sexual Assault Courts-Martial Charges Were Preferred, FY13

Notes:

1. The Military Services reported that 838 subjects of sexual assault investigations had court-martial charges preferred against them for a sexual assault offense.
2. Of the 838 subjects who had court-martial charges preferred against them, 129 subjects were still pending court action at the end of FY13. Disposition data was not available for 2 subjects.
3. Of the 707 subjects whose courts-martial were completed and reported in FY13, 484 subjects proceeded to trial, 90 subjects were granted a discharge or resignation in lieu of court-martial, and 133 subjects had court-martial charges dismissed.
4. In cases in which a discharge or resignation in lieu of court-martial is requested and approved, the characterization of the discharge is UOTHC, unless a higher characterization is justified (see also the discussion of administrative discharge characterizations in the “Administrative Discharges and Adverse Administrative Actions” section of the report). Of the 133 subjects with dismissed charges, commanders imposed nonjudicial punishment on 26 subjects. Most of these 26 subjects received two kinds of punishment: a reduction in rank and a forfeiture.
5. Of the 484 subjects whose cases proceeded to trial, 370 (76 percent) were convicted of at least one charge. Conviction by courts-martial may result in a combination of punishments. Consequently, convicted Service members could be adjudged one or more of the punishments listed. However, in most cases, they received at least four kinds of punishment: confinement, a reduction in rank, a forfeiture of pay, and a punitive discharge (bad conduct discharge, dishonorable discharge or dismissal (officers)). The FY13 NDAA now requires mandatory administrative separation processing for all Service members convicted of a sexual assault offense.

Nonjudicial Punishment

Nonjudicial punishment is administered in accordance with Article 15 of the UCMJ and empowers commanding officers to impose penalties on Service members when there is sufficient evidence of a minor offense under the UCMJ. Nonjudicial punishment allows commanders to address some types of sexual assault and other misconduct by Service members that may not warrant prosecution in a military or civilian court. With nonjudicial punishment a commander can take a variety of corrective actions, including demotions, fines, and restrictions on liberty. Nonjudicial punishment may support a rationale for discharging military subjects with a less than an honorable discharge. The Service member may demand trial by court-martial instead of accepting nonjudicial punishment by the commander.

Of the 1,187 military subjects who received disciplinary action on a sexual assault offense, 210 received nonjudicial punishment (Exhibit 10, Point R and Table 4). Exhibit 13 denotes the outcomes of nonjudicial punishment actions taken against subjects on a sexual assault charge in FY13. Of the 199 subjects whose nonjudicial punishments were completed in FY13, 94 percent of subjects were found guilty by the commander and received punishment. Nearly all of the administered nonjudicial punishments were for a non-penetrating sex offense. Most subjects who received nonjudicial punishment received at least four kinds of punishment: reduction in rank, a forfeiture of pay, restriction of their liberty for a period of time, and extra duty. Available Military Service data indicated that for 46 subjects (25 percent of those administered nonjudicial punishment) the nonjudicial punishment served as grounds for a subsequent administrative discharge. Characterizations of these discharges were as follows:

- Honorable Discharge: 5 Subjects
- General Discharge: 19 Subjects
- Under Other Than Honorable: 17 Subjects
- Uncharacterized: 3 Subjects
- Pending Characterization: 2 Subjects

Total: 46 Subjects

Do military commanders use nonjudicial punishment as their primary means of discipline for sexual assault crimes?

No.

Only 18 percent of subjects who received disciplinary action for a sexual assault crime received nonjudicial punishment in FY13. Most subjects (71 percent) had court-martial charges preferred against them.

Exhibit 13: Dispositions of Subjects Receiving Nonjudicial Punishment, FY13

Notes:

1. The Military Services reported that 210 subjects of sexual assault investigations disposed in FY13 were considered for nonjudicial punishment.
2. Of the 210 subjects considered for nonjudicial punishment, 11 subjects were still pending action at the end of FY13.
3. Of the 199 subjects whose nonjudicial punishments were completed in FY13, 187 subjects (94 percent) were found guilty by the commander and issued punishment. The remaining 12 subjects (6 percent) were found not guilty.
4. Nonjudicial punishment may result in a combination of penalties. Consequently, Service members found guilty can be administered one or more kinds of punishments. However, for most of the cases, convicted Service members received at least four kinds of punishment: a reduction in rank, a forfeiture of pay, a restriction on their liberty for a period of time, and extra duty.
5. For 46 subjects (25 percent of those punished), the nonjudicial punishment contributed to the rationale supporting an administrative discharge.

Administrative Discharges and Adverse Administrative Actions

A legal review of evidence sometimes indicates the court-martial process or nonjudicial punishments are not appropriate means to address allegations of misconduct against the accused. However, military commanders have other means at their disposal to hold offenders appropriately accountable. Administrative discharges may be used to address an individual's misconduct, discipline or poor suitability for continued service. There are three characterizations of administrative discharge: Honorable, General, and Under Other Than Honorable. General and UOTHC discharges may limit those discharged from receiving full entitlements and benefits from both the DoD and the DVA. Commanders processed 56 subjects in sexual assault investigations for administrative discharge in FY13 (Exhibit 10, Point R and Table 4). Only one member was retained after facing an administrative discharge board. Characterizations of these discharges were as follows:

- |  |                   |
|--|-------------------|
| • Honorable Discharge:                   | 1 Subjects        |
| • General Discharge:                     | 30 Subjects       |
| • Under Other Than Honorable Conditions: | 10 Subjects       |
| • Uncharacterized:                       | 7 Subjects        |
| • Pending Characterization:       | 7 Subjects |

Total: 55 Subjects

In FY13, commanders took adverse administrative actions against 83 subjects investigated for a sexual assault offense (Exhibit 10, Point R and Table 4). Adverse administrative actions are typically used when available evidence does not support more serious disciplinary action. Adverse administrative actions can have a serious impact on one's military career, have no equivalent form of punishment in the civilian sector, and may consist of Letters of Reprimand, Letters of Admonishment, and Letters of Counseling. These actions may also include but are not limited to denial of re-enlistment, the cancellation of a promotion, and the cancellation of new or special duty orders. Cadets and midshipmen are subject to an administrative disciplinary system at the MSA. These systems address misconduct that can ultimately be grounds for disenrollment from the Academy and, when appropriate, a requirement to reimburse the government for the cost of education.

Probable Cause Only for a Nonsexual Assault Offense

The sexual assault investigations conducted by the MCIOs sometimes do not find sufficient evidence to support disciplinary action against the subject on a sexual assault charge. However, the investigations sometimes uncover other forms of chargeable misconduct. When this occurs, the Department seeks to hold those Service members who have committed other misconduct appropriately accountable based on the available evidence. In FY13, commanders took action against 382 subjects who were originally investigated for sexual assault allegations, but evidence only supported action on non-sexual assault misconduct, such as making a false official statement, adultery, assault, or other crimes (Exhibit 10 and 14, Point S and Table 4). Exhibit 14 denotes the outcomes of the disciplinary actions taken against subjects for nonsexual assault offenses in FY13.

Exhibit 14: Dispositions of Subjects for Whom There was Only Probable Cause for Nonsexual Assault Offenses, FY13

Notes:

1. The Military Services reported that investigations of 382 subjects only disclosed evidence of misconduct not considered to be a sexual assault offense under the UCMJ.
2. Of the 382 subjects, 34 subjects had court-martial charges preferred against them, 215 subjects were entered into nonjudicial punishment proceedings, 43 subjects received a discharge or separation, and 90 subjects received adverse administrative action.
3. Of the 30 subjects whose cases proceeded to courts-martial, 27 subjects were convicted of the charges against them. Most convicted Service members were adjudged a reduction in rank.
4. Of the 215 subjects considered for nonjudicial punishment, 206 were ultimately found guilty. Most subjects received three kinds of punishment: a reduction in rank, a forfeiture, and extra duty.

Subjects Outside DoD Legal Authority

As previously discussed, each year the Department does not have jurisdiction over several hundred subjects in its sexual assault investigations. When the subject of an investigation is a U.S. civilian, a foreign national, or an unidentified subject, they fall outside the Department’s legal authority to take any action. Civilian authorities in the United States and the governments of our host nations have primary responsibility for prosecuting U.S. civilians and foreign nationals, respectively, who are accused of perpetrating sexual assault against Service members. In a small percentage of cases each year, a state or host nation will assert its legal authority over a Service member to address alleged misconduct. This typically occurs when a Service member is accused of sexually assaulting a civilian or foreign national at a location where the civilian or foreign authorities possess jurisdiction.

While Service members are always under the legal authority of the Department, a civilian or foreign authority may choose to exercise its authority over a Service member anytime he or she is suspected of committing an offense within its jurisdiction. Sometimes civilian and foreign authorities agree to let the Department prosecute the Service member. However, such decisions are made on a case-by-case and jurisdiction-by-jurisdiction basis. A host nation's ability to prosecute a Service member is subject to the SOFA between the United States and the foreign government. SOFAs vary from country to country. From FY09 to FY13, the total percentage of subjects investigated by the Department for sexual assault found to be either outside the Department's legal authority or under the authority of another jurisdiction varied between 13 percent and 21 percent as depicted in Exhibit 15.

Exhibit 15: Subjects Investigated for Sexual Assault by the Department Who Were Outside Its Legal Authority, FY09–FY13

Notes:

1. In FY09, 462 (18 percent) of the 2,584 subjects in completed dispositions were outside the legal authority of the Department or under the authority of another jurisdiction.
2. In FY10, 335 (13 percent) of the 2,604 subjects in completed dispositions were outside the legal authority of the Department or under the authority of another jurisdiction.
3. In FY11, 486 (21 percent) of the 2,353 subjects in completed dispositions were outside the legal authority of the Department or under the authority of another jurisdiction.
4. In FY12, 584 (22 percent) of the 2,661 subjects in completed dispositions were outside the legal authority of the Department or under the authority of another jurisdiction.
5. In FY13, 648 (20 percent) of the 3,234 subjects in completed dispositions were outside the legal authority of the Department or under the authority of another jurisdiction.

Unfounded Allegations of Sexual Assault

The goals of a criminal investigation are to determine who has been victimized, what offenses have been committed, and who may be held accountable. When the allegations in an Unrestricted Report are investigated, one possible outcome is that the evidence discovered by the investigation demonstrates that the accused person did not commit the offense. When this occurs, the allegations are determined to be unfounded, meaning false or baseless (Exhibit 9, Point K, and Exhibit 10, Point V). Allegations may be unfounded either by the MCIIO that investigates the crime or by the disposition authority and legal officers reviewing the investigation's available evidence in determining whether disciplinary action is warranted. Exhibit 16 shows that while there has been some variation in who has determined whether allegations were unfounded, the overall percentage of subjects with unfounded allegations has remained about the same since FY09.

Exhibit 16: Subjects with Unfounded Allegations in Completed DoD Investigations of Sexual Assault, FY09–FY13

Notes:

1. In FY09, 331 (13 percent) of the 2,584 subjects in completed dispositions had unfounded allegations.
2. In FY10, 371 (14 percent) of the 2,604 subjects in completed dispositions had unfounded allegations.
3. In FY11, 396 (17 percent) of the 2,353 subjects in completed dispositions had unfounded allegations.
4. In FY12, 444 (17 percent) of the 2,661 subjects in completed dispositions had unfounded allegations.
5. In FY13, 495 (15 percent) of the 3,234 subjects in completed dispositions had unfounded allegations. Numbers in chart do not add due to rounding.

Demographics of Victims and Subjects in Completed Investigations

The following demographic information was gathered from the 3,337 investigations of sexual assault completed in FY13. These investigations involved 3,674 victims and 3,592 subjects. Two-hundred ninety-five (295) of the 3,337 investigations involved more than one victim, more than one subject, or multiple victims and multiple subjects.

Victims

Exhibits 17, 18, and 19 illustrate that the vast majority of victims in investigations tend to be female, under the age of 25, and of junior enlisted grades, respectively.

Exhibit 17: Gender of Victims in Completed Investigations of Unrestricted Reports, FY13

Exhibit 18: Age of Victims in Completed Investigations of Unrestricted Reports, FY13

Exhibit 19: Grade or Status of Military Victims in Completed Investigations of Unrestricted Reports, FY13

Subjects

Exhibits 20, 21, and 22 show that the vast majority of subjects of investigations tend to be male, under the age of 35, and of junior enlisted grades, respectively.

FY13 REPORTS OF SEXUAL ASSAULT IN COMBAT AREAS OF INTEREST

Arduous conditions in combat areas of interest (CAI) make sexual assault response and data collection very difficult. However, SARCs, SAPR VAs, and other SAPR personnel are in place in all of these areas. SAPR personnel are diligent in getting requested services and treatment to victims. The data reported below is included in the total number of Unrestricted and Restricted Reports described in previous sections.

In which CAIs were most sexual assaults reported?
Iraq and Afghanistan.

In FY13, there were 301 reports of sexual assault in CAIs. This number reflects an 26 percent increase in overall reporting in CAIs from FY12. Exhibit 23 illustrates the history of Unrestricted and Restricted Reporting in CAIs since FY07. Exhibits 24 and 25 show reporting patterns in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The 247 Unrestricted Reports in FY13 represent an increase of 17 percent from the 212 Unrestricted Reports in FY12. Of the 247 Unrestricted Reports, 23 (11 percent) were made in Iraq and 142 (57 percent) were made in Afghanistan. The remaining Unrestricted Reports were made in Kuwait (21 reports), Qatar (16), Bahrain (15), the United Arab Emirates (11), Jordan (5), Djibouti (4), Oman (3), Egypt (3), Kyrgyzstan (3), and Saudi Arabia (1).

There were 58 initial Restricted Reports in CAIs, an increase from the initial 28 Restricted Reports in FY12. Four Restricted Reports converted to an Unrestricted Report during the FY, leaving 54 reports remaining Restricted in FY13.

Of the 58 initial Restricted Reports, 11 were made in Iraq and 26 were made in Afghanistan. The remaining Restricted Reports were made in Kuwait (7 reports), Qatar (6), Bahrain (2), Kyrgyzstan (2), United Arab Emirates (2), Egypt (1), and Saudi Arabia (1).

Sexual Assaults Perpetrated by Foreign Nationals Against Service Members

This year the Military Services reported that 63 foreign national subjects were suspected to have committed sexual assaults against Service members. Of the 63 male subjects, 51 were foreign national civilians and 12 were foreign military members. Last year in FY12, the Military Services reported that 54 foreign national subjects were suspected to have committed sexual assaults against Service members. Of the 54 male subjects, 37 were foreign national civilians and 17 were foreign military members.

Demographics of Unrestricted Reports in CAIs

Demographic information about the Unrestricted Reports made in CAIs was drawn from the investigations closed during FY13. These 251 investigations involved 267 victims and 267 subjects. Thirty-eight (38) investigations involved more than one victim, more than one subject, or multiple victims and subjects.

Victims

The demographics of victims in CAIs who made Unrestricted Reports are similar to the demographics of victims in all Unrestricted Reports made to the Department, in that they are mostly female Service members (84 percent), under age 25 (50 percent)<sup>79</sup>, and of a junior enlisted grade (71 percent).

Subjects

The demographics of subjects in Unrestricted Reports made in CAIs are similar to the demographics of subjects in all Unrestricted Reports made to the Department, in that they are mostly male Service members (83 percent), under the age of 35 (52 percent), and in an enlisted grade (86 percent).

<sup>79</sup> Thirty-three (33) percent of victims in CAI were 25-34 years of age.

Demographics of Restricted Reports in CAIs

The 58 victims who initially made Restricted Reports of sexual assault in CAIs are similar to the demographics of victims in all Restricted Reports made to the Department, in that they were mostly female Service members (78 percent). However, victims making Restricted Reports in CAIs tended to be a little older (75 percent were under age of 35) and of higher rank (52 percent were E1 to E4; 36 percent were E5 to E9) than victims making Restricted Reports in general.

FY13 RESTRICTED REPORTS OF SEXUAL ASSAULT

SARCs and SAPR VAs collect information from victims in Restricted Reports. Because Restricted Reports are confidential, covered communications as defined in Department policy, SAPR personnel only collect limited data about the victim and the allegation being made. As with Unrestricted Reports, Restricted Reports can be made for incidents that occurred in prior reporting periods and incidents that occurred prior to military service.

How many Restricted Reports convert to Unrestricted Reports each year?
On average, about 15 percent of victims convert their Restricted Reports to Unrestricted Reports.

In FY13, there were 1,501 initial Restricted Reports of sexual assault. Of the 1,501 reports, 208 (14 percent) converted to Unrestricted Reports. At the close of FY13, 1,293 reports remained Restricted.<sup>80</sup>

This year, 386 Service Members made a Restricted Report for an incident that occurred to them prior to entering military service, representing approximately 10 percent of the 5,061 reports of sexual assault.

Of these 386 Service members:

- 213 members indicated the incident occurred prior to age 18
- 146 members indicated the incident occurred after age 18
- 27 members declined to specify one of the two categories listed above

Over time, the percentage of victims desiring to convert their Restricted Reports to Unrestricted Reports has remained relatively stable at about 15 percent. Exhibit 26 shows the Restricted Reports and conversion rates for the past seven FYs.

<sup>80</sup> The 208 Restricted Reports that converted to Unrestricted Reports are included in the total 3,768 Unrestricted Reports cited earlier.

Exhibit 26: Total Number of Reports that Were Initially Made as Restricted, the Remaining Number of Restricted Reports, and the Number of Reports that Converted, FY07–FY13

Note:

The percentages in parentheses are the percentage of cases that converted during that time period from a Restricted Report to an Unrestricted Report.

Demographics of Restricted Reports of Sexual Assault

Exhibits 27, 28, and 29 show that victims who made a Restricted Report were primarily female, under the age of 25, and of a junior enlisted grade.

Exhibit 27: Gender of Victims Making Restricted Reports, FY13

Exhibit 28: Age of Victims Making Restricted Reports, FY13

Note:

Categories with zero values are not shown.

The category “Age 16–19” is used because the relevant UCMJ sex crimes apply to victims aged 16 and older.

FY13 SERVICE REFERRAL INFORMATION

SARCs and SAPR VAs are responsible for ensuring victims have access to medical treatment, counseling, legal advice, and other support services. Referrals for these services are made to both military and civilian resources. A referral for service can happen at any time while the victim is receiving assistance from a SARC or SAPR VA and may happen several times throughout the military justice process. This year, SARCs and SAPR VAs made 3.4 service referrals per victim making an Unrestricted

Report. For victims making Restricted Reports, SARC and SAPR VAs made 3.0 service referrals per victim. Exhibit 30 shows the number of referrals per victim in sexual assault reports from FY07 to FY13.

The Military Services varied in the average number of referrals per victim:

- The Army made 1.6 referrals per victim making an Unrestricted Report and 2.5 referrals per victim making a Restricted Report.
- The Navy made 3.7 referrals per victim making an Unrestricted Report and 3.3 referrals per victim making a Restricted Report.
- The Marine Corps made 8.2 referrals per victim making an Unrestricted Report and 4.3 referrals per victim making a Restricted Report.
- The Air Force 4.3 referrals per victim making an Unrestricted Report and 2.1 referrals per victim making a Restricted Report.

The Military Services reported there were a total of 625 SAFEs conducted during FY13. Exhibit 31 depicts the reported number of SAFEs conducted for military and civilian victims of sexual assault from FY07 to FY13. The decision to undergo a SAFE always belongs to the victim.

Exhibit 31: SAFEs Reported by the Military Services, FY07–FY13

Note: SAFEs for Unrestricted Reports and Civilians are not listed for FY07 because the Military Services were not directed to collect this data until FY08.

FY13 EXPEDITED TRANSFERS

Since FY12, the Department has allowed victims of sexual assault to request an expedited transfer from their assigned units. This may take the form of a move to another duty location on the same installation, or it may involve moving to a new installation entirely. Requests for transfers are made to the unit commander, who has 72 hours to act on the request. Should the request be declined, the victim may appeal the decision to the first GO/FO in his/her commander’s chain of command. The GO/FO then has 72 hours to review the request and provide a response back to the victim. The following table shows the number of expedited transfers and denials for both FY12 and FY13.

Table 5: Expedited Transfers and Denials for both FY12 and FY13

| Transfer Type  | FY12       | FY13       |
|--|------------|------------|
| Number of victims requesting a change in Unit/Duty Assignment (Cross-Installation Transfers) | 57         | 99         |
| Number Denied  | 2          | 3          |
| Number of victims requesting a change in Installation (Permanent Change of Station)          | 161        | 480        |
| Number Denied  | 0          | 11         |
| Total Approved  | 216 | 565 |

CONCLUSION

The FY13 Annual Report on Sexual Assault in the Military describes the aggressive actions the Department has undertaken during FY13 to implement a multi-disciplinary approach to combatting sexual assault. FY13 was the first year the Department organized its efforts along the five lines of effort as described in the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The efforts undertaken by the Department and the Military Services have improved victim confidence—more sexual assault victims in FY13 are reporting and accessing support services. The Department established and expanded programs that provide dedicated legal support to victims, provided improved victim advocacy services, and increased training and awareness for the entire force. Yet, sexual assault continues to be a serious challenge facing our military.

During FY14, the Department will continue to implement and execute comprehensive reforms established in FY13 and continue to provide and improve victim advocacy services. But at the same time, going forward the Department will intensify our efforts to prevent the crime. The 2014-2016 DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy will provide authoritative guidance on delivering consistent and effective prevention methods and programs. The plan will identify leaders at all levels as critical components in our prevention efforts and integrates accountability, community involvement, communication, deterrence, incentives, and harm reduction.

The Department remains focused on implementing enduring culture change. Every Service member must participate in creating a culture where sexist behaviors, sexual harassment, and sexual assault are not tolerated, condoned, or ignored. Leaders will be held accountable for establishing the appropriate command climate. The Department's success relies on the full participation of every Service member and leader in implementing this culture change.

(1) PLAN REQUIRED- The Secretary of Defense shall develop and implement a plan for ensuring accessibility and availability of supplies, trained personnel, and transportation resources for responding to sexual assaults occurring in deployed units. The plan shall include the following:

(A) A plan for the training of personnel who are considered to be 'first responders' to sexual assaults (including criminal investigators, medical personnel responsible for rape kit evidence collection, and victim advocates), such training to include current techniques on the processing of evidence, including rape kits, and on conducting investigations.

(B) A plan for ensuring the availability at military hospitals of supplies needed for the treatment of victims of sexual assault who present at a military hospital, including rape kits, equipment for processing rape kits, and supplies for testing and treatment for sexually transmitted infections and diseases, including HIV, and for testing for pregnancy.

(2) SUBMITTAL TO CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES- The Secretary shall submit the plan developed under paragraph (1) to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

APPENDIX B: DOD SEXUAL ASSAULT PREVENTION AND RESPONSE PROGRAM OVERVIEW

SEXUAL ASSAULT IN THE MILITARY

Service members risk their lives for each other and are trained to keep fellow Service members out of harm's way. Sexual assault breaks this important bond and tears apart military units. Unfortunately, leading studies indicate that most sexual assaults that occur in America are not reported to law enforcement.<sup>81,82</sup> In 2012, the Department could account for approximately 11 percent of the estimated number of victims of unwanted sexual contact in its Unrestricted and Restricted Reports of sexual assault.<sup>83</sup> Underreporting of this crime poses a serious challenge to military readiness, because the potential consequences and human costs of sexual assault are extremely high. Chronic psychological consequences may include depression, post-traumatic stress, and substance abuse.<sup>84</sup> Sexual assault is incompatible with military culture, and negatively affects the Department's ability to accomplish critical missions.

SEXUAL ASSAULT PREVENTION AND RESPONSE OFFICE HISTORY

In 2004, the Department aggressively changed its approach to SAPR after learning of reports of sexual assault from Service members deployed to Iraq and Kuwait. On February 5, 2004, then-Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld directed the Department to undertake a 90-day review of all sexual assault policies and programs and recommend changes to increase prevention, promote reporting, enhance the quality of support provided to victims, and improve accountability. The DoD Care for Victims of Sexual Assault Task Force was created, and it identified 35 key findings relevant to sexual assault policies and programs within the Military Services. The Task Force proposed nine broad recommendations for immediate, near-term, and long-term corrective action.

The Department established the Joint Task Force for Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (JTF-SAPR) in October 2004 to develop a comprehensive SAPR policy for the Department based on the recommendations of the Care for Victims of Sexual Assault Task Force. The JTF-SAPR authored 13 DTMs that fundamentally changed SAPR policy, including the addition of Restricted Reporting, a confidential reporting option for Service member victims of sexual assault. The DTMs are the foundation of the two policy documents that govern the Department's SAPR program today: DoDD 6495.01, "Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program;" and DoDI 6495.02, "SAPR Program Procedures."<sup>85,86</sup> DoDD 6495.01 was revised and reissued in FY12 with a requirement that the Military Services align their prevention strategies with DoD SAPR strategy. DoDI 6495.02 was modified in FY08 to close gaps identified by the Department and clarify Military Service responsibilities. Further revisions to DoDI 6495.02 were published in FY10, FY11, FY12, and FY13.

The DoD-wide change in policy was also intended to address events at the Military Service Academies. In 2003, after receiving reports from cadet victims, former Representative Tillie Fowler was appointed to lead a review of the treatment of women at the U.S. Air Force Academy. Based on the findings of the Fowler Commission, the Task Force on Sexual Harassment and Violence at the MSAs was established in 2004. Congress directed this task force to assess and make recommendations concerning how the Departments of the Army and Navy could more effectively address sexual harassment and assault at the U.S. Military Academy (USMA) and the U.S. Naval Academy. Congress later passed legislation requiring the Department to assess the MSAs' SAPR programs annually.

In October 2005, the Department established DoD SAPRO to take over as the single point of responsibility for SAPR policy in the Department. However, medical care, legal processes, and criminal investigations remained the responsibility of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs, the Offices of the JAGs of the Military Departments, the MCIOs of the Military Departments, and the Office of the DoD IG, respectively. Since the establishment of DoD SAPRO, the Department has developed a prevention strategy, developed and implemented policies intended to increase reporting, improved care and response to victims, implemented program oversight, and expanded knowledge of the SAPR program among Service members and other key stakeholders.

MILITARY DEFINITION OF SEXUAL ASSAULT

In the Department, the term "sexual assault" does not refer to one specific crime; rather, it encompasses a range of sex crimes that represent a broad spectrum of offenses from rape to nonconsensual sodomy to wrongful sexual contact as well as attempts to commit these offenses. Consequently, the definition of sexual assault in the military is broader than the crime of rape. In its current form, DoDD 6495.01 defines sexual assault as follows:

Intentional sexual contact characterized by use of force, threats, intimidation, or abuse of authority or when the victim does not or cannot consent. The term includes a broad category of sexual offenses consisting of the following specific UCMJ offenses: rape, sexual assault, aggravated sexual contact, abusive sexual contact, nonconsensual sodomy (forced oral or anal sex), or attempts to commit these acts. Consent is defined as:

Words or overt acts indicating a freely given agreement to the sexual conduct at issue by a competent person. An expression of lack of consent through words or conduct means there is no consent. Lack of verbal or physical resistance or submission resulting from the accused's use of force, threat of force, or placing another person in fear does not constitute consent. A current or previous dating relationship or the manner of dress of the person involved with the accused in the sexual conduct at issue shall not constitute consent. There is no consent where the person is sleeping or incapacitated, such as due to age, alcohol or drugs, or mental incapacity.<sup>87</sup>

Sexual assault is also defined in military law, as contained in the UCMJ. The sexual crimes within SAPR policy are included in Article 120, Rape and Sexual Assault generally, and Article 125, Sodomy.<sup>88,89</sup> Article 120 includes the crimes of rape, sexual assault, aggravated sexual contact, and abusive sexual contact. The criminal offense of sodomy is covered under Article 125. Attempts to commit these crimes are under Article 80 and are also included under SAPR policy.

Other misconduct, such as indecent exposure and stalking, is not included in this report because it does not fall within the SAPR program as chartered in 2005. However, the Military Services investigate and adjudicate these and other sex crimes as appropriate. Incidents of sexual harassment are also not in this report because they fall under the purview of the Office of the Secretary of Defense Office of Diversity Management and Equal Opportunity. Lastly, sex crimes against children and spouses are not contained in this report because they fall under the purview of DoD Family Advocacy Program (FAP).

DEPARTMENT'S REPORTING OPTIONS AND PROCEDURES

The Department offers two sexual assault reporting options: Restricted and Unrestricted Reporting. The creation of the Restricted Reporting option in June 2005 was a critical addition to the SAPR program. Restricted Reporting allows Service member victims of sexual assault to confidentially access medical care and advocacy services without initiating an official investigation. DoDD 6495.01 defines Restricted Reporting as:

Reporting option that allows sexual assault victims to confidentially disclose the assault to specified individuals (i.e., SARC, SAPR VA, or healthcare personnel)... and receive medical treatment, including emergency care, counseling, and assignment of a SARC and SAPR VA, without triggering an official investigation. The victim's report provided to healthcare personnel (including the information acquired from a SAFE [Sexual Assault Forensic Examination] Kit), SARC, or SAPR VAs will NOT be reported to law enforcement or to the command to initiate the official investigative process unless the victim consents or an established EXCEPTION applies in accordance with [DoDI 6495.01]. The Restricted Reporting Program applies to Service members and their military dependents 18 years of age and older. For additional persons who may be entitled to Restricted Reporting, see eligibility criteria in [DoDI 6495.01]. Only a SARC, SAPR VA, or healthcare personnel may receive a Restricted Report, previously referred to as Confidential Reporting. This term and its definition are proposed for inclusion in the next edition of [the Department of Defense Dictionary of Military and Associated Terms].<sup>90</sup>

Confidential communication is defined as:

Oral, written, or electronic communications of personally identifiable information concerning a sexual assault victim and the sexual assault incident provided by the victim to the SARC, SAPR VA, or healthcare personnel in a Restricted Report. This confidential communication includes the victim's SAFE Kit and its information. See <http://www.archives.gov/cui>.<sup>91</sup>

Restricted Reporting does more than allow victims to confidentially access medical care. It preserves the possibility of holding offenders appropriately accountable by allowing victims to anonymously receive SAFEs. Following the examination, military law enforcement holds the evidence under an anonymous alphanumeric identifier for 5 years.<sup>92</sup> Section 1723 of the NDAA for FY14 established a requirement to maintain DD Forms 2910 and 2911 filed in connected with Restricted Reports for 50 years, regardless of whether it is requested by the victim. Victims may convert their Restricted Report to an Unrestricted Report at any time and participate in the military justice process.<sup>93</sup> One month before the end of the first year following the sexual assault, the SARC contacts the victim to determine if he or she would like to convert to an Unrestricted Report and participate in the military criminal justice process. If the victim elects to convert the report, an Unrestricted Report is made to criminal investigators. If the victim declines to convert the report, the evidence is retained for 49 more years. Restricted Reporting allows for the preservation of evidence that would be otherwise unavailable.

Although Restricted Reporting does not disclose the identity of the victim or begin the investigative process, commanders receive limited information about the incident, which allows them to address force protection concerns. In this way, the Department is able to honor a victim's privacy while taking steps to keep others safe. The Department is also able to offer victims care and treatment that victims may have not accessed without this confidential option. Sexual assault victims who seek medical care or SAFEs in the state of California cannot make a Restricted Report because of the state laws that mandate reporting by healthcare providers.<sup>94</sup>

Although SAPR policy allows for confidential Restricted Reports, it encourages victims to make Unrestricted Reports that allow the Department to investigate and hold subjects appropriately accountable. Victims who initially make a Restricted Report may convert their report to Unrestricted and participate in an official investigation at any time. In addition, if information about a sexual assault comes to a commander's attention or to the attention of law enforcement independent of a victim's report, an investigation will be initiated.

Under Unrestricted Reporting, when a victim reports an incident of sexual assault, the matter is referred for investigation, and victim's rights apply.<sup>95</sup> As in Restricted Reporting, victims may receive healthcare, counseling, and advocacy services. However, in an Unrestricted Report, details of the incident are provided to command and law enforcement for an official investigation.

DoDD 6495.01 defines Unrestricted Reporting as:

A process that an individual covered by this policy uses to disclose, without requesting confidentiality or Restricted Reporting, that he or she is the victim of a sexual assault. Under these circumstances, the victim's report provided to healthcare personnel, the SARC, a SAPR VA, command authorities, or other persons is reported to law enforcement and may be used to initiate the official investigative process. Additional policy and guidance are provided in [DoDI 6495.01]. This term and its definition are proposed for inclusion in the next edition of [the Department of Defense Dictionary of Military and Associated Terms].<sup>96</sup>

SARCs and SAPR VAs work with victims to help them understand the reporting options described above. To ensure victims make informed choices, the Department developed DD Form 2910, Victim Reporting Preference Statement, which explains the benefits and the limitations of each reporting option. The victim completes this form with the assistance of the SARC or SAPR VA.

VICTIM CARE IN THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

When the Department adopted the SAPR policy in 2005, it used existing best practices from the civilian community as a framework to shape the military's response system. This system comprises professionals from several disciplines who work as a team to provide expert care for victims worldwide 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

<sup>94</sup> California's mandatory reporting laws also affect victims in Arizona if the nearest military treatment facility is in California. Refer to each U.S. state and territory mandatory reporting laws for specific information. More information available at <http://www.sapr.mil/index.php/dod-policy/directives-and-instructions>.

Victim care begins immediately upon the report of a sexual assault. At the heart of the sexual assault response system are the SARCs and SAPR VAs. Every military installation in the world, both in garrison and deployed, has SARCs and SAPR VAs who provide a timely and personal response to victims of the crime. SARCs and SAPR VAs assist victims by providing them with three fundamental principles of victim care: safety and security, a place to communicate, and the ability to be prepared for the difficult decisions and challenging situations that will likely follow their report.

First, victims need to feel safe. SARCs and SAPR VAs work with victims to identify and address issues related to their physical safety as well as concerns about re-victimization by the subject or others who might retaliate against the victim for making a report. Second, victims may choose to talk about what happened. Although they are not therapists, SARCs and SAPR VAs are trained to be attentive listeners. Their job is not to gather details about the assault but rather to support victims' reactions to and feelings about the incident in a non-judgmental way. Finally, victims need to know their options, their legal rights, and what actions will likely follow their report. SARCs and SAPR VAs explain the available reporting options and how they may affect the victim's future. SARCs and SAPR VAs listen to victims' needs and then connect victims with appropriate resources, including medical care, mental healthcare, legal advice, and spiritual support. They ensure Service members are not left alone to navigate the potentially daunting process of reporting a sexual assault. They also support victims in decision making. Victims who elect to make an Unrestricted Report also remain informed of the progress of their report via information the SARC gathers at monthly multidisciplinary case management meetings. These meetings allow the SARC to coordinate care and remain aware of the case status as the case progresses through investigation and prosecution. As a result of the dedication of SARCs and SAPR VAs, victims have access to information about how their case is proceeding and what will happen next.<sup>97</sup>

SARCs manage an installation or unit's SAPR program, serving as the single point of contact to coordinate victim care and track the services provided to each victim. While the SARC primarily provides management and oversight of victim services, SAPR VAs provide direct assistance to victims. SAPR VAs also help victims navigate the military's response network. SARCs and SAPR VAs are the core of the sexual assault response system, but they receive a great deal of help from other responders, including healthcare and mental healthcare providers, chaplains, commanders, investigators, JAs, and VWAP personnel.

Healthcare providers treat sexual assault victims both physically and psychologically. Physicians, physician assistants, and nurses all contribute to treating injuries, managing the risk of sexually transmitted infections, and sometimes gathering evidence during a SAFE. Psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, and other mental health professionals assist the victim in recovering and restoring resiliency after a sexual assault.

Chaplains provide spiritual support to victims of sexual assault. Generally, information communicated to chaplains during spiritual counseling is privileged and, therefore, kept confidential.<sup>98</sup> Chaplains may be an additional resource for victims of sexual assault in both Restricted and Unrestricted Reports.

Law enforcement, criminal investigators, VWAP personnel, special victims' counsel, and JAs also support victims. While a case is being investigated and prosecuted, as appropriate, under an Unrestricted Report, VWAP personnel and special victims' counsel help victims understand their legal rights, understand and participate in the military criminal justice process, and obtain needed resources. This support helps minimize the risk of secondary victimization and increases the likelihood that victims will stay with the investigative process through its conclusion.<sup>99</sup> This support also helps the victim through the recovery process.

Commanders are responsible for the readiness of their unit and the health and welfare of their assigned Service members. To this end, they establish standards of behavior, enforce these standards, and hold people accountable for meeting them. Inherent in this responsibility is the authority to address misconduct and offenses and impose discipline in accordance with the military justice system. Preventing and responding to sexual assault should be no different; offenders must be held appropriately accountable.

At the policy level, the Department continues to strengthen internal and external partnerships with organizations that help care for victims.

Foreword

Leaders and Commanders of the Department of Defense,

Our men and women in uniform put their lives on the line every day to keep America safe. We have a responsibility to lead them with the values of our profession of arms and to ensure that the daughters and sons of the American people serve in an environment that is safe and protects the dignity and respect of every member of our U.S Armed Forces.

Sexual assault is a crime that is incompatible with military service and has no place in this Department. It is an affront to the American values we defend, and it is a stain on our honor. DoD needs to be a national leader in combating sexual assault and we will establish an environment of dignity and respect, where sexual assault is not tolerated, condoned, or ignored.

Considerable efforts are now underway to combat sexual assault. However, we still have much work to do across the Department. We can turn this around, but it will take time and requires continued strong leadership and education at all levels. To that end, I directed the DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office to partner with the Services and other Department of Defense components to review and update the DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Strategy.

Significant collaboration and effort took place to produce this comprehensive strategy. This strategy was developed to address the complex nature of the issue and better synchronize our Department-wide efforts. It will remain a dynamic document, reviewed annually, to drive stakeholder action within the Department.

This multi-disciplinary approach is essential as there is no one single solution to eliminating sexual assault from the military. The Department of Defense must remain vigilant and continuously execute the tasks required across all five lines of effort: Prevention, Investigation, Accountability, Advocacy/Victim Assistance, and Assessment.

I have full faith and confidence in our abilities and leadership as we strive to reduce and ultimately eliminate sexual assault from the military. Thank you for your support!

Chuck Hagel
Secretary of Defense

1. Introduction.

The Department of Defense (DoD) Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office (SAPRO) conducted a Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) strategic planning effort in 2009 to align SAPR priorities across DoD. This plan was created through collaboration between DoD SAPRO, the Military Services, and other SAPR stakeholders. The revised DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Strategic Plan continues this effort to establish a central plan that captures strategic SAPR priorities, goals, objectives, actions and/or initiatives, and targets performance outcomes jointly among DoD Components, which includes the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) components as well as the Military Departments. This document reflects the continuation of this collaborative effort.

The objectives of this plan are to achieve unity of effort and purpose across all of DoD in the execution of sexual assault prevention and response; to develop objective criteria for measuring progress; and to publish tasks that operationalize lines of effort in sexual assault Prevention, Investigation, Accountability, Advocacy/Victim Assistance, and Assessment.

The Secretary of Defense affirmed the Department's commitment to eliminating sexual assault from the U.S. Armed Forces by introducing new measures to create a culture free from sexual assault. The uniformed leadership communicated its resolve and commitment to reducing -- with the goal of eliminating -- sexual assault with its Strategic Direction to the Joint Force. This document was published in May 2012. In it, the eight members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff provided their collective guidance to the U.S Armed Forces:

This Strategic Direction is written for commanders and leaders to improve awareness of sexual assaults, operationalize our commitment, and facilitate dialogue and open communications across our formations. The Joint Chiefs and Commandant of the Coast Guard, together with our DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program (SAPR) professionals, penned this guidance to synchronize those efforts. Together, we will operationalize the concerted efforts of the DoD SAPR Office and our Service programs with renewed commitment to eliminate sexual assault crimes within our ranks.

Commanders and leaders at every level must integrate the intent, lines of effort and tenets of this Strategic Direction as a part of our daily command routines and activities. We must take conscious steps to understand, identify and reduce environmental risks, predatory and high-risk behaviors and personal vulnerabilities associated with sexual assaults or other abuse crimes. It is up to you, as commanders and leaders, to safeguard our core values and Service cultures by promoting a climate and environment that incorporates SAPR principles as habitual and inherent characteristics of our commands. Commanders and leaders must personally read, understand and implement this strategy.<sup>1</sup>

This comprehensive strategic direction, provided by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, required the review and revision of the 2009 SAPR strategy. On behalf of the Secretary of Defense and the Under Secretary for Personnel and Readiness (USD P&R), SAPRO partnered with the DoD components, the Military Departments, and the Services to develop this strategic plan, ensuring goals, objectives, milestones, and criteria for measuring progress were created and or revised, in order to enhance unity of effort and reinforce synchronization.

In doing so, the Department will continue to advance the priorities from the 2009 SAPR strategy of reducing sexual assaults in the military community; increasing the number and percentage of sexual assaults that are reported; increasing the availability, access, and quality of response for victims of sexual assault; improving the accountability, reliability, and sustainment of DoD SAPR services; and effectively communicating sexual assault prevention and response to stakeholders. These efforts are fully integrated in this strategy.

This plan will continue to be a dynamic document and will be reviewed annually. It drives stakeholder action by using existing authorities promulgated in law and policy and serves as a focal point of direction to advance sexual assault prevention and response throughout the DoD. This plan will be managed and updated by USD (P&R) through DoD SAPRO, in coordination with the Military Departments, Services, and the Office of the Inspector General (IG), using existing oversight mechanisms (e.g., Joint Executive Council, Government Accountability Office (GAO) reports, audits, IG reports, annual Congressional reporting requirements), and the responsive input of collective stakeholders. Implementation of tasks and progress will be reviewed every other month at regularly scheduled DoD SAPR Integrated Product Team (IPT) meetings. Reports on completion of tasks and updates to assigned tasks are provided, at a minimum, annually, for inclusion in the Department of Defense Annual Report on Sexual Assault in the Military.

DoD capabilities employed in support of this plan are assigned to OSD, the DoD IG, the Office of the DoD General Counsel, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Joint Staff, the Combatant Commands, the Military Departments, each of the four Services, and the National Guard Bureau. This strategic approach will guide and inform policy development, organization, training, and employment of the variety of means used to operationalize this strategic plan. Stakeholders include:

- Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) – Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office (SAPRO), Office of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Military Personnel Policy (DASD/MPP); Office of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Civilian Personnel Policy (DASD/CP); Office of Legal Policy (OLP); Legislative Affairs (OSD LA); Public Affairs (OSD PA); Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Readiness (DASD(R)); Office of the DoD General Counsel (OGC); Office of Legal Counsel (OLC); Assistant Secretary of Defense, Health Affairs (HA); Office of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Military Community and Family Policy (DASD/MC&FP); Office of Diversity Management and Equal Opportunity (ODMEO); the Defense Manpower Data Center (DMDC); the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute (DEOMI); and Reserve Affairs (RA).
- The Joint Staff (JCS)
- The Military Departments – Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force
- The Military Services – The U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps
- The National Guard Bureau (NGB)

- The Offices of The Judge Advocates General (OTJAGs) of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, and the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate to the Commandant of the Marine Corps.
- Office of the Inspector General (IG)

This plan is not all-encompassing nor fully exhaustive of all SAPR activities performed within or by the DoD SAPR community. Instead, this plan highlights and captures those tasks that contribute directly to the strategic objectives set forth in this document, as identified by plan stakeholders.

Since this plan captures planning components from different organizations, each organization designated in the task matrix as office of primary responsibility (OPR) is responsible for accomplishment of the tasks designated to it and supporting actions and /or initiatives. For this reason, plan components may be written at different levels and stress different activities. However, the collective stakeholders are committed to the same strategic objectives and endstates. An explanation of the collective development of SAPR Metrics in Section 4 of this document demonstrates the commitment to shared measurement and accountability for the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan.

1.1 Relationship to Directives and Instructions

In this strategic construct, policy issuances promulgated by the DoD and the Services function as tools employed by sexual assault prevention and response elements. The promulgation of policy in accordance with these tasks further operationalizes the strategy approach outlined in this Strategic Plan and the Strategic Direction to the Joint Force on SAPR. DoD Components and the Secretaries of the Military Departments will align implementing plans and policies with this strategic plan.

Overall, DoD Directive 6495.01, Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program, establishes DoD policy and assigns responsibilities for prevention, advocacy, and victim care. DoD Instruction 6495.02, SAPR Program Procedures, and associated Service policies, further operationalize this program. Investigation and accountability lines of effort are operationalized by policies issued by the DoD IG and the Services, and the OTJAGs, respectively.

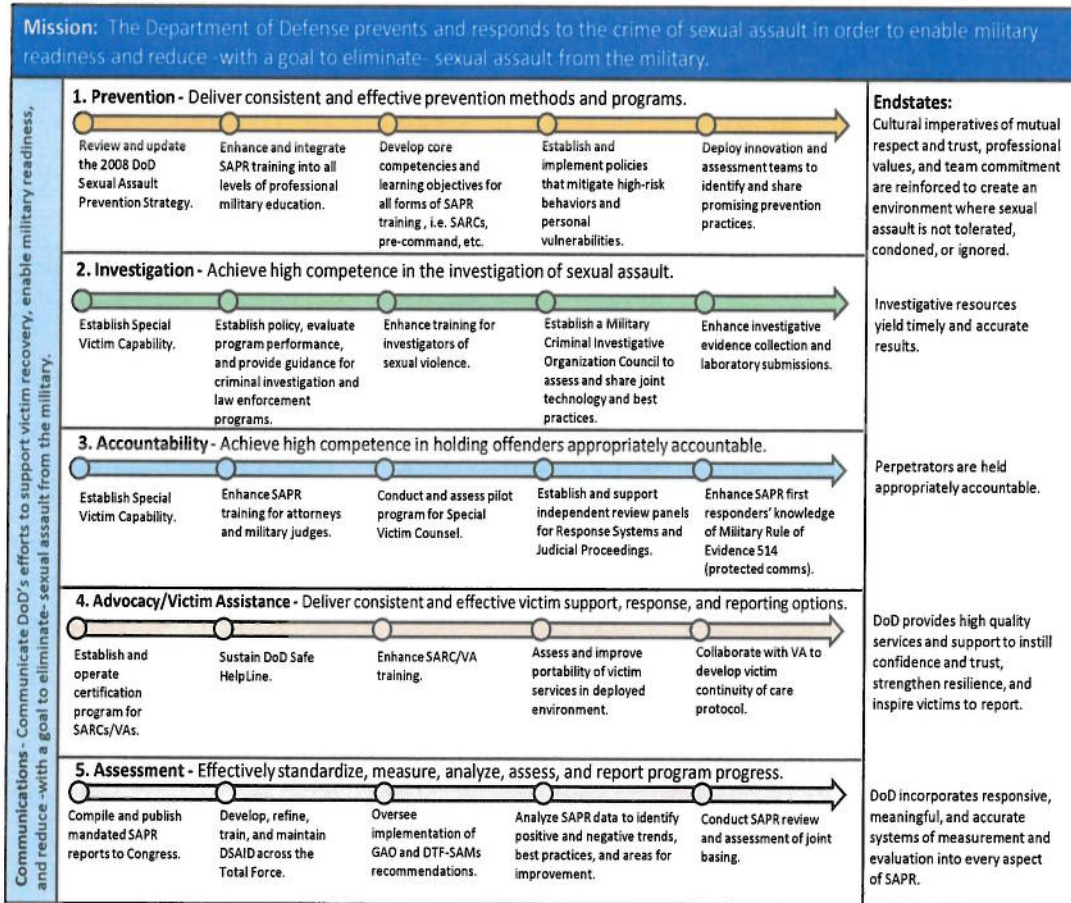

This strategic plan does not change the existing oversight and programmatic structure and responsibilities of the IG or the OTJAGs, nor does it create a new oversight structure of these entities within OSD.

1.2 Strategic Planning Approach – Campaign Design

DoD shifted its planning methodology to Campaign Plan design outlined in Joint Operation Planning publication (JP 5-0) in order to address the complex nature of our SAPR mission and better synchronize efforts.

DoD used lines of effort to develop the campaign plan. A line of effort (LOE) links multiple tasks and missions to focus efforts toward establishing operational and strategic conditions. Because SAPR involves many nonmilitary factors, LOEs were used to link tasks, effects, and the desired endstate, as depicted by Figure 1.

DoD-Wide Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Strategic Plan Lines of Effort and Priority Tasks

1.3 DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Mission Statement

The Department of Defense prevents and responds to the crime of sexual assault in order to enable military readiness and reduce -- with a goal to eliminate -- sexual assault from the military.

1.4 DoD Approach, Lines of Effort, Objectives, and Endstates

Reducing and eliminating sexual assault requires a multi-pronged approach -- one that leverages a wide range of initiatives and engages every Service member to prevent the crime from occurring in the first place. When an assault occurs, effective processes and personnel with specialized training must be in place to respond, care for victims, investigate every allegation, and hold offenders appropriately accountable.

Underpinning our efforts is the need for enduring culture change -- requiring leaders at all levels to foster a command climate where sexist behaviors, sexual harassment, and sexual assault are not tolerated, condoned, or ignored; a climate where dignity and respect are core values we must all live by and define how we treat one another; where bystanders are trained and motivated to intervene and prevent unsafe behaviors; where victims' reports are taken seriously, their privacy is respected, and they are treated with sensitivity; and finally, a climate where offenders know they will be held appropriately accountable for their actions.

Five SAPR LOEs were established to guide and focus strategic planning efforts with corresponding objectives and endstates. The LOEs are Prevention, Investigation, Accountability, Advocacy/Victim Assistance, and Assessment. DoD Components will use these LOEs as the foundational basis for their plans, to ensure unity of effort, synchronization, and the creation of a common approach to assessments. These LOEs, objectives, and endstates are defined as follows:

1) Prevention

Objective - Deliver consistent and effective prevention methods and programs.

Endstate - Cultural imperatives of mutual respect and trust, professional values, and team commitment are reinforced to create an environment where sexual assault is not tolerated, condoned, or ignored.

Our prevention goal is to deliver consistent and effective prevention methods and programs. It is critical that our entire military community work together to preclude criminal behavior from occurring and respond appropriately to incidents when they occur. Sustained leader emphasis by Commanders and first line supervisors is critical to this effort, as they are central in establishing the climate of dignity, respect, sensitivity, and environmental expectations that can reduce and eliminate this crime. As such, the Department is developing core competencies and learning objectives for all SAPR training, starting with Pre-command and Senior Enlisted, to ensure consistent learning and standardization throughout the Military Departments and Services. In collaboration with the Military Departments and Services, DoD is deploying innovation and assessment teams across the nation to identify promising prevention strategies and techniques. We are also collaborating with a variety of sexual assault prevention practitioners and researchers to ascertain which prevention policies and programs are most effective. Our desired end state is an atmosphere where cultural imperatives of mutual respect and trust, professional values, and team commitment are reinforced to create an environment where sexual assault is not tolerated, condoned, or ignored.

2) Investigation

Endstate - Investigative resources yield timely and accurate results.

The Department is committed to achieving high competence in every investigation of sexual assault, which begins with an unrestricted report and the independent and professional investigation by the Services' Military Criminal Investigative Organizations (MCIOs). Our investigative resources need to yield timely and accurate results that employ scientifically-informed techniques and maximize the recovery of physical and testimonial evidence while minimizing the potential for retraumatization. DoD will continue to develop specialized investigative capabilities that enable professional, responsive and accurate investigations that are independent from the chain of command. To establish a DoD Special Victims Capability, the Secretaries of the Military Departments will provide specially trained investigators. This capability will deliver a distinct, recognizable group of professionals who collaborate to ensure effective, timely, responsive worldwide victim support, and a capability to investigate and address child abuse, serious domestic violence, and/or sexual assault offenses.

3) Accountability

Endstate - Perpetrators are held appropriately accountable.

Holding offenders appropriately accountable is the objective in the accountability line of effort. The Department will continue to provide a fair and equitable system of accountability that promotes justice, assists in maintaining good order and discipline in the U.S. Armed Forces, and promotes efficiency and effectiveness in the military establishment, thereby strengthening the national security of the United States. Commanders are a critical part of this justice system. To establish a DoD Special Victims Capability, the Secretaries of each Department will provide specially-trained attorneys, victim witness assistance personnel, domestic abuse and sexual assault victim advocates, and paralegals. This capability will expand and leverage existing resources to deliver a distinct, recognizable group of professionals collaborating to provide effective, timely, responsive worldwide victim support, and a capability to investigate and address child abuse, serious domestic violence, and/or sexual assault offenses.

4) Advocacy/Victim Assistance

Objective - Deliver consistent and effective victim support, response, and reporting options.

Endstate - DoD provides high quality services and support to instill confidence and trust, strengthen resilience, and inspire victims to report.

Our goal is to standardize and deliver effective victim support, response, and reporting options, so that we instill confidence and trust, strengthen resilience, and inspire victims to report sexual assaults, either restricted or unrestricted. From the initiation of a report through case disposition in the justice system to victim recovery, we care for our victims. When victims report, they are provided a safe environment and offered medical care, counseling, legal assistance, and victim witness assistance. Because sexual assault is such an underreported crime, it is imperative that our program inspires victim confidence and motivates victim reporting -- a necessary bridge to greater victim care and increased offender accountability as appropriate. Our Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) and Victim Advocates (VAs) are the critical capability we employ to achieve these objectives. The Department has established a certification program to align their training and qualifications with the national victim advocate certification programs, ensuring professional and highly competent delivery of victim advocacy and assistance. Further, the Department remains committed to ensuring alleged offenders are afforded their due process rights.

5) Assessment

Objective - Effectively standardize, measure, analyze, assess, and report program progress.

Endstate - DoD incorporates responsive, meaningful, and accurate systems of measurement and evaluation into every aspect of the SAPR program.

We aim to standardize assessment methodologies and to effectively measure, analyze, assess, and report the progress of the SAPR program. Assessment is an enduring process of data collection and analytics designed to improve program effectiveness and is embedded within each of the other four lines of effort. This effort includes valuable feedback from Service members and DoD civilian personnel in the form of surveys and also includes feedback from commanders, victims, and victim advocates. Our goal is to incorporate responsive, meaningful, and accurate systems of measurement and evaluation into every aspect of our programs in order to determine the impact we are having on reducing and eliminating sexual assault. A critical DoD capability is SAPRO, which serves as the single point of authority, accountability and oversight of the SAPR program policy. As such, the Department employs a variety of capabilities such as the Defense Sexual Assault Incident Database (DSAID) and survey instruments, and prepares reports to Congress to ensure DoD-wide compliance with the SAPR program. Other assessments such as chartered oversight bodies or task forces, the GAO, and internal inspections and assessments provide a variety of means for program assessment across the Department.

1.5 Overarching Tenets

Overarching tenets represent precepts essential to refining a professional culture and command climate/environment. They set conditions to optimize program implementation. As a complement to the tenets defined in the Strategic Direction to the Force on SAPR, DoD developed tenets that intersect all LOEs and are essential to operationalizing, synchronizing, and ensuring consistent SAPR program execution across the Department. These tenets are Communications and Policy.

The Strategic Direction to the Joint Force on SAPR further expands the tenets to include Leadership, Culture and Climate/Environment, Integration, and Resourcing. Each of these tenets must be realized in order to achieve optimal integration of the SAPR Program into the command environment as a weakness in one potentially degrades the whole. Overarching tenets and LOEs operationalize the program as a natural extension of a unit culture based on professionalism, core values, trust, and ultimately, reaffirm the military's enduring commitment to the health and readiness of its Service members and their families.

2. SAPR Tasks

3. DoD SAPRO Center of Gravity Analysis

Centers of gravity (COG). DoD SAPRO conducted a COG analysis to focus our efforts and priorities. The COGs identified in Figure 3 are the critical capabilities we employ in each LOE and correspond with the higher priority tasks outlined in sections 2.1 through 2.5 of the strategic plan.

| LOE               | Centers of Gravity  |

| Prevention        | Commanders and first line supervisors   |
| Investigation     | Special Victims Capability (SVC) within Military Criminal Investigation Offices (MCIOs) |

4. SAPR Metrics

4.1 Key Metrics that Identify SAPR Success

DoD's objective is to establish the conditions within the military which lower sexual assault prevalence and increase reporting. DoD's goal is to reduce sexual assault prevalence while increasing percentage of victims that report. DoD SAPRO identified two key "overarching" measures of effectiveness to assess the success of the SAPR program:

- Reduction in sexual assault prevalence as estimated in DoD-wide surveys (DMDC Workplace and Gender Relations Surveys).
- Closing the gap between prevalence estimates and Service member victims who report sexual assaults to authorities.

4.2 Measures of Effectiveness and Measures of Performance

Once the strategy is published, USD (P&R) through SAPRO will meet with the Components and Services to ensure metrics are developed and published no later than 90 days from publication of this strategic plan. Figure 5 is the format, to include an example of a task metrics, to develop the DoD SAPR Measures of Effectiveness (MOE)/Measures of Performance (MOP) matrix.

Measure of Effectiveness. An MOE is a criterion used to assess changes in system behavior, capability, or operational environment that is tied to measuring the attainment of an end state, an objective, or the creation of an effect. It measures the relevance of actions being performed.

Measure of Performance. An MOP is a criterion used to assess friendly actions that is tied to measuring task accomplishment.

| LOE        | Task  | Measure (s) of Performance or Effectiveness associated with the task.   | What method(s) are used to gather the data? | OPR      | Who is tasked to collect data? | Suspense date for data. | Which office collects the data? |
|------------|---|---|---|----------|--------------------------------|-------------------------|---------------------------------|

Part 1 - Fiscal Year (FY) 2013 Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program Review Data Call: United States Army

Executive Summary

The following Executive Summary Template should be used to capture a summary of your Service or Component FY13 SAPR Program Review. This overview should include information such as:

- Authorizing regulations and/or instructions and dates of publication.
- General organizational structure of your SAPR program and personnel (e.g., Brigade, Installation, Regional, and/or Major Command Sexual Assault Response Coordinator [SARC] and SAPR Victim Advocate [VA] structure, mid-level program management [if any], and program management) as well as a brief description of how this structure changes in deployed and joint environments.
- Other personnel involved and their respective roles in your SAPR program.
- A summary of the progress made and principal challenges confronted by your SAPR program in FY13.

American Soldiers are bound by common values that demand respect for each other. In this context, Soldiers who commit the crime of sexual assault, or fail to intervene and stop an assault, violate the trust of their fellow Soldiers. The Secretary and Chief of Staff have made clear to the entire force that preventing sexual assault is a top priority in the Army. The overwhelming majority of Soldiers serve honorably and capably, meeting the standards embodied in the Army Values. However, the actions of a few are absolutely unacceptable and are jeopardizing the trust and confidence that the American people have in their Army.

Following several internal assessments over the past year, the Secretary and Chief of Staff initiated actions to hold commanders accountable, improve victim care, meet victim needs, and build on the success of an integrated Special Victim Capability for the investigation and prosecution of these crimes. Sexual assault is a complex problem and solving it requires a long term commitment to a change in culture. This commitment must be led by commanders, vested with authorities commensurate to their responsibilities, and held to account for every aspect of achieving lasting change on this important issue.

The Chief of Staff issued five imperatives and told senior Army leaders that, “combating sexual harassment and sexual assault is our primary mission”. These imperatives to combat sexual assault feature leaders establishing positive command climates where incidents of sexual assault are rare, but when they do occur, victims are treated with dignity and respect while offenders are held appropriately accountable. The imperatives directly support the five Lines of Effort (LOE) detailed in the Department of Defense (DoD) Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy. Specifically, the imperatives charge commanders to:

- Prevent potential offenders from committing sexual crimes, provide compassionate care for victims, and protect the rights and privacy of survivors.
- Thoroughly and professionally investigate allegations of sexual harassment/assault.

- Create a climate/environment of trust and respect in which every person is able to thrive and achieve their full potential.
- Hold individuals, units, commanders and organizations accountable for their behavior.
- Be fully engaged and at the center of any solution to combat sexual harassment and sexual assault, restoring the trust of our Soldiers.

The Army is enhancing leader accountability through the use of officer and non-commissioned officer (NCO) evaluations and unit command climate assessments. A new Army Directive now requires all officers and NCOs to be assessed on their efforts to foster a climate of dignity and respect within their organizations and on their adherence to the Army Sexual Harassment/Assault Response and Prevention (SHARP) Program. Another new Army Directive will further strengthen accountability by enhancing the command climate assessment process.

The Army remains focused on victim care and response. During panels and sensing sessions in 2013, it became clear that the Army needs a professional corps of victim advocates. The Army's 80-hour SHARP Certification Course, although twice as long as what DoD requires, is not adequate for the education of these critical first responders. The Chief of Staff directed the development of a SHARP Schoolhouse to expand the knowledge and skills of our SHARP Program Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) and Victim Advocates (VAs). An initial 8-week pilot course (27 Jan - 28 Mar 14) will validate a comprehensive curriculum, including enhanced human relations, interpersonal communication and leadership training.

To ensure sexual assault allegations are fully investigated and appropriately prosecuted, the Army has built upon the success of a robust Special Victim Capability. The core of this team now includes Special Victim Prosecutors and Sexual Assault Investigators located at the Army's largest installations and trained in the unique aspects of investigating and prosecuting sexual assault cases. In place since 2009, these specially-trained and selected personnel have overseen an increase of more than 100% in the number of sexual assault prosecutions and convictions.

Consistent with the directives from the Secretary of Defense, the Army implemented a Special Victim Counsel program that offers an attorney to military and dependent victims of sexual assault to represent them throughout the investigative and judicial proceedings. These specially-trained Judge Advocates are already in place, representing victims' privacy interests and rights at courts-martial across the Army.

The Army leadership's commitment to combat sexual assault during FY13 also included the resourcing of full-time SARCs and VAs in Army Brigades, and the assignment of a member of the Senior Executive Service (SES) as Director of the Army's SHARP Program.

The initial signs of progress are encouraging. One indicator of this is the steep increase in reports of sexual assault during the second half of FY13. The 3rd and 4th Quarters of FY13 are the two highest reporting quarters of sexual assault since the Army began tracking such data in 2004. As a result, the 2,149 reports of sexual assault in FY13 (1,831 Unrestricted and 318 Restricted) also yielded the highest annual total recorded. According to survey data, the prevalence of sexual assaults in the Army has remained statistically unchanged since 2006. This suggests the increase in reporting may be indicative of more victims feeling safe to come forward. Regardless, sexual assault remains an under-reported crime, and the Army must continue to improve reporting climates.

Although there is much more work to be done, positive indicators are a credit to committed Army leadership and the sustained resourcing of prevention, training and response efforts. However, the Army remains concerned about proposals to reduce commanders' roles in ensuring the integrity and robustness of sexual assault prevention, response, and investigative processes. It is commanders who will make the required changes an enduring reality. That is why the Army is committed to providing commanders with the resources they need and hold them accountable for using those resources appropriately. Even with additional personnel, improved training and refined policies and procedures, a reduction in commanders' authority would weaken their power to act and adversely affect positive cultural change.

The authorizing policy for the Army's SHARP Program is found in Chapter 8 of Army Regulation (AR) 600-20, Army Command Policy (20 Sep 12). The Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Affairs (ASA M&RA) supervises the Army's SHARP Program, while the Deputy Chief of Staff, G-1 (through the Army SHARP Program Office) is responsible for program implementation and assessment.

As the SHARP Program is a command responsibility, commanders are required to: establish a command climate that prevents the crime of sexual assault; treat all allegations of sexual assault seriously and ensure investigations occur; treat victims with dignity and respect; and take appropriate action against offenders. Significant elements of the current Army program include:

- Senior commanders (at installations and in deployed locations) have overall responsibility for the SHARP Program implementation and execution. As a critical element of their program execution, these leaders (or their deputy/representative) conduct required monthly Sexual Assault Review Boards (SARB). The SARB provides executive oversight, procedural guidance and feedback concerning local program implementation and case management.
- Command Program Managers are Soldiers (or civilians assigned to military units) who assist their commanders in executing their SHARP Program and integrating sexual assault response efforts (legal, law enforcement, chaplain, and medical) above the brigade level.
- SARCs and VAs support commanders in implementing the SHARP Program. These SARCs and VAs are available 24 hours a day/7 days a week to interact directly with victims of sexual assault and other response agencies.
  - SARCs and VAs provide support and advocacy services in garrison and deployed environments.
  - Active Component and Army Reserve brigade level units have one full-time SARC and one full-time VA. The Army National Guard has a collateral duty SARC and VA at each brigade level unit and a full time

SARC and VA for each State/Territory.

- Army policy also requires two VAs be appointed, as a collateral duty, for each battalion sized unit.

This report complies with content and formatting requirements in the Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness (USD P&R) memorandum dated September 25, 2013 (SUBJECT: Data Call for the FY2013 DoD Annual Report on Sexual Assault in the Military). Per the USD P&R memorandum, this report is in two parts:

- Part 1 (Program Review) contains details of Army actions within the Five Lines of Effort (LOE) in the DoD Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy (Prevention, Investigation, Accountability, Advocacy/Victim Assistance and Assessment). In addition to actions already mentioned, highlights of the Army's FY13 actions include:
  - A SHARP Guidebook to assist commanders in implementing the SHARP Program and sexual assault prevention and response efforts.
  - Fielding of new forensic tools and training for sexual assault investigators.
  - A 64% court-martial prosecution rate for rape and a 53% rate for sexual assault, compared to reported rates of approximately 18-22% among civilian jurisdictions.
  - Enhanced screening requirements for all SARCs, VAs, recruiters and drill sergeants and required General Officer (GO)/SES appointment of SARCs and Colonel/GS-15 appointment of VAs.
  - Revisions to the Army's 80-Hour certification course for SARCs/VAs and planning for an expanded eight-week course at a fixed location.
  - The 6th Annual Sexual Harassment/Assault Prevention Summit featuring senior Army leaders and subject matter experts. The Chief of Staff directed that these Summits be held twice a year beginning in 2014.
- Part 2 (Statistical Report) contains data and analysis of the 1,831 Unrestricted Reports and the 318 Restricted Reports of sexual assault which were reported in the Army during FY13. Part 2 also contains a brief profile and synopsis of each sexual assault case investigated by the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command (CID) in which there was disposition decision in FY13.

1. Line of Effort (LOE) 1 - Prevention—The objective of prevention is to “deliver consistent and effective prevention methods and programs.”

1.1 Summarize your Service or Component’s efforts to achieve the Prevention Endstate: “cultural imperatives of mutual respect and trust, professional values, and team commitment are reinforced to create an environment where sexual assault is not tolerated, condoned, or ignored.”

The Army’s efforts to achieve the Prevention Endstate during FY13 remained focused on the sustained roll-out of the Army’s Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy. The cornerstone of the prevention strategy is the “I. A.M. Strong” Campaign where the letters I. A. M. stand for Intervene – Act – Motivate. The purpose of “I. A.M. Strong” is to encourage Soldiers to take action to prevent sexual assault and to actively foster respectful treatment of others. Accordingly, leaders at all levels are charged to facilitate this prevention strategy by establishing positive command climates in which incidents of sexual assaults rarely occur, but when they do, victims come forward with confidence that there will be appropriate action.

The Secretary and Chief of Staff reiterated leaders’ roles in preventing sexual assault at the Army’s 6th Annual “I. A.M. Strong” SHARP Summit conducted 10-11 Jun 13. The Summit provided the platform for 142 Army commanders (Major General and above) and their Command Sergeants Major to discuss and present their intent for the prevention of sexual harassment and assault in their units. The Summit’s extensive dialogue, supported by an exceptional group of speakers, helped increase Army leaders’ awareness of the scope of the problem and provided a foundation for the way ahead to resolve this threat.

Following the Summit, all Army units conducted a mandatory SHARP Stand-down. This requirement, directed by the Secretary, consisted of commander-led refresher training for all SARCs and VAs as well as leader engagements with all Soldiers and Civilian employees. These leader engagements addressed the focus and operation of the Army SHARP Program and “I. A.M. Strong” Campaign; leader and individual responsibility and accountability for maintaining a climate of dignity and respect; the importance of inculcating Army Values in daily operations; and examples of how sexual harassment and sexual assault adversely impact the Army.

Additionally, the Secretary directed measures to ensure the quality of Army SARCs, VAs, and others in positions of significant trust and authority. This last group consisted of recruiters, drill sergeants and Advanced Individual Training platoon sergeants. The directed measures included enhanced suitability screening and behavioral health interviews.

1.2 Identify the ways you are changing organizational prevention-based practices.

The Army’s Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy consists of four integrated phases and has policy, procedure, training and assessment components, which will continue through 2016, and beyond. Each phase is cyclical, requiring continuous training of Soldiers and leaders, as well as periodic assessment, revision, improvement and refinement:

- The Secretary introduced the “I. A.M. Strong” Campaign at the initial SHARP Summit in Sep 08. The Summit served as a platform to launch Phase I (Committed Army Leadership) by providing training on best practices and allowing commands the opportunity to develop prevention plans to support the Army strategy.

- Phase II of the prevention strategy (Army-wide Conviction) includes educating Soldiers to understand their moral responsibility to intervene and stop sexual assault and harassment. Phase II began at the 2009 SHARP Summit (Apr 09) during which the Secretary, the Chief of Staff, and Sergeant Major of the Army addressed the attendees which included more than 100 Sergeants Major and 50 General Officers. The Army held its 3rd Annual Summit in April 2010 with over 650 attendees, including brigade and battalion leaders and Army SHARP Program Managers.
- Phase III culminates the dedicated effort of leaders and Soldiers under Phase I and Phase II by “Achieving Cultural Change” that truly reflects Army Values and fosters an environment free from sexual harassment and sexual assault. Phase III began during the 4th Annual Summit held in 2011.
- The final phase is “Sustainment, Refinement and Sharing”, during which the prevention program continues to grow while motivating national partners to support our efforts to change generally accepted negative social behaviors.

The Army's prevention strategy strives to reduce the stigma of reporting, thus increasing a victim's propensity to report incidents for one of the nation's most under-reported crimes.

1.3 Describe your efforts to comply with DoD SAPR core competencies for all SAPR training to ensure consistency. Include Professional Military Education, Pre-Command, and Senior Enlisted training.

The Army has worked extensively as part of the DoD Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office (SAPRO) Working Group to develop the Core Competencies (CC) and Learning Objectives (LO) for Army SHARP training. These CCs and LOs are now implemented in Army Professional Military Education (PME), Pre-Command, and Senior Enlisted training.

In FY13, the Army conducted a comprehensive review of SHARP training across each cohort of PME (officer, warrant officer, enlisted and civilian), updating Training Support Packages (TSP) to include scenario-based, interactive modules focused on the real world challenges of combating sexual harassment and assault. This integration of SHARP training into every level of PME ensures Soldiers, Civilians and Leaders receive training that is appropriate to their new roles and increased responsibilities.

Also, most of the Army's major subordinate commands conduct their own (additional) Pre-Command training which includes a review of the reporting options, commander's roles and responsibilities, and the expedited transfer or reassignment of victims of sexual assault.

1.4 Describe your progress in implementing the findings and recommendations from the SAPR Initial Military Training reviews. Include your efforts to enhance accession training by including SAPR policies and implementation of SAPR training within 14 days of entrance to active duty.

The Army published Army Directive 2013-17 (Sexual Harassment/Assault Response and Prevention Program in Initial Military Training) on 22 Jul 13. This directive

- Published the Army SHARP Program's key lessons learned from the U.S. Air Force's investigation into sexual assault in the Initial Military Training (IMT) environment at Lackland Air Force Base.
- Directed 26 tasks to specific Army commanders. These tasks ranged from reviewing the process for selecting the officer and NCO command teams at the brigade and battalion IMT command levels to ensuring that SHARP-specific questions are added to command climate surveys.
- Directed the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff, G-1, to compile reports documenting the completion of these tasks and, as appropriate, present recommendations to the Secretary for follow-on actions.

To educate new Soldiers in an attention-getting and intriguing manner, the Army trains a set of ten "Sex Rules" which break down the elements of sexual harassment and sexual assault and defines them in simple, relatable terms. By linking each Sex Rule to an Army Value, the training challenges Soldiers to "Know the Rules - Live the Values."

- In the Basic Combat Training (BCT) portion of Initial Entry Training (IET), Soldiers receive a one-hour introductory course on SHARP policy and resources during their first 14 days of training and are introduced to the "Sex Rules" messaging targeted for new recruits ("Sex Rules - Follow Them").
- Later in BCT, another two hours of SHARP training helps Soldiers learn about their responsibilities to take action using several interactive vignettes during the very popular and highly regarded production of "Sex Signals." This 90-minute, live, two-person, audience interactive program contains skits dealing with dating, consent, rape and other associated topics such as body language, alcohol use and intervention.
- In addition, the Army developed a SHARP distributed-learning program that U.S. Army Recruiting Command (USAREC) implemented for future Soldiers. This is a web-based training tool for potential and new recruits that can be accessed and used in Recruiting Stations. Topics include a wide variety of sexual assault prevention, intervention, and response techniques.

Within the first week of arrival at the United States Military Academy (USMA), new cadets are taught the basic tenets of sexual harassment and sexual assault. They are verbally quizzed by their chain of command on SHARP and receive two more one-hour sessions on SHARP during the six-week basic training.

- Education continues throughout the cadets' 47 month experience via multiple venues including the classroom, unit education classes, sponsorship, mentorship, athletic teams, and cadet activity clubs.
- This year, USMA also incorporated SHARP training into eight of the mandatory cadet core courses from freshman through senior year.

1.5 Identify specific SAPR monitoring, measures, and education that impart individual skills associated with bystander intervention and appropriate risk reduction that does not blame victims.

The following education/training were conducted during FY13 in support of the Army's Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy and the "I. A.M. Strong" Campaign:

- The Army continued an 80-hour SHARP certification course delivered by SHARP Mobile Training Teams (MTT) which trained command-selected SHARP personnel to execute the program worldwide. By the end of FY13, MTTs had trained more than 20,000 SHARP personnel.
- Army units conduct mandatory annual unit training which includes leader and Soldier videos and an interactive video for all Soldiers to view in a self-study mode, using the Army Learning Management System (ALMS). This self-study video ("Team Bound") is an interactive, multiple scenario product in which Soldiers become the lead character, making choices (including bystander intervention) in situations dealing with sexual harassment and sexual assault. This training is also mandatory for units during pre and post-deployment.
- In addition to the Accession training cited in Section 1.4 above, the Army continues to implement and refine comprehensive curricula for all levels of PME from IET through the Army War College. Each level of PME builds on the previous level as Soldiers' responsibilities increase from individual behavior to leader roles and actions.
  - Training for cadets in Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) incorporates "Sex Rules" messaging and uses a critical decision-making tool.
  - The Basic Officer Leadership Course - Branch (BOLC-B) for new officers also includes "Sex Signals" in addition to instructor-led training which focuses on the roles of junior leaders.
  - The Army conducts SHARP training during all Company Commander/First Sergeant Courses, Battalion and Brigade Pre-Command Courses, at the Sergeants Major Academy and the Army War College. Additionally, commanders receive local SHARP operational training within 45 days of assuming command.
  - The Army continues to refine SHARP training for each intermediate level of PME to ensure Soldiers and leaders have the knowledge and skills necessary for their responsibilities. These include NCO and Warrant Officer Advanced Courses, the Captain Career Course, and the Command and General Staff College.
  - Additionally, Drill Sergeants and Army Recruiters attend specialized SHARP training tailored for their unique roles dealing with new Soldiers and potential Soldiers. Drill Sergeants are provided a pocket guide titled "Sex Rules - Teach Them."

The Secretary, the Chief of Staff and the Sergeant Major of the Army continue to emphasize changing the culture to eliminate sexual harassment and sexual assault from our ranks. Following the 6th Annual SHARP Summit in June, the Chief of Staff issued his "SHARP Top 10" to all General Officers in the Army:

1. Sexual assault and harassment represent an insider threat with the potential to cause significant, irreparable harm to our Army.
2. The Army Profession demands leaders of high competence and high character.
3. Standards and discipline are the cornerstones of a positive unit climate.
4. We must consistently enforce all policies related to sexual assault and harassment.
5. We need to clearly “see” ourselves; leaders must continually assess the command climate and environment within their units or organizations.
6. We must execute prevention policies, training initiatives, and education programs in order to get to the left of any incident.
7. The chain of command is obligated to protect and advocate for victims, beginning with an initial report and until the victim decides he or she no longer requires assistance.
8. We must thoroughly and professionally investigate each report and take appropriate action.
9. Commanders must create and maintain a positive command climate with trust and respect as the foundation.
10. The crime of sexual assault and destructive behavior of sexual harassment can only be solved by a committed chain of command led by dedicated Commanders and Command Sergeants Major.

Further, on 27 Sep 13, the Secretary signed Army Directive 2013-20 (Assessing Officers and Noncommissioned Officers on Fostering Climates of Dignity and Respect and on Adhering to the Sexual Harassment/Assault Response and Prevention Program). This directive (http://www.apd.army.mil/pdf/files/ad2013\_20.pdf) enhances the Evaluation Reporting System to assess how officers and NCOs are meeting their commitments to eliminating sexual harassment and assault and to fostering climates of dignity and respect in their units. These changes to the evaluation process are intended to enhance leader accountability for creating positive command climates by ensuring leaders take action to address behaviors and attitudes that may lead to sex offenses.

Army policies regarding the use and abuse of alcohol are found in AR 600-85 (The Army Substance Abuse Program) and AR 215-1 (Military Morale, Welfare, and Recreation Programs and Non-appropriated Fund Instrumentalities). Additionally, some installations and commands have adopted more stringent local policies regarding alcohol. For example, some units limit the amount of alcohol Soldiers may have in the barracks.

For deployed units, alcohol consumption is banned in many areas under General Order #1. In a few deployed areas, alcohol is available in limited quantities and only in supervised locations, not in living quarters.

In most commands, visitors are allowed in the barracks but are not permitted to spend the night. Cohabitation is strictly forbidden. Some commands have installed closed circuit televisions and self-locking doors in the barracks.

The Army does not allow IMT Soldiers to have overnight passes and are not allowed to consume alcohol at anytime. Male IMT Soldiers are not authorized in female rooms and vice-versa. Cameras are situated to view common areas.

1.7 Describe progress, assessment, efforts, and/or approved plans for requiring commanders to conduct an organizational climate assessment within 120 days of assuming command and annually thereafter. Include policy for providing results to the next level in the chain of command.

In accordance with the Chief of Staff's guidance, AR 600-20 (Army Command Policy) was revised to require company commanders to conduct climate surveys within 30 days (120 days for Army National Guard and Army Reserve) of assuming command, again at six months, and annually thereafter.

Additionally, Army Directive 2013-29 (Army Command Climate Assessments) was approved in Dec 13 (http://www.apd.army.mil/pdf/files/ad2013\_29.pdf). This Army Directive requires:

- All Active Army company commanders to conduct an initial command climate assessment within 30 days of assuming command, followed by an assessment six months after assuming command, another assessment twelve months after assuming command, and annually thereafter while retaining command.
- All Active Army commanders above the company level, and all Reserve Component commanders regardless of echelon, to conduct an initial command climate assessment within 60 days of assuming command (120 days for Reserve Component), followed by an assessment twelve months after assuming command and annually thereafter while retaining command.
- All commanders to complete a command climate assessment within six months of the date of this new Army Directive, regardless of when assuming command. The results of this Army-wide baseline assessment will be analyzed, and as appropriate, produce recommendations for improvements to the survey tools or related policy.
- In order to promote anonymity, any unit with fewer than 30 personnel to conduct its command climate assessments with a larger unit.
- Results and analysis of command climate assessments to be reported to the next higher commander no later than 30 days after completing the assessments for review and development of an action plan to address concerns.

1.8 Describe collaboration efforts concerning prevention with external experts, federal partners (e.g. NATO), advocacy organizations, and educational institutions, to include prevention subject matter experts. Describe results and/or implementations of lessons learned from collaboration efforts.

The Army continues to partner with several nationally recognized subject matter experts in order to help develop and validate the components of our Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy and "I. A.M. Strong" Campaign. These noteworthy experts include:

- Dr. David Lisak, a clinical psychologist whose research focuses on the motives and behaviors of rapists, the impact of childhood abuse on adult men, and relationship between child abuse and later violence.
- Anne Munch, an attorney with over twenty years of experience as a career prosecutor and advocate for victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking. She has worked extensively on the development of the Sexual Assault Prevention and Response programs in the military.

- Gail Stern is the co-founder of Catharsis Productions. Their program, “Sex Signals”, incorporates humor and audience participation to foster greater understanding about the nature and impact of interpersonal violence.
- Russell Strand is Chief of the U.S. Army Military Police School (USAMPS) Family Advocacy Law Enforcement Training Division and has specialized expertise in sexual assault investigations. He received the “End Violence Against Women International Visionary Award” in recognition for his work. During FY13, several Army commands scheduled Mr. Strand’s training on “The Challenges of Sexual Assault and Rape in our Ranks.”
- Margret Bell, Ph.D. is the Director for Education & Training, National Military Sexual Trauma (MST) Support Team. The MST Support Team works to promote best practices and assist in meeting legal mandates related to services for Veterans who experienced sexual assault/harassment while in the military.
- Major General Robert Shadley, U.S. Army (Retired), is the author of The GAME: Unraveling a Military Sex Scandal documenting leadership in a crisis.
- David S. Lee is the Director of Prevention Services at the California Coalition Against Sexual Assault. He manages an online community to advance prevention of violence against women.
- Mary Lauterbach has a Master’s degree in Theology from the University of Dayton, where she is currently employed as a writer. The oldest of Ms. Lauterbach’s five children was murdered in 2007 while serving with the Marines.
- John Foubert, Ph.D. is the founder of the national non-profit organization One in Four which provides presentations, training, and technical assistance to men and women, with a focus on all-male programming targeted toward colleges, high schools, the military and local community organizations.
- Dr. Jackson Katz is the creator of Mentors in Violence Prevention (MVP). MVP is a gender violence prevention approach focused on a "bystander" model that empowers individuals to take an active role in promoting a positive climate.
- Dr. Veronique Valliere is the director of an outpatient violent offender treatment center for mental health, domestic violence, and victim issues.

Additionally, the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) has begun work with the Army Education Advisory Committee (AEAC) to conduct a study on cultural issues associated with sexual assault and sexual harassment in the Army.

1.9 Describe your efforts to establish and implement policies that prevent individuals convicted of a Federal or State offense of rape, sexual abuse, sexual assault, incest, or other sexual offenses, from being provided a waiver for commissioning or enlistment in the Armed Forces.

AR 601-210 (Active and Reserve Components Enlistment Program - 8 Feb 11) and AR 601-100 (Appointment of Commissioned and Warrant Officers in the Regular Army - 21 Nov 06) establish felony conviction for a sexual offense as a non-waiverable disqualification for enlistment or commissioning.

1.10 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to delivering consistent and effective prevention methods and programs, including how these efforts will help your Service plan, resource, and make progress in your SAPR program.

The Army's prevention related plans for FY14 include:

- Continue hiring (government civilians) and assigning (military) personnel to permanently fulfill the requirements of one full-time SARC and one full-time VA in brigades or equivalent units. These personnel will help commanders implement their unit SHARP Program, to include assessing and maintaining positive command climates in which sexual harassment and sexual assault are not tolerated.
- Continue to train command selected SHARP personnel via the 80-hour SHARP Certification Course.
- Develop a centralized SHARP Schoolhouse to expand the knowledge and skills of SARCs, VAs and other SHARP personnel. The initial 8-week pilot course (27 Jan - 28 Mar 14) will provide a comprehensive curriculum, including enhanced human relations, interpersonal communication and leadership training. The course is designed to provide more situational-type training to prepare SARCs and VAs for the types of scenarios they typically encounter; broaden their skills in conflict resolution and conducting training; and expose them to current information using subject matter experts from CID, Office of The Judge Advocate General (OTJAG), and Office of the Surgeon General (OTSG). The SHARP Schoolhouse is to be fully operational by 4th Quarter, FY14.
- Continue to implement, revise and refine PME and Civilian Education System (CES) SHARP training to ensure Soldiers, Leaders and Civilians have the skills and knowledge they need to help prevent sexual assault. Place special emphasis on IMT, Future Soldiers and Pre-commissioning.
- Implement new bystander intervention training, "Got Your Back", created by Catharsis Productions, the creators of "Sex Signals". "Got Your Back" is a dynamic, interactive lecture that utilizes audience interaction to explore scenarios where bystander intervention is warranted to stop potential sexual violence and challenge victim blaming attitudes.
- To enhance leadership development, USMA will bring athletic team Officers-in-Charge (OIC) and team captains to Gettysburg to discuss leadership and leader responsibilities for building team cultures based on dignity and respect.
- Publish a SHARP Campaign Plan while continuing to work with DoD and the Joint Staff to operationalize the lines of effort set forth in the Strategic Direction to the Joint Force on Sexual Assault Prevention and Response.

2.1 Summarize your Service or Component's efforts to achieve the Investigation Endstate: “investigative resources yield timely and accurate results.”

CID instituted an updated policy on the conduct of sexual assault investigations in 2007, and has issued improvements to that policy every year since. In FY13, CID issued three changes to the existing policy to address the requirement to withhold disposition authority for sexual assaults to the Colonel level, the refinement of retention of sexual assault evidence, and the initiation of investigations in certain circumstances involving Reserve and National Guard Soldiers who were not on active duty at the time of the offense.

CID has fielded a forensic tool (Cellbrite) that allows agents at all locations to analyze and download emails, texts and phone numbers from suspects' and victims' cell phones, providing valuable evidence in sexual assault investigations.

By training agents to be Digital Forensic Examiners (DFEs), CID is reducing the time it takes for digital forensic examinations of electronic media (computers, cell phones, etc.), thus shortening the investigation time of sexual assault allegations. Instead of digital media being sent to the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Laboratory (USACIL) for examination, the media is now handled at a more local level, allowing for a quicker turnaround time.

Increased review of investigative work is accomplished by the CID Inspector General (IG), emphasizing the need for timely and accurate results. During FY13, the CID IG completed evaluations of investigative services related to sexual assault investigations. General findings verified, with few exceptions, that investigations of sexual assaults were conducted in a thorough and timely manner, and met the command's regulatory investigative standards.

A DoD Inspector General (DoDIG) inspection of sexual assault investigations, published in FY13, found that the investigations conducted by CID were the best of all the Military Criminal Investigation Organizations (MCIO).

2.2 Describe your Service or Component's implementation plan for the establishment of a Special Victim Capability, comprised of specially trained investigators, judge advocates, administrative paralegal support, and victim-witness assistance personnel.

The Army has fully implemented the Special Victim Capability. The core of this team now includes 23 Special Victim Prosecutors (SVP), 21 Sexual Assault Investigators (SAI), and 23 Special Victim Non-commissioned Officers (SVNCO), located at 19 installations across the globe and trained in the unique aspects of investigating and prosecuting sexual assault cases. These teams have geographic areas of responsibility to ensure coverage Army-wide, including all deployed forces in theater. In place since 2009, these specially-trained and selected personnel have overseen an increase of over 100% in the number of special victim cases prosecuted, convictions, and sentences that include a punitive discharge. The Army's Special Victim Capability also includes additional Trial Counsel (TC), specially trained CID investigators, and Victim-Witness Liaisons (VWL).

SVPs are selected at Headquarters, Department of the Army (HQDA) level and are screened by the Chief, Trial Counsel Assistance Program (TCAP). Within the first six months of duty, each SVP attends a two-week Sexual Assault Trial Advocacy Course; a five day New Prosecutor/Essential Strategies for Sexual Assault Prosecution course; and the three-day Special Victim Prosecutor course. They are provided additional training at the National District Attorney's Association Career Prosecutors Course and may perform a two-week internship with a major sexual assault prosecutor's office.

The SVNCO is hand-selected by Army Human Resources Command (HRC) with input from the Regimental Command Sergeant Major (CSM) of the Judge Advocate General (JAG) Corps, and are experienced enlisted paralegals with a background in criminal justice. The SVNCO is assigned for a three-year tour of duty, and is co-located with an SVP. The SVP and SVNCO positions are established at the HQDA level, and are assigned to the Army's busiest jurisdictions as defined by the number of courts-martial over a given calendar year. The SVP can be temporarily relocated to augment other jurisdictions, as directed by the Chief, TCAP.

CID uses the Special Victim Unit Investigation Course (SVUIC) as its baseline for advanced training of SAIs and other investigators. Developed at USAMPS, the SVUIC is recognized as a best practice by the Military Services, the DoDIG and numerous civilian law enforcement agencies. All CID senior special agents have received the SVUIC training, as well as most mid-level supervisors and a number of field agents. Additionally, to address the added crimes of child abuse and domestic violence that were included in the Special Victim Capability responsibilities, three additional courses are taught: the Advanced Crime Scene Course, the Domestic Violence Intervention Techniques (DVIT) Course, and the Child Abuse and the Prevention Investigative Techniques (CAPIT) Course.

2.3 Describe your efforts to enhance training and/or plans for enhanced training for investigators of sexual violence. Include your measures of effectiveness or means by which you are measuring enhancements.

The SVUIC is the cornerstone of advanced sexual assault investigative training for investigators and prosecutors from the Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard. All Services (to include the Air Force) met at USAMPS in December 2012 and conducted a critical task selection panel. This panel recommended additions and refinements to the existing SVUIC to provide students with not only better and more focused training for sexual assault investigations, but with more modules focused on child abuse and domestic violence. This new SVUIC now provides all students with advanced sexual assault training as well as increased training in child abuse and domestic violence investigations.

The effectiveness of the SVUIC training is being measured through the number of judicial and non-judicial actions taken by commanders against offenders, the number of CID units passing established investigative standards for thoroughness, timeliness and timely reporting as evaluated by the Inspector General, and the number of complaints regarding sexual assault investigations received by the Inspector General and CID's Standard of Conduct Office. Thus far, the number of CID units failing the standards is down, the number of complaints is down, and the number of judicial and non-judicial actions taken by commanders is up.

2.4 Describe your Service's efforts to participate in Defense Enterprise Working Group of Military Criminal Investigation Organizations and Defense Criminal Investigative Services to assess and validate joint investigative technology, best practices, and resource efficiencies benchmarked against external law enforcement agencies.

The Defense Enterprise Working Group, comprising the leadership of all Military Criminal Investigation Organizations (MCIOs), other investigative agencies within DoD and the DoDIG, meets on a quarterly basis. Innovative techniques and procedures developed by any one agency are discussed and available for adoption by other agencies. Common investigative operations and best practices are validated, adopted by the agencies and implemented into policy by the DoDIG.

The Working Group benchmarks resources and practices against external law enforcement agencies. An example of the latter is the highly ground-breaking and innovative trauma interview technique developed by USAMPS in cooperation with two national leading psychologists. In addition to being adopted by the Navy, Coast Guard, Marine Corps and the National Guard as a best practice, USAMPS coordinates with the International Chiefs of Police and a national leading psychologist from the University of Michigan, to further refine and export this interview technique to the nation's law enforcement agencies.

2.5 Describe your Military Criminal Investigative Organization's (MCIO) progress on establishment of a Working Group to review initial baseline, periodic refresher, and advanced sexual assault investigation training in order to establish common criteria, measures of effectiveness, and leverage training resources and expertise. If already in progress or completed, briefly describe recommendations, results, and ongoing efforts.

Based on the results of a DoDIG inspection of sexual assault investigation training programs, a Working Group consisting of members from Army, Navy and Air Force MCIOs began meeting during FY13. As the DoDIG noted in its inspection, all MCIOs were meeting the existing regulatory requirements for basic, advanced and annual refresher training. The DoDIG also noted that the CID training generally exceeded the content and time of the other MCIOs training. As a result, the Navy and Marine Corps, as well as the Coast Guard, have adopted the USAMPS SVUIC for their advanced sexual assault investigation training. The final report from the Working Group is expected to be published in early FY14.

2.6 Describe and provide documentation of your Service or Component's implementation of policy for retention of sexual assault documentation (e.g. DD Forms 2910 and 2911). Documentation should be included as an appendix.

The Army complies with the requirements of DoD Instruction (DoDI) 6495.02 for document retention. Since transitioning to Defense Sexual Assault Incident Database (DSAID) in FY13, Army SARCs now upload and store the DD Form 2910 (Victim Reporting Preference Statement) in DSAID for Unrestricted Reports. The Army has also included the requirements for retaining DD Form 2910 in the draft revision of AR 600-20.

CID Regulation 195-1 (Criminal Investigation Operational Procedures) requires the DD Form 2911 (DoD Sexual Assault Forensic Examination Report) be attached as an exhibit to all final CID sexual assault investigations. All final CID reports and exhibits are sent to the U.S. Army Crime Records Center (CRC) for storage, where they are retained on file for 50 years. Although distribution of the DD Form 2911 is limited to CRC and file copies only, this does not restrict a copy of the DD Form 2911 being provided, upon request, to authorized recipients of CID reports (e.g., commanders, prosecutors) who require the report in the performance of official duties, unless otherwise authorized by law.

In accordance with U.S. Army Medical Command (MEDCOM) Regulation 40-36 (Medical Facility Management of Sexual Assault), forensic examination records are maintained separately from the outpatient treatment record to avoid inadvertent disclosure of unrelated information and to preserve confidentiality. Sexual Assault Care Coordinators (SACCs) and Sexual Assault Clinical Providers (SACPs), and all healthcare providers must document the encounter as “sensitive” to protect and promote the welfare of the patient. Paper records are treated as “sensitive,” maintained in a locked, secured container, and identified as a Special Category record by Patient Administration Division.

2.7 Describe your efforts to review and implement policies and procedures that ensure all Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault (and attempts) against adults will be immediately reported to the MCIO, regardless of the severity of the allegation.

AR 600-20 requires unit commanders to report all incidents of sexual assault to CID. AR 600-20 also requires that SARCs and VAs immediately notify law enforcement if a sexual assault victim chooses unrestricted reporting. This requirement is a point of emphasis throughout all Army commands.

2.8 Describe efforts, policies, and/or programmatic changes undertaken to improve Service member confidence and/or victim participation in the investigative and military justice process, as well as how you are addressing the number of victims declining to participate. Include rate of conversion from Restricted to Unrestricted reporting.

Thorough, fair and competent investigations and appropriate prosecution of sexual assault cases are necessary to help maintain a positive culture and climate that does not tolerate sexual assault, and encourages victims to report without fear of reprisal. Accordingly, the Army continues to work to improve confidence in the Army’s investigation and prosecution capabilities by maintaining a Special Victim Capability to focus nearly exclusively on sexual assault cases. Encouraging victims to participate in the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault allegations is an integral part of Army training for investigators and prosecutors.

Through the training at both their basic course and the SVUIC, CID agents are taught to recognize their personal biases and to put them aside when interviewing a sexual assault victim and investigating a sexual assault. The agents are taught and are constantly reminded to treat all victims with dignity and respect. The new Forensic Experiential Trauma Interview (FETI) technique prepares them to ask open ended questions, not to be accusatory and not to use direct questioning. This enhances the rapport the agents build with the victim and tends to ensure cooperation from the victim from the time of the initial interview through the trial. Also, if a victim recants an allegation, agents are trained to cautiously and compassionately investigate the recantation to ensure that the victim has not recanted merely to opt out of an investigation.

Agents and commanders are required to keep the victims informed at least monthly on the status and developments of the investigation. Keeping the victims informed as to the status of the investigation assists in making the investigative process more transparent to the victims, as well as providing an opportunity for the agent to check on the well-being of the victim, and address any concerns, incidents or threats. CID agents are taught to look for signs of potential threats, and with the concurrence of the victim, to work with either military lawyers and commanders, or civilian prosecutors, to obtain protective orders against the suspect when needed. Protecting the victim, keeping the victim informed, showing a caring attitude, and keeping the investigation focused on the suspect rather than victim are all methods that tend to improve the victim's confidence in the investigative process.

Regarding victim participation in the military justice process, the Army's most recent Operational Troops Survey (2012) cited that 42% of female respondents who experienced sexual assault filed a report (an increase from 28% in the previous survey in 2009). The 2012 Defense Manpower Data Center (DMDC) Workplace and Gender Relations survey also showed that 34% of female Soldiers who indicated they experienced unwanted sexual contact reported the incident, an increase from 20% in 2010.

In accordance with the directives from the Secretary of Defense, the Army began to implement a Special Victim Counsel (SVC) program that offers an attorney to Soldier and Family Member victims of sexual assault to represent them throughout the investigative and judicial proceedings. The SVC program is discussed in detail throughout Section 3 (LOE 3 - Accountability).

In FY13, 46 of 364 Restricted Reports were converted to Unrestricted Reports; a rate of 13% compared to 23% (53 of 227) in FY12.

2.9 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to the achievement of high competence in the investigation of sexual assault.

The SVUIC will remain the cornerstone of advanced sexual assault investigative training for Army SAIs. CID plans to hire eight additional civilian SAI in FY14.

In conjunction with SVUIC training, an Additional Skill Identifier (ASI) is awaiting approval for any CID member of a Special Victim Capability. Another ASI is pending for agents upon completion of DVIT and CAPIT courses. Once approved, these ASIs will facilitate the assignment and management of qualified CID agents to ensure that a certified and trained agent is present at every Army installation that houses a CID unit.

3. LOE 3 - Accountability—The objective of accountability is to “achieve high competence in holding offenders appropriately accountable.”

3.1 Summarize your Service or Component's efforts to achieve the Accountability Endstate: “perpetrators are held appropriately accountable.”

In order to ensure the Army most effectively addresses allegations of sexual assault, the JAG Corps continued to implement the SVP and Highly Qualified Expert (HQE) programs. These efforts are intended to establish the best practices available in regard to disposition of sexual assault allegations and to ensure the Army's ability to most effectively prosecute and defend sexual assault and special victim cases.

- SVPs provide expertise to the investigation and disposition of sexual assault allegations and are specially selected based on military justice experience, advocacy and interpersonal skills. This mission requires SVPs to maintain excellent working relationships with those investigating allegations of these crimes and those professionals working to meet the physical, spiritual, and emotional needs of the victims.

- The Army filled all seven of its OTJAG HQE positions as of Nov 10. These HQEs are recognized experts in the prosecution of sexual assault cases. They act as program advisors, they provide direct assistance on individual cases and they are also trainers.

Also in FY13, the Army designed the Special Victim Counsel Program to provide services to a member of the armed forces, or a dependent of a member, who is a victim of a sexual assault. Initial Operating Capability occurred on 1 Nov 13.

3.2 Describe your efforts to enhance training and/or plans for enhanced SAPR training for attorneys and military judges. Include your efforts to monitor training requirements to ensure the optimal number receive enhanced SAPR training and your measures of effectiveness.

The Office of The Judge Advocate General has developed a synchronized, integrated developmental program that directs and manages training for Judge Advocates from initial entry on active duty to senior practitioners. Attendance at training is managed at both the local level by supervising Staff Judge Advocates and at the Department of the Army level to ensure the highest proficiency across jurisdictions. To track trial advocacy proficiency, the Army initiated a military justice skill identifier program in 2008. The skill identifier program encourages Judge Advocates to acquire greater skill in litigation and expertise in military justice. It allows the Army to better train and challenge Judge Advocates throughout their careers to improve their military justice proficiency. There are four levels: Basic Military Justice Practitioner, Senior Military Justice Practitioner, Expert Military Justice Practitioner, and Master Military Justice Practitioner.

In addition to the Special Victim Prosecutor program described in LOE 2, the Army conducted the following extensive training events for trial counsel in FY13:

- Judge Advocate Officer Basic Course: Students participate as trial counsel and/or defense counsel in two mock court exercises. The scenario for the course is a sexual assault scenario, and key aspects of sexual assault cases like victim-witness programs, victim behavior, evidentiary rules, etc. are emphasized throughout the instruction.
- Intermediate Trial Advocacy Course: This course presents intensive intermediate trial skills instruction and practical exercises and workshops covering issues regarding courts-martial from case analysis through presentencing argument. The following areas are addressed: trial procedure; trial advocacy techniques; professional responsibility; and topical aspects of current military law, with particular emphasis on the military rules of evidence. The factual scenario which forms the basis of all instruction is a sexual assault scenario.
- Military Justice Manager's Course: This course provides legal teams charged with administering military justice management systems with information and practical tips regarding pretrial, trial, and post-trial procedures. Topics include: Military Justice On-line; required reports; pretrial case evaluation and management through referral; SHARP Program; discovery and production, pretrial negotiations and preparation; and proper post-trial processing.

- Judge Advocate Officer Graduate Course: The Military Justice Core Instruction is a 46-hour portion of the overall course which produces graduates who understand military justice in order to accurately advise all levels of command on military justice matters, to correctly perform all basic military justice functions themselves, and to successfully supervise and train subordinates who perform basic military justice functions. The context for all course work is a sexual assault case.
- Staff Judge Advocate Course: This course educates newly selected Staff Judge Advocates, Deputy Staff Judge Advocates, and similar leaders in legal, leadership, and management topics to enable them to effectively lead a military legal office. A full day of this course (over 20% of the course itself) is dedicated to advising the convening authority on military justice actions, and specifically handling sexual assault cases.

The TCAP also executed the following events:

- Regional Conferences: These conferences are sexual assault and special victim prosecution focused. The instructors included uniformed/TCAP personnel, TCAP HQEs, and prominent civilian experts in the area of sexual assault and special victim prosecutions. These three-day training events included instruction concerning the prosecution of special victim cases.
- Outreach Program. This program concentrated on basic military justice practice and procedures with a focus on sexual assault prosecutions and walking new/relatively new counsel through the courts-martial process from initial allegation through sentencing. The outreaches included up to eight hours of sexual assault specific training, advocacy training and specific/focused training as requested by the Chiefs of Military Justice.
- Essential Strategies for Sexual Assault Prosecution: Taught in conjunction with the New Prosecutor's Course, the subject matter is sexual assault crimes and crimes against special victims (i.e., women and children). The training is modeled after sexual assault institutes throughout the country, which train prosecutors to successfully prosecute sex and other special victim crimes.
- Sexual Assault Trial Advocacy Course (SATAC). TCAP conducted one SATAC which includes both Trial Counsel and U.S. Army Trial Defense Counsel. The SATAC is a two-week trial advocacy course focusing on the fundamentals of trial advocacy in the context of litigating special victim cases.
- Introduction to Forensic Evidence. This course is held at the Defense Forensic Science Center using USACIL instructors. During the investigation of many sexual assault cases, local investigators from CID send various pieces of evidence to USACIL for examination.
- Sexual Assault Expert Symposium. This symposium introduces participants to the scientific disciplines they will encounter while litigating special victim cases. Classes are taught by some of the leading experts in their fields. The experts include: a Forensic Pathologist; a Forensic Psychologist; a Forensic Psychiatrist; a Sexual Assault Forensic Examiner/Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner; and a Forensic Toxicologist.

- Special Victim Prosecutor Conference. TCAP conducted an SVP conference, bringing all SVPs assigned throughout the world to one location to discuss trends and issues in the investigation and disposition of special victim cases.

3.3 Describe your Service's efforts to conduct an assessment of DoD Pilot Program for Special Victims Counsel. If an assessment has been completed, explain findings and recommendations.

As of the writing of this report, the Army's Special Victim Counsel Program is fully operational.

Two instructional courses have been completed, training a total of 106 SVCs, 81 Active Army counsel, 21 Army National Guard (ARNG) counsel and four Army Reserve counsel. The Active Army SVCs are located at 32 installations. Those installations without a resident SVC have an identified installation to turn to for SVC support. The SVC Program Manager has the ability to allocate assets as needed to ensure every Army Special Victim has access to an SVC if desired. SVCs are now providing services to clients and have already made appearances on behalf of clients in courts-martial motions hearings.

Special Victim Counsel are judge advocate legal assistance attorneys who have received specialized training and are designated by their Staff Judge Advocate (SJA) as SVCs. An SVC's role is to zealously represent the victim of a sexual assault. Based on a victim's decisions, the SVC will represent their best interests even if it does not align with those of the government of the United States or with those of the accused. An SVC's primary duty is to the victim and no other person, organization, or entity. Special Victim Counsel will work to empower the victim by fostering their understanding of the military justice process and providing them with specialized legal assistance. This will be accomplished by providing effective and timely advice, being available to assist throughout the entire military justice process, and providing appropriate advocacy to ensure that the rights a victim is entitled to are fully realized. The mission of the SVC is to provide the client with confidential legal representation related to issues that may arise as a result of the sexual assault.

Representation will end at initial action by the General Court-Martial Convening Authority (GCMCA), or similar disposition of the complaint, or when the client determines services are no-longer required. SVC services include:

- Accompany and advise the victim during interviews, examinations, hearings, and courts-martial proceedings;
- Represent the victim in courts-martial proceedings as permitted by law;
- Referral of the victim to the Army Trial Defense Service for collateral misconduct, if necessary;
- Advocate the victim's interest with government counsel and commanders on disposition options;
- Assist the victim with post-trial submissions to include victim impact statements;
- Advise the victim on collateral civil issues arising from the crime;

- Provide the victim with legal assistance services as needed;
- Answer any questions that the victim may have about the courts-martial process;
- Coordinate with the Victim Witness Liaison (VWL), SARCs, and VAs to insure that the victim is informed of:
  - Their reporting options;
  - Their rights as a victim;
  - Their eligibility for military and Veterans Administration benefits;
  - Their right to request an expedited transfer;
  - Their ability to obtain a military protective order and/or a civilian protective order; and
  - The nature of the military justice system and victim's rights/duties.

The SVC work in Legal Assistance Offices across the Army and are supervised by the respective Chief of Legal Services at the installation. They are required to coordinate with each stakeholder located at the installation: VWL, SVP, Trial Counsel, Trial Defense Counsel, SJA, CID and others on the services they provide. In addition, each SVC will establish contact with local SARC/VA and must establish procedures for expedited referral of victim-clients who request SVC services. In each of these relationships, the SVC will work with those individuals to coordinate support for the victim and avoid duplication of efforts. Chiefs of Legal Assistance assign each victim-client to an SVC. If the Chief of Legal Assistance is unable to appoint a SVC due to a conflict, the Chief of Legal Assistance will coordinate with the SVC Program Manager for the designation of an alternate SVC.

The SVC Program will have an impact on legal assistance services across the Army. Therefore, The Judge Advocate General has given SJAs authority to limit services to retirees and their family members in order to meet the demand to serve victims of sexual assault. In addition, the Chief of Staff authorized the mobilization of 20 Reserve Component judge advocates to serve as backfill in some of the legal assistance offices. The Judge Advocate General has tasked the SVC Program Manager to gather data over the next 12 months to determine the required number of SVCs.

3.4 Describe your efforts to expand the availability, sequencing, and scope of commander's legal courses. Include your measures of effectiveness.

The Army has sustained and expanded legal education for commanders, and added education for their senior enlisted advisors. Commanders that serve as court-martial convening authorities attend mandatory legal education at the Senior Office Legal Orientation (SOLO) (for Special Court-Martial Convening Authorities -- SPCMCA) and the General Officer Legal Orientation (GOLO) (for GCMCA). Additionally, The Judge Advocate General Legal Center and School (TJAGLCS) recently published the 2013 version of the Commander's Legal Handbook.

The SOLO is a 4.5 day course that covers the full breadth of a commander's legal responsibilities. Classes are generally 60-70 students with seminars and electives built into the curriculum. A significant portion of the course focuses on command responsibilities related to sexual assault. While most commanders who attend are brigade level commanders, a significant number of battalion commanders attend on a space-available basis. There are efforts to expand legal education for all battalion commanders and to enhance commander education at the company command level through standardized training support packages implemented at the local level.

The GOLO is a one-day course that is required for all general officers who will serve as a GCMCA, but is also mandated by the Chief of Staff for all General Officers who are deploying. This course is conducted in a "one-on-one" setting and consists of mandatory topics including Sexual Harassment and Sexual Assault Prevention and Response, as well as elective topics that help focus the commander and specific topics relevant to their command.

The Command Sergeant Major Legal Orientation is a new 3.5 day course that covers legal topics relevant to the duties of the senior enlisted advisors to general officers and SES civilians. Attendees are nominative CSMs whose attendance is approved by the Sergeant Major of the Army. SHARP topics are emphasized in this course.

Training at the Company Commander and First Sergeant Course and the Battalion and Brigade Pre-Command Course (PCC) is specifically focused on preparing leaders for the unique SHARP responsibilities inherent in their respective levels of command. The instruction at the Battalion and Brigade PCC is provided by General Officers from the OTJAG and the Office of the Provost Marshal General (OPMG).

The goal of these courses is to increase leader awareness of legal issues and provide them the tools to effectively handle issues in conjunction with their servicing SJA. Effectiveness of these courses is measured from three perspectives. First, students provide feedback during the course. Second, TJAGLCS is initiating a process to seek feedback from the students after they have been in their job for a period of time. Finally, feedback is provided by SJA about the leaders in their units who have attended the courses and their ability to address situations that include legal issues.

3.5 Describe your efforts to assess the effectiveness of the policy to elevate initial disposition authority to a Special Court Martial Convening Authority in the grade of O-6 or higher. Provide documentation in the appendix. If assessment complete, briefly describe results and recommendations.

The Army has fully implemented the Secretary of Defense-directed requirement to elevate disposition authority for rape, sexual assault and forcible sodomy to a SPCMCA who is an officer at the O-6 (Colonel) level. TCAP and TJAGLCS provide training on this requirement to Judge Advocates and Commanders. The requirement is also incorporated into annual training for all Soldiers and in PME for all leaders.

Although no assessment has been conducted, the Army has not experienced any significant challenges in implementing the policy. Recently, OTJAG sent a message to the field reminding commands of this requirement and other important sexual assault policies, including the appointment of Judge Advocates as Article 32 officers in sexual assault cases. Copies were also specifically directed to field legal offices.

3.6 Describe any treatment or rehabilitation programs implemented by your Service or Component for those members who have been convicted of a sexual assault. Include any pertinent referrals such as drug and alcohol counseling, or other types of counseling or intervention.

All military correctional facilities provide, at a minimum, victim impact awareness and substance abuse/drug and alcohol education. The medium and maximum security facilities offer additional programs focusing on the prisoner's offense. These behavior specific group treatment programs include sex offender education/treatment. Group treatment is considered voluntary and prisoners may decline to participate.

The sex offender education/treatment groups vary by facility:

- United States Disciplinary Barracks (maximum security facility). Prisoners are assessed to determine the level of treatment services they require for their sexual offenses.
  - Prisoners who are determined to be low risk will be placed in a low risk group. This group meets for approximately 36 sessions that are two hours in length.
  - Prisoners who are assessed to be moderate or high risk will be placed in an intensive treatment group. This phase includes sessions that meet twice a week for a total of four hours of treatment per week.
    - This group is open-ended in nature and the prisoner's progress in treatment determines the length of time spent in the group. The average length of participation is 40 weeks.
    - The group is facilitated by a team of professional staff who are specifically trained to work with sexual offenders. Training for staff is on-going due to the changing nature of the treatment field.
  - The goals are for the inmates to:
    - Understand their offending pattern and their risk factors for re-offense.
    - Develop appropriate skills to mitigate their risk for re-offending.
    - Learn how to achieve their life goals without harm to others.
  - Upon completion of the prisoner's required treatment, the prisoner will be placed in a sex offender maintenance group that meets based upon their risk level to re-offend.
- Midwest Joint Regional Correctional Facility and Northwest Joint Regional Correctional Facility (medium security facilities). These programs are designed to introduce offenders to the broader concepts involved in sex offender treatment and range from six to ten sessions. The programs are facilitated by a credentialed provider. The goal is to prepare the prisoner for their mandatory attendance in treatment after incarceration which is managed by individual jurisdictions and made available in the private sector.

3.7 List updates or efforts to update policies requiring the processing for administrative separation of any member convicted of a sexual assault. Include documentation in the appendix.

AR 600-20 requires Commanders to process for administrative separation any Soldier convicted of sexual assault in foreign, civilian, or military courts. This provision does not apply to Soldiers who have a court-martial sentence that includes a dishonorable discharge, bad conduct discharge, or a dismissal.

3.8 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to the achievement of high competence in holding offenders appropriately accountable.

In addition to continuing the SVP and SVC Programs, TJAGLCS and the TCAP Program will continue to train as described in the response to Sections 3.2 and 3.4.

On 7 Nov 13, the Secretary signed Army Directive 2013-21 (Initiating Separation Proceedings and Prohibiting Overseas Assignment for Soldiers Convicted of Sex Offenses). This directive (http://www.apd.army.mil/pdffiles/ad2013\_21.pdf) ensures the decision to retain any Soldier convicted of a sex offense is fully informed and in the Army's best interest. In addition, this directive prohibits the overseas assignment of any Soldier convicted of a sex offense.

4. LOE 4 - Advocacy/Victim Assistance--The objective of advocacy/victim assistance is to “deliver consistent and effective victim support, response, and reporting options.”

4.1 Summarize your Service or Component’s efforts to achieve the Advocacy/Victim Assistance Endstate: “DoD provides high quality services and support to instill confidence and trust, strengthen resilience, and inspire victims to report.”

The Army’s intent is to ensure only the best people serve in the important positions of SARCs and VAs. On 28 May 13, the Secretary issued a memorandum stating that SARCs and VAs are our "frontline forces" in support of commanders in the fight against sexual assault - a crime that erodes our readiness and violates our values. Together with recruiters, drill sergeants and Advanced Individual Training (AIT) platoon sergeants, these persons occupy positions of significant trust and authority.

To ensure greater accountability in the appointment of SARCs and VAs, the Secretary reserved the authority to appoint SARCs to the first GO/SES in the SARC's chain of command. He also reserved the authority to appoint VAs to the brigade commander, or equivalent-level commander or civilian supervisor (serving in a grade no lower than Colonel or GS-15), with cognizance over the position. The Secretary also mandated more in-depth screening requirements, and strengthened selection criteria for SARCs and VAs.

The strict requirements for SARC/VA selection and screening, combined with comprehensive training and the support of special investigators, special prosecutors and special victim counsel, demonstrate the Army’s commitment to sexual assault victims through a multidisciplinary team approach to victim advocacy.

Another demonstration of the Army’s commitment to victims is the Sexual Harassment and Assault Panel which serves as an independent panel for the Chief of Staff. The panel advises senior Army leadership on the policies, programs, and services which impact victims of sexual assault and harassment. The panel assists the Army in its efforts to improve overall victim care and trust in the chain of command, to increase reporting, and to reduce the possibility of ostracizing victims, to include recommending methods to improve victim treatment by their peers, co-workers, and chains of command.

4.2 List the total number of full-time SARC/SAPR VAs serving at brigade or equivalent level. If not at 100%, describe your efforts to achieve 100% fill.

As of 30 Sep 13, Army had 307 full-time SARCs and 281 full-time VAs serving at brigade or equivalent sized units. The Army is not at 100% due to a hiring freeze which went into effect to address screening requirements for civilian personnel, including SARCs and VAs. The Army is using credentialed, collateral duty military personnel to fill gaps until the full complement of civilian personnel are hired, trained, credentialed, and in place.

4.3 List the total number SARCs and SAPR VAs certified in FY13. If not at 100%, describe your efforts to achieve 100% certified.

The Army has 1,212 SARCs and 10,496 VAs credentialed as of the end of FY13.

4.4 Describe your efforts to develop victim continuity of care protocol in collaboration with the Department of Veterans Affairs and external Veterans Service Organizations.

The Army SHARP Program Office hosted a webinar with more than 150 members of the Department of Veterans Affairs Military Sexual Assault Support Team and Mental Health Services. The webinar objectives included:

- Policies adopted by the Army to minimize sexual assaults, encourage reporting of incidents, and provide treatment to survivors.
- Army initiatives to establish sexual assault prevention training and awareness programs to educate Soldiers.
- The Chief of Staff's SHARP Imperatives and the SHARP Stand-Down.
- SARC and VA credentialing.
- SHARP Lifecycle training.
- Role of VA in supporting the victim.
- How the Army is changing culture in order to eliminate sexual harassment and sexual assault.

4.5 Describe your efforts to improve the portability and availability of victim services in deployed environments, ensuring continuity of victim care. Include a description of the steps taken during that year to ensure that trained personnel, appropriate supplies, and transportation resources are accessible to deployed units in order to provide an appropriate and timely response in any case of reported sexual assault in a deployed unit, location, or environment.

The Army ensures units deploy with trained sexual assault response personnel. Deployed SHARP Program personnel use organic transportation assets and/or coordinate for external assets as needed.

All deployed Level III Combat Support Hospitals maintain adequate supplies on hand to treat victims of sexual assault. The U.S. Army Medical Command (MEDCOM) collaborated with the U.S. Central Command (CENTCOM) Surgeon on a revision of CENTCOM policy regarding the pre-deployment training requirements for conducting Sexual Assault Forensic Exams (SAFE).

U.S. Army Central (ARCENT) Operations Order (OPORD) 13-001 outlines the requirements for brigade and battalion level units to provide adequate work areas and logistical support (phone, cell phone, email access, committed vehicle, etc.) to full-time and collateral duty SHARP personnel to ensure 24/7 coverage. Additionally, Command/Brigade SARCs with VAs in multiple locations travel to all locations routinely to ensure personnel are aware of all updated policies and procedures.

In U.S. Army Europe (USAREUR), the 21st Theater Sustainment Command (TSC) and USAREUR G-1 conduct refresher training with full-time SARC and VA personnel prior to their deployment to Camp Bondsteel, Kosovo.

4.6 Describe revised policies and/or procedures developed that allow Reserve Component Service members who are victims of sexual assault while on active duty to remain on active duty status to obtain the treatment and support afforded active duty members. Include documentation in the appendix.

The Army established procedures in 2009 to ensure that Line of Duty (LOD) determinations are completed at the time a member of the Reserve Component files a Restricted Report, for the purpose of enabling the victim's access to medical care. The Army will adjust its policy as necessary to comply with additional DoD guidance when published.

The ARNG SHARP Program Office provides support to the State/Territory of any ARNG Soldier requesting to stay on or return to active duty.

4.7 Describe your efforts to enhance sexual assault training for health care providers. Include requirements that ensure training conforms to "A National Protocol for Sexual Assault Medical Forensic Examinations, Adults/Adolescents"; how to handle a Restricted Report; and how to conduct the SAFE exam.

MEDCOM Regulation 40-36 (Medical Facility Management of Sexual Assault) directs the healthcare team in the provision of timely, accessible and comprehensive medical management of all sexual assault patients at each Army Military Medical Treatment Facility (MTF). The multidisciplinary medical team provides immediate and ongoing treatment to patients and coordination of those services.

Sexual assault patients are given expert, emergency treatment. Regardless of evidence of physical injury, all patients presenting to an MTF with an allegation of sexual assault receive comprehensive and compassionate expert treatment. They are offered a SAFE completed by a trained and competent Sexual Assault Medical Forensic Examiner (SAMFE) at the MTF or at a local facility through a memorandum of agreement. All exams are completed in accordance with Department of Justice protocols (DoJ) and guidelines. Follow-on care is coordinated and managed through SARCs, VAs, SACCs and SACP.

Every MTF has an informal sexual assault medical management program with a Deputy Commander for Clinical Services (DCCS) providing oversight to the SAMFE, the SACC and SACP. This team works with the SARCs and VAs to ensure comprehensive and coordinated care to all patients following sexual assault. Currently, there are over 300 healthcare providers trained as SAMFE, SACCs and SACP across 50 MTFs.

The U.S. Army Medical Department (AMEDD) SAMFE 80-hour training is based on DoJ National Training Standards to train Physicians, Physician Assistants, Advanced Practice Nurses, and Registered Nurses to conduct forensic exams. A 40-hour training curriculum prepares candidates to meet the healthcare needs of adult and adolescent sexual assault patients followed by a second week of clinical competency training.

SAMFEs, SACCs, SACP, local SHARP leaders, and MEDCOM SARCs and VAs are given annual training through the AMEDD Sexual Assault Medical Management Course, a 40-hour course in support of both medical management following sexual assault and the MEDCOM Command program.

The AMEDD SAMFE training meets CENTCOM pre-deployment requirements for healthcare providers assigned to Role II and Role III facilities. To support pre-deployment and local SAMFE requirements, seven CONUS and OCONUS sites hosted nine courses in FY13. Additionally, AMEDD increased the number of behavioral health personnel in Theater to approximately one provider for every 800 Soldiers.

4.8 Describe sexual assault related health care initiatives undertaken by your Service in FY13. Include mental health treatment programs and follow-up procedures that are gender-responsive, culturally competent, and recovery-oriented.

Each patient (sexual assault victim) and their healthcare team work together to develop a long-term care plan tailored to meet the individual's medical and behavioral healthcare needs. Many of the Army's SACCs are Behavioral/ Mental Healthcare Providers.

The AMEDD sexual assault medical management team is designed to provide immediate and long-term patient care, from assessment of risk for pregnancy, options for emergency contraception, risk of sexually transmitted infections, to necessary follow-up care and services. All patients are offered a referral to Behavioral Health at their first medical encounter, and encouraged to receive psychological care and victim advocacy.

The AMEDD Center & School, Department of Behavioral Health, offers evidence-based behavioral health training that assists with the a full spectrum of treatment and behavioral health care of sexual assault patients.

4.9 List the number of victims, if any, whose care was hindered due to lack of SAFE kits or timely access to appropriate laboratory testing resources and describe the measures you took to remedy the situation.

There were no reported cases in which a victim's care was hindered by lack of availability of a SAFE kit or other resources/medical supplies.

4.10 List initiatives and programs implemented to reduce the stigma and overcome barriers associated with reporting sexual assault.

As previously noted, the most significant program initiative to reduce the stigma of reporting sexual assault is the Army's Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy and "I. A.M. Strong" Campaign. "I. A.M. Strong" encourages Soldiers to take action to prevent sexual assault, fosters a culture of respect, and helps reduce the stigma of reporting by increasing victims' confidence in their chain of command to take appropriate action. Accordingly, there are several ongoing initiatives to help reduce the stigma of reporting a sexual assault. These include:

- Introducing SHARP Program reporting policies and resources within the first 14 days of IMT helps demonstrate to new Soldiers that the Army takes sexual assault seriously, holds offenders accountable and takes care of victims.
- Army investigators use of the FETI technique has already shown to drastically reduce victim recantations, increase victim cooperation and participation, and support prosecution efforts.

- CID agents are taught to ensure that victims are aware that if they are threatened or otherwise harassed, they are to immediately report it to the agent. CID policy requires that all threats or harassment of a victim must be fully investigated and reported to the commander to take action.
- Some commanders find that communicating the anonymous results of sexual assault cases to their Soldiers helps show the chain of command's commitment to thorough and fair investigations and dispositions, thus mitigating some victim's reasons for not reporting.
- Former victims, who are so inclined to speak to Soldiers about the professionalism shown by sexual assault responders in their case, may help alleviate the stigma of reporting. During FY13, the Chief of Staff hosted the first of a planned recurring SHARP panel that included sexual assault victims.
- Joint Base Lewis-McChord (JBLM) established a SHARP Resource Center as a "One-Stop" location for victims to meet with a multi-disciplined team of sexual assault responders, including; SARC/VA, law enforcement, healthcare and legal personnel. The JBLM SHARP Resource Center's mission is to provide continuous care from initial report to final disposition.
- During FY13, the Army required all units to conduct officer and NCO professional development sessions using the documentary, "The Invisible War". These sessions allowed leaders to take an introspective look, better understand the long term consequences for victims of sexual assault and appreciate the public perceptions of sexual assault in the military.
- USMA implemented Cadets Against Sexual Harassment/Assault (CASH/A), a cadet initiative with oversight provided by the United States Corps of Cadets' (USCC) SARC. CASH/A cadets are peer advisors and trainers assisting their tactical leadership teams in providing timely information on prevention and response to sexual harassment complaints and sexual assault reports.
- The Army's implementation of expedited transfer procedures helps mitigate victims' concerns about workplace issues that may prevent them from reporting a sexual assault. More than 220 Soldiers requested and received an expedited transfer in FY13.
- The newly established Special Victim Counsel Program is specifically designed to help victims through the reporting, investigation and judicial processes.
- Enhanced screening and credentialing requirements help ensure the best personnel possible are selected to serve in SARC and VA positions, raising the confidence Soldiers have in the SHARP Program.
- Army Chaplains play an important role supporting the SHARP Program by providing pastoral response to victims of sexual assault and collaborative relationships with treatment facilities and SARCs.
- The Army increased its inventory of clinical behavioral health providers and is transforming behavioral health delivery to become more accessible by embedding it into unit and primary care resources.

- An ongoing and aggressive SHARP outreach campaign across Army installations uses all means available (e.g., TV, radio, marquees, newspapers, guest speakers, networking and Newcomer Orientations) to demonstrate the Army's commitment to take all reports of sexual assault seriously and treat victims with dignity and respect.

4.11 Describe what measures have been taken by your Service to ensure that Service members are informed in a timely manner of the member's option to request a Military Protective Order (MPO) from the command of assignment. Include documentation that requires law enforcement agents to document MPOs in their investigative case files, to include documentation for Reserve Component personnel in title 10 status.

Commanders' use of Military Protective Orders (MPO) and consideration of transferring sexual assault victims (and/or subjects) is documented in Army policy in Chapter 8, AR 600-20 (Army Command Policy), and included in pre-command training. Additionally, the current SHARP MTT discusses MPO use in the senior leader portion of the training. The Army also published a comprehensive SHARP Guidebook for commanders in FY13. The guidebook explains that Soldiers have the option to request an MPO after making an Unrestricted Report.

SHARP personnel (SARCs and/or VAs) inform victims of their rights regarding separation from the offender, MPOs, temporary restraining orders and transfers.

In accordance with AR 190-45 (Law Enforcement Reporting), all MPOs issued by a commander have to be provided to the installation law enforcement activity, which is required to initiate a Military Police Report (MPR) on the action. A copy of the MPO is then retained with that MPR. When an MPO is issued in conjunction with a CID investigation, a copy of the MPO is retained with the investigative case file.

Also, in accordance with CID Regulation 195-1 (Criminal Investigation Operational Procedures), Special Agents will obtain copies of MPOs issued by commanders to Soldier subject/suspects in all sexual assault investigations. Copies of civilian protective orders (CPO) issued to Soldier subject/suspects in all sexual assault investigations are obtained when available. A copy of the MPO and/or CPO will be an attached exhibit to the final Report of Investigation.

4.12 Describe and provide documentation of your Service or Component's expedited victim transfer request policy, including measures taken to ensure victims are informed in a timely manner of their right to request an expedited transfer.

There were no new policies issued in FY13 regarding expedited transfers.

As reported in the FY12 Annual Report, the Secretary signed Army Directive 2011-19 (Expedited Transfer or Reassignment Procedures for Victims of Sexual Assault) on 3 Oct 11 (http://www.apd.army.mil/pdf/AD2011\_19.pdf). Soldiers who file an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault are informed by the SARC at the time of making the report, or as soon as practicable, of the option to request a temporary or permanent expedited transfer from their assigned command or installation or to a different location within their assigned command or installation.

In accordance with the Army Directive, commanders must start with a presumption in favor of granting a victim's request for transfer and take reasonable steps to prevent a transfer or reassignment from negatively impacting a victim's career. Commanders must also ensure the victim is fully informed regarding reasonably foreseen impacts to his/her career, potential impact of the transfer on investigation and potential prosecution of the case. Only a General Officer can disapprove a request for a local transfer and only the Commanding General (CG), Human Resources Command (HRC) can disapprove a transfer from an installation.

The SHARP Program Office and HRC have established oversight procedures to quickly resolve any Soldier transfer processing issues. Additionally, when considering the best courses of action for separating the victim and the subject, commanders may determine that the subject should be transferred.

4.12.1 Pertaining to temporary and/or permanent local expedited transfers (a different location within their assigned command or installation), provide:

- The number requested
- The number approved as the victim requested
- The number approved different than the victim requested
- The number denied and a summary of why
- The number moved within 30 days of approval
- The number moved after 30 days of approval

The number requested (38)

- The number approved as the victim requested (37)
- The number approved different than the victim requested (1)
- The number denied and a summary of why (0)
- The number moved within 30 days of approval (38)
- The number moved after 30 days of approval (0)

4.12.2 Pertaining to permanent requested expedited transfers (from their assigned command or installation), provide:

- The number requested
- The number approved as the victim requested
- The number approved different than the victim requested
- The number denied and a summary of why
- The number moved within 30 days of approval
- The number moved after 30 days of approval

The number requested (192)

- The number approved as the victim requested (191)
- The number approved different than the victim requested (0)
- The number denied and a summary of why (1)
  - Brigade commander recommended disapproval because victim's unit moved resulting in geographical separation from the alleged offender.
  - The first GO in the victim's chain of command and the CG, HRC concurred with the commander's recommendation for disapproval.
- The number moved within/after 30 days of approval (All orders are issued with early reporting authorized).

4.13 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to delivering consistent and effective victim support, response, and reporting options.

As previously mentioned, the Army will establish a centralized SHARP Schoolhouse in FY14, incorporating instruction from CID, OTJAG, OTSG, and others, to better prepare full-time SARCs and VAs for the scenarios they typically encounter. The comprehensive 8-week training at the SHARP Schoolhouse will help the Army’s efforts to professionalize the SHARP Program with high quality personnel who can establish and maintain the confidence and trust of the Soldiers they support.

The Army will continue to credential SARCs/VAs via the National Organization for Victim Assistance (NOVA) through the Department of Defense Sexual Assault Advocate Certification Program (D-SAACP).

The Army will evaluate the SHARP Resource Center model developed at JBLM for applicability across the Army.

During FY14, the Army will formalize each MTF’s sexual assault medical management office with a medical director, responsive to the DCCS. The intent is to have all sexual assault medical providers meet the same enhanced and expanded background checks as SARCs and VAs.

The SVP, SVC and other Judge Advocate training efforts will continue. TJAGLCS has already posted SVC training on-line to provide initial training and refresher opportunities.

5. LOE 5 - Assessment—The objective of assessment is to “effectively standardize, measure, analyze, assess, and report program progress.”

5.1 Summarize your Service or Component’s efforts to achieve the Assessment Endstate: “DoD incorporates responsive, meaningful, and accurate systems of measurement and evaluation into every aspect of the SAPR program.”

Throughout FY13, the Army actively conducted multiple means of data collection, through leader-led focus groups, sexual assault case report data, and survey data. The information provided valuable insights into the SHARP Program, but still requires a clear direction for future analysis.

In FY13, the Army added research and analysis experts to the SHARP Program Office to assist in expanding and focusing measurement and assessment efforts. These experts consist of an Operations Research Analyst, a Process Improvement Specialist, and a Research Psychologist. Through active collaboration with Army staff, Army units, DoD SAPRO, and sister Services, the Army is progressing toward a meaningful measurement and evaluation system aligned along the DoD Lines of Effort. This system will be fully operational in FY14.

5.2 Describe oversight activities during FY13 that assess the SAPR program effectiveness. Include frequency, methods used, findings and recommendations, corrective action taken (e.g., program management review and Inspector General inspections), and other activities. Include documentation of published reports in appendix.

The first line of assessments of the SHARP Program’s effectiveness is the monthly SARB chaired by the Senior Commander at each Army installation. Commanders conduct assessments through the SARB with the Senior Commander and critical response agencies that include CID, SJA, Behavioral Health, IG, and subordinate commanders with their SARCs/VAs. The SARBs review cases and identify trends that could assist commanders in determining where potential areas of concern exist in order to develop courses of action to reduce or eliminate these crimes.

At the HQDA level, several assessments of the SHARP Program occurred during FY13:

- “Red Team” focus groups, directed by the Chief of Staff, assessed the effectiveness of the Army SHARP Program. These teams consisted of a broad spectrum of subject matter experts, to include representatives from the Army SHARP Program, Office of the Provost Marshal General (OPMG), OTSG, HQDA Inspector General (DAIG), OTJAG, and Office of the Chief of Chaplains (OCCH).
- The Vice Chief of Staff conducted a sensing session trip to installations across the Army. The trip included a visit to Fort Jackson, SC, one of the Army’s largest training bases. The Vice Chief of Staff met with a wide variety of leaders, Soldiers, and Family Members in order to assess the climate in the field regarding SHARP.
- The Deputy Chief of Staff, G-1, and HRC conducted comprehensive reviews of all policies related to SHARP and are currently rewriting AR 600-20 (Army Command Policy) to ensure it encompasses current directives and guidance.

Further, HQDA and Army commands evaluated the Lackland Air Force Base investigation and lessons learned. These assessments included TRADOC and commands that support the IMT mission; USAREC, U.S. Army Cadet Command (USACC), and USMA. These assessments identified areas for clarification and improvement in Army policy, procedures, training and oversight in the SHARP Program.

In April, the DAIG conducted an Army-wide data call to assess:

- Compliance with established SHARP policies as outlined in Army directives.
- Training, certification, validation and tracking of Brigade (and equivalent) SARCs, VAs and collateral duty SHARP personnel.
- Effectiveness of the Army SHARP mission transfer from the Garrison Commander to the Installation Senior Commander.

The DAIG also supported the SHARP Operations Planning Team in developing and fulfilling SARC and VA enhanced screening requirements set forth by the Secretary. By the end of FY13, over 21,000 files were screened in support of this requirement.

In August, the DAIG began inspection preparations to conduct an Army-wide SHARP Program inspection in FY14.

AR 600-20 requires commanders and SHARP Program proponents at all levels to provide program assessment feedback to HQDA. During FY13, most major Army commands reported conducting several reviews/inspections/assessments. Specifically:

- The CID Inspector General completed evaluations of investigative services related to sexual assault investigations. General findings verified, with few exceptions, that investigations of sexual assaults were conducted in a thorough and timely manner, and met the investigative standards of the command.
- OTJAG conducted inspections of field offices pursuant to Article 6(a), UCMJ.

These inspections included a review of the prosecution, defense and Victim/Witness Liaison programs.

- U.S. Army Pacific (USARPAC) implemented Command Inspection Program checklists that all commands are required to use. USARPAC also assessed the perceptions of the SHARP Program effectiveness, noting that increased training, the Battle Buddy Program and leader presence/emphasis have made a difference in the prevention of sexual harassment/assault.
- USAREUR conducted sensing sessions with unit personnel in Baumholder, Kaiserslautern, Vilseck, Grafenwoehr, Ansbach, Wiesbaden, and Vicenza to assess the effectiveness of the SHARP Program and to obtain recommendations for program improvement.
- The MEDCOM IG provided the Surgeon General with overall findings and recommendations for improvement of MEDCOM SHARP processes.
- The ARCENT IG conducted an inspection of ARCENT's SHARP Program, assessing: program compliance, SHARP awareness and understanding (through training/education), and sexual assault response/victim care.
- In Afghanistan, command inspections were conducted on all Combined Joint Task Force units.
- The U.S. Army Intelligence and Security Command conducted quarterly Health of the Command Assessments to evaluate high-risk behaviors, including the key areas of sexual harassment and sexual assault.

5.3 Describe any and all implementations of Government Accountability Office (GAO) and Defense Task Force-Sexual Assault in the Military Services (DTF-SAMS) recommendations. Include any assessments of implementation.

The GAO review of Military Justice recommended that the Services leverage expertise for investigating and adjudicating alleged sexual assault incidents, such as consolidating training programs and sharing resources, including highly qualified experts who are used to advise criminal investigators and judge advocates. As a result of this recommendation, the Army, at DoD's request, conducts training for Marine CID, Army CID, Air Force Office of Special Investigations (AFOSI), and Naval Criminal Investigative Services (NCIS) at USAMPS. Judge Advocates across all Services are invited to participate in training for prosecutors, defense counsel and special victim counsel. The Services leverage the expertise of highly qualified experts, who collaborate on training curriculum and teach blocks of instruction at courses offered by sister Services.

In Jan 13, the GAO issued Report 13-182 (DoD Has Taken Steps to Meet the Health Needs of Deployed Servicewomen, but Actions Are Needed to Enhance Care for Sexual Assault Victims). The report cited one recommendation for the military services which was to improve compliance regarding the completion of annual refresher training for SARCs, VAs and health care personnel.

- The Army has developed a 24-hour online SHARP Recertification Course as part of the continuing education training for all SARCs and VAs. The SHARP Recertification Course is approved by NOVA; and meets D-SAACP requirements.

- SAMFEs, SACCs, SACPs, and MEDCOM SARCs and VAs are given annual/refresher training through the 40-hour AMEDD Sexual Assault Medical Management Course.

The Army has no outstanding actions from the DTF-SAMS report. All actions were addressed prior to FY13.

5.4 Describe your efforts to ensure integrity of data collected in the Defense Sexual Assault Incident Database.

In FY13, the Army implemented a web-based sexual assault case reporting application called the Integrated Case Reporting System (ICRS). ICRS assisted SARC/SHARP personnel with data entry accuracy, victim and offender demographic data, and data completeness through the information retrieved from authoritative sources. The data entered through ICRS provided a viable case file for integration into the Army's Sexual Assault Data Management System (SADMS).

ICRS data entered from the field is error checked against additional Army data bases and any identified data errors are sent to command Program Managers and responsible SHARP personnel for review and correction. The database integrity for both hardware and software are backed up daily, and controlled access is maintained through security mechanisms, and is reviewed by the Army Information Technology Agency (ITA) and HQDA SHARP staff. Additional resources that ensure SHARP Program data integrity include the Pentagon Web Application Security Program (PWASP) and the Army Portfolio Management Solution.

Throughout FY13, the Army worked with DoD SAPRO to accommodate sexual assault data transfer from ICRS (through SADMS) to DSAID. Although data transfer to DSAID was successful during operational testing, issues effecting the complete integration of Army data into DSAID dictated the Army input data directly into DSAID. The Army successfully transitioned to DSAID as the primary system of record in Sep 13.

5.5 Describe any measures your Service or Component has established to assess and manage your SAPR program. If you have begun assessing your program based on these measures, describe your findings thus far and actions taken.

From Apr 12 through Aug 13 the Army conducted a series of internal assessments of the SHARP Program.

- A key feature of these assessments was the previously mentioned (Section 5.2) Chief of Staff directed "Red Team" focus group effort conducted from Apr through Nov 12. This team assessed the effectiveness, coordination, training and synergy of those responsible for preventing, reporting, and responding to sexual assaults.
- In Jul 13, the Chief of Staff conducted the first in a series of semi-annual panel discussions focused on victim, VA and SARC input regarding the Army's SHARP Program.
- In addition, the Vice Chief of Staff conducted a series of sensing session visits to Army installations where he met with a wide variety of leaders, Soldiers, Family Members and victims to assess the climate in the field regarding the SHARP Program.

The definitive metric to assess SHARP Program effectiveness is the number of reported sexual assaults. However, given that sexual assault is the most underreported crime in the nation, this metric, by itself, is misleading. Therefore, the Army's Sexual Assault Prevention Strategy has corresponding goals to reduce sexual assault while increasing victims' propensity to report.

The most recent Army survey data indicates that female Soldier victims' propensity to report increased from about 28% in 2009 to 42% in 2012. Although, this is below the Army's first intermediate goal of 50%, initiatives such as full-time unit SHARP personnel, Special Victim Counsel, revised training and increased resources for commanders are intended to have a positive effect on increasing victims' propensity to report.

Commands increased use of command climate surveys, with specific focus on sexual assault and sexual harassment, are intended to provide frequent and measurable feedback to commanders in assessing the effectiveness of their implementation of the SHARP Program.

5.6 Provide a summary of your research and data collection activities conducted in FY13. Include documentation in the appendix.

The Army's primary research and survey organization is the U.S. Army Research Institute for the Behavioral and Social Sciences (ARI). As one of the leading research institutes for training, leader development, and Soldier research, ARI conducts survey research and occupational analysis, providing valuable trend data and analysis of Soldier and leader attitudes and concerns. One of ARI's recurring efforts, the Sample Survey of Military Personnel (SSMP), has provided valuable research/data to the Army SHARP Program. However, the Army did not conduct any sexual assault related research in FY13 as ARI prepared to conduct focused research early in FY14.

As noted, the Army transitioned to DSAID in Sep13. As DSAID is DoD's system of record for sexual assault data, the Army is carefully monitoring its DSAID users to ensure complete and accurate data entry.

5.6.1 Describe your efforts to develop and harmonize sexual assault focused survey efforts to align with DoD and other Services.

During FY13, the Army collaborated with DoD and other Services to harmonize survey questions related to sexual assault. The Army agreed not to independently collect prevalence data and to rely on the bi-annual DMDC Workplace and Gender Relations Survey for that data.

Beginning in 2015, the Army will include questions about general sexual assault knowledge and perceptions in the bi-annual Human Relations Survey. The wording and structure of those questions will align with the DoD standard.

5.7 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to effectively standardizing, measuring, analyzing, assessing, and reporting program progress.

The Army has organized the vast amount of survey, focus group, and report data into a targeted set of metrics aligned to the DoD Lines of Effort and focused on standards and criteria directed in law, DoD policy and Army policy. Current data collection systems, such as DSAID and CID databases, will feed this compendium of data elements, while commanders and SHARP personnel provide periodic input. Standard information dashboards and on-demand status updates, when developed, will provide leaders at all levels an objective view of program progress in SHARP.

During FY14, ARI will conduct focus groups and individual interviews on 12 Army installations to further understand perceptions of sexual harassment, sexual assault and related issues such as reporting, retaliation, training, unit climate, and leadership.

- Focus groups and individual interviews will be conducted at three IMT sites (Fort Benning, Fort Jackson, and Fort Leonard Wood), and seven other CONUS locations (Fort Bragg, Fort Campbell, Fort Carson, Fort Hood, Fort Huachuca, Fort Lewis, and Fort Bliss). ARI will also conduct sessions at two locations in Germany (Grafenwoehr and Wiesbaden).
- ARI will conduct one-hour focus groups and individual interviews at each of the above locations. Each focus group will consist of six Soldiers of the same gender and similar rank. Interviews will also be scheduled with SARCs, VAs, Equal Opportunity Representatives, company commanders, and at least one battalion or brigade commander at each installation.

The DAIG is currently conducting an Army-wide systemic inspection of the SHARP Program. The four objectives of the inspection include:

- Assess compliance with the requirements to conduct SHARP refresher training and leader engagements in accordance with established guidance.
- Assess the adequacy of Army SHARP policy and training.
- Evaluate institutional responses to sexual assault and sexual harassment allegations and incidents across the Army.
- Evaluate Army “culture” with regard to sexual assault and sexual harassment.

The Army Education Advisory Committee (AEAC), in coordination with TRADOC, will conduct a study to review cultural issues associated with sexual assault in the Army. The purpose of the study is to determine which issues have training implications, and evaluate the current approach designed to address these issues.

The Army Audit Agency (AAA) will continue its review of the Army’s procedures for synchronizing the DoD Safe Helpline with installation SHARP hotline phone numbers.

6. Overarching Tenet: Communication and Policy

6.1 Summarize your Service or Component’s efforts to synchronize and standardize the SAPR program across the Joint Force (from Joint/Service basing to forward stationed deployed units worldwide).

In accordance with existing DoD guidance, it is the Army’s position that the SHARP Program remains a Service responsibility regardless of which Service is in charge of an installation. While Joint Basing may contribute to confusion among some Soldiers, the assignment of full-time SARC and VA personnel at the Brigade level is helping to alleviate this confusion.

Reporting challenges among deployed units in a combat zone differ from those in a garrison environment. Maintaining confidentiality of the Restricted Reporting option may be difficult, not only because of privacy of information, but also because command teams function as the support network for deployed victims.

Reporting challenges faced by deployed units also relate to geographical dispersion, which requires adaptive measures to ensure reporting resources are readily available and a victim’s privacy is protected. Training and retaining sufficient numbers of SARC and VA personnel is essential, as are the conduct of monthly SARBs which help ensure proper SHARP Program management oversight.

6.2 Describe your efforts to post and widely disseminate sexual assault information (e.g., hotline phone numbers and internet websites) to Service members, eligible dependents, and civilian personnel of the DoD.

The DoD Safe Helpline information (phone, on-line text or on-line chat, and text) is posted on Army SHARP Program training and marketing materials as well as the Army SHARP Program website and installation websites. The DoD Safe Helpline provides brochures, banners and information cards which are disseminated throughout the Army. The DoD Safe Helpline resource is also publicized in various media materials to include Army magazines and newsletters.

During FY13, the AAA conducted a comprehensive review of the Army's procedures for supporting the synchronization of the Safe Helpline with installation SHARP hotlines. As a result of the AAA review, and the efforts of Army Command SHARP Program Managers, the Army was able to reconcile all installation SHARP hotlines with the DoD Safe Helpline. This continued reconciliation is essential to ensure the warm handoff of Army sexual assault victims to a local installation/unit SARC.

The Army also developed new marketing materials in FY13 that focus on restoring the trust in the people and processes associated with preventing and responding to incidents of sexual assault. The new materials emphasize the importance of victims to report and the responsibilities of fellow Soldiers and Leaders to take action to prevent and/or respond to sexual assault.

The Army also developed a series of short and impactful vignettes in support of its communication efforts. The videos reinforce key messages such as command support, victim trust, investigative techniques, and male victimization. These efforts leverage the communicative value of visual imagery and scenario-based messaging to convey the Army's culture of mutual respect, trust, professionalism and the role of leadership in creating an environment where sexual harassment/sexual assault are not tolerated.

Additionally, commands throughout the Army employ the following to disseminate SHARP Program information:

- Post signage in work areas, living quarters, recreation facilities, and any high traffic areas to promote sexual assault response resources.
- Incorporate SHARP into Family Readiness Group events and Newcomer orientations in an effort to raise awareness of Family Members.
- Distribute SHARP Media Updates to Commanders and SHARP personnel so they can more effectively respond to questions about media related issues.
- Issue Buddy Cards at in-processing and training events.
- Maintain installation and unit SHARP websites or Facebook accounts to help disseminate commanders' policy statements and reporting resources.

6.3 Describe your development and implementation of specialized medical and mental health care policy for sexual assault victims. Include a copy of your implementation plan in the appendix.

The Army's policy for the medical care of sexual assault victims is documented in MEDCOM Regulation 40-36 (Medical Facility Management of Sexual Assault).

As stated previously in Section 4.8, each patient (sexual assault victim) and their healthcare team work together to develop a long-term care plan tailored to meet the individual's medical and behavioral healthcare needs. Many of the Army's SACCs are Behavioral/ Mental Healthcare Providers.

6.4 Describe your efforts to review, revise, update, and issue policy pertaining to:

- The record of dispositions of unrestricted reports.
- General education for correction of military records when victims experience retaliation.

Provide documentation in the appendix.

The Army requires commanders receiving CID reports for action to complete a DA Form 4833 (Commanders Report of Disciplinary or Administrative Action) and return it to CID. The results of action taken by a commander are filed with the CID investigation report and retained for 50 years. Since 2003, the results of action taken by commanders have also been entered into the CID investigative database so that the results are retrievable. The requirement for commanders to report the results of action taken are codified in AR 195-2 (Criminal Investigative Activities).

When victims are retaliated against after making a sexual assault complaint, CID is charged by DoDI 5505.18 (Investigation of Adult Sexual Assault in the Department of Defense) to investigate all threats and retaliation made against the victim.

6.5 Describe your efforts to establish policy for General or Flag officer review of and concurrence in adverse administrative actions and separation of victims making an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault in FY13.

AR 600-20 requires commanders, when initiating an administrative separation on any Soldier, for any reason (voluntary or involuntary), to include documentation in the separation packet that positively identifies the Soldier as having been, or not having been, a victim of sexual assault. This documentation is in the form of a memorandum, signed by the Soldier or the commander initiating the separation, stating:

- Whether the Soldier was or was not a victim of sexual assault for which an Unrestricted Report was filed within the past 24 months.
- Whether the Soldier does or does not believe that this separation action is a direct or indirect result of the sexual assault itself or the filing of the Unrestricted Report, if the above is true.

AR 600-20 also requires that commanders serving as a SPCMCA or GCMCA must review all administrative separation actions involving victims of sexual assault identified above. The review must consider the following:

- If the separation appears to be in retaliation for the Soldier filing an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault. If so, the commander must consult with the servicing office of the SJA or other legal office.
- If the separation involves a medical condition that is related to the sexual assault, to include Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. If so, the commander must consult with the appropriate medical personnel.
- If the separation is in the best interests of the Army, the Soldier, or both. If not, the commander must consult with the servicing SJA.

- The status of the case against the alleged offender, and the effect of the Soldier's (victim's) separation on the disposition or prosecution of the case. If the case is still open, the commander must consult the servicing CID unit and SJA.

The Army also addresses this requirement in AR 635-200 (Active Duty Enlisted Administrative Separations) and AR 600-8-24 (Officer Transfers and Discharges).

6.6 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to synchronizing and standardizing the SAPR program across the Joint Force (from Joint/Service basing to forward stationed and deployed units worldwide).

On 7 May 2012, the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) issued the Strategic Direction to the Joint Force on Sexual Assault Prevention and Response to fully operationalize the SAPR Program across the Joint Force. The JCS directed military leaders to employ five lines of effort (LOE) - prevention, investigation, accountability, advocacy and assessment. The Army is aggressively engaged in proactive sexual assault prevention and response efforts that integrate and synchronize the Secretary of Defense's guidance for the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The Army is finalizing a SHARP Campaign Plan that prescribes how it will execute the Secretary of Defense's intent, JCS guidance and the DoD SAPR Strategic Plan. The SHARP Campaign Plan lays out the Army's approach to address DoD SAPR LOEs and achieve unity of effort by linking essential tasks and missions with the strategic and operational conditions needed for success. Although DoD guidance specifically addresses SAPR, the Army will continue to include sexual harassment as a component of its overall sexual assault prevention and response efforts.

While executing all five of the SAPR LOEs, the Army will place primary focus on the advocacy LOE. This is because of the challenges faced in identifying the scope of sexual assault incidents as most of these crimes go unreported, not only within the Army and DoD, but also society at large. This stymies leader efforts to examine the circumstances of incidents, identify offender tactics and how to disrupt them, determine vulnerabilities and address them and evaluate the effectiveness of strategies and specific initiatives. Indeed, when reporting fluctuates upward or downward, it is difficult to know whether more incidents are occurring or more victims are reporting incidents. Unless or until sexual assault victims feel safe in coming forward to report these crimes (i.e., propensity to report is high), the scope and precise nature of the incidents will elude leaders and complicate efforts to execute and evaluate the effectiveness of sexual assault prevention and response strategy.

7. Secretary of Defense Initiatives

7.1 Enhancing Commander Accountability—Describe your efforts thus far to develop methods to assess the performance of military commanders in establishing command climates of dignity and respect and incorporating SAPR prevention and victim care principles in their commands, and hold them accountable.

As previously stated, Army Directive 2013-20 requires all officers and NCOs to include goals and objectives in their respective Evaluation Support Forms regarding their commitment to eliminate sexual harassment and assault and to foster climates of dignity and respect in their units. Accordingly, the rating official must assess how well the rated officer or NCO fostered a climate of dignity and respect and adhered to the SHARP Program. This assessment should identify, as appropriate, any significant actions or contributions the rated officer or NCO made toward:

- Promoting the personal and professional development of his or her subordinates.
- Ensuring the fair, respectful treatment of assigned personnel.
- Establishing a workplace and overall command climate that fosters dignity and respect for all members of the group.

The Directive also requires all raters and senior raters to document in the rated officer or NCO's evaluation, any substantiated finding that the officer or NCO committed an act of sexual harassment or sexual assault, failed to report an incident of sexual harassment or assault, failed to respond to a reported incident or retaliated against a person for reporting an incident.

7.2 Improving Response and Victim Treatment—Describe your efforts thus far to implement and monitor methods to improve victim treatment by their peers, co-workers, and chains of command.

In addition to Army Directive 2013-20 cited above, the following initiatives are designed to improve victim treatment:

- In order to provide the best possible care and treatment to sexual assault victims, the Army is improving its training program for full time SARCs and VAs. By the 4th Quarter of 2014, the Army will achieve full operating capability for a centralized SHARP Schoolhouse with an expanded 8-week curriculum.
- Army policy affords victims the option of requesting an expedited transfer or reassignment from their unit. Unit commanders must provide a response to the victim's request for expedited transfer within 72 hours, and only a General Officer in the chain of command can disapprove that request. Requests for Permanent Change of Station expedited transfers can only be disapproved by the CG, HRC. Additionally, the commander has the option to transfer the accused.
- In Jun 13, the Army transitioned its annual SHARP Summit to a semi-annual Senior Leader Summit on SHARP. (The first FY14 Summit was held in Jan 14. Attendees included Commanding Generals and their CSM. The Chief of Staff hosted the two-day event which included a series of panel discussions on sexual assault victim response, care and treatment, as well as the sharing of Army-wide lessons learned and best practices).
- The Army's Special Victim Counsel Program is designed to improve victim support in sexual assault cases by providing specially trained active duty Army Judge Advocates to represent sexual assault victims.
- Army Judge Advocates now serve as Article 32 investigating officers in cases where the accused is charged with a qualifying sexual assault offense. Staff Judge Advocates will consider rank, experience and training when selecting an Article 32 investigating officer.

7.3 Ensuring Safety—Describe your efforts to improve the effectiveness of SAPR programs in recruiting organizations, Military Entrance Processing Stations, and the Reserve Officer Training Corps. These assessments will include: 1) the selection, SAPR training, and oversight of recruiters; 2) the dissemination of SAPR program information to potential and actual recruits; and 3) the prevention and education programs in ROTC environments and curricula.

The Army has taken the following steps to improve the safety of our population of new and aspiring Soldiers:

- Effectiveness of Recruiting Organizations.
  - Selection and Oversight of Recruiters. The Army reviewed its selection process for all leaders in positions of trust, to include recruiters. The Army's Personnel Suitability Screening Policy requires that supervisory personnel, such as recruiters, drill sergeants and AIT platoon sergeants, are subjected to enhanced screening. This enhanced screening includes a review of Restricted Personnel files, IG files, Family Advocacy files, and background investigation data. Mandatory additional screening for IMT personnel and recruiters includes a review of the DoJ Sex Offender Registry, Army Substance Abuse Program records, and a local police check.
  - SHARP Training for Recruiters. A comprehensive review of SHARP training determined the Army requires specialized instruction for its recruiters. In FY13, the Army implemented a revised TSP for recruiter training at USAREC. This TSP includes extensive instruction on roles and responsibilities of recruiters in addressing sexual assault; instruction on techniques for establishing a climate that prevents harassment and assault, as well as responding to and protecting the rights and privacy of victims; and instruction on detecting indicators that may signal abuse of power, sexual assault, or unprofessional relationships. In addition, recruiters conduct periodic small group, vignette-based training throughout their life-cycle in USAREC.
- Dissemination of SHARP Program Information to Potential and Actual Recruits.
  - The Army developed a distributed-learning program that USAREC implemented in 2013 for future Soldiers. This web-based training is designed to be a comprehensive sexual assault awareness and prevention program. Topics for the training include: the definition of sexual assault; the nature of consent; the effects/risks of alcohol use; how to recognize sexual aggression; how to reduce risk; the differences between consensual sex and rape; how to intervene in potentially dangerous situations; what to do if a sexual assault occurs; and how Army Values relate to the issue of sexual assault.
  - In addition, SHARP Program information and awareness materials (touch cards, brochures, posters, etc.) are provided to the Military Entrance Processing Centers and Reception Battalions.
- ROTC Programs.
  - Education and Curricula. The Army assessed and revised all BOLC-A TSPs which cover Army pre-commissioning programs, including USMA. Three hours of SHARP instruction is included in the BOLC-A curriculum. This leader-facilitated training is supplemented by a web-based training program entitled "SHARP Training", targeted awareness materials and scenario training titled 'Sex Rules', and the interactive 'Sex Signals' training.

- “SHARP Training” is a facilitated course conducted by Professors of Military Science (PMS) and augmented by web-based self-study. The training focuses on the SHARP Program, survivor testimonials, prevention methods and victim support services. The self-study training provides integrated and gender-segregated training in a peer-to-peer model. The PMS adjusts the facilitated training based on the attitude and behavioral challenges identified in the web-based training.
  - In ‘Sex Rules’ training, the Army uses a set of ten Sex Rules which break down the elements of sexual harassment and sexual assault and define them in simple, relatable terms. By linking each Sex Rule to an Army Value, the scenario-based training helps establish the social behavior expected of all Soldiers, which is reinforced with accompanying awareness materials.
  - ‘Sex Signals’ training is a live, two-person, audience-interactive production. This 90-minute interactive program includes skits dealing with dating, consent, rape, body language, gender relations, alcohol use and intervention. This training is presented during ROTC Summer Camps and at USMA during the September time period.
- Prevention and oversight. The Cadet Command SHARP Program Manager conducts periodic staff assistance visits throughout the eight brigade areas to assist SHARP personnel in program compliance and training. In addition, each brigade conducts SHARP Organizational Inspection Program visits to each of their subordinate programs and Nurse Counselors are used to assess the SHARP Program at various schools. Cadet Command conducts quarterly SHARP refresher training with Brigade SHARP personnel via video teleconference to share lessons learned and updates to the program.

7.4 Ensuring Appropriate Command Climate—Describe your efforts to ensure DoD facilities promote an environment of dignity and respect and are free from materials that create a degrading or offensive work environment. Include findings and actions taken from regular visual inspections.

In response to the Secretary of Defense 6 May 13 Memorandum, SUBJECT: Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Ensuring Appropriate Command Climate, the Army conducted a visual inspection between 21 May 13 and 1 Jul 13.

- Workplaces across the Army were visually inspected by leaders and supervisors. Actions were taken to immediately remove any items that were considered inappropriate, sexually explicit, degrading, offensive, or otherwise not conducive to a work environment that promotes dignity and respect. All visual inspections were validated by GO/SES representatives within their respective organization.
- Most work environments were in compliance with Secretary of Defense Directive to promote an environment of dignity and respect.
- Some materials removed included pictures and calendars produced or distributed by organizations to support the troops. These items while seen as appropriate for personal use were considered offensive in a professional environment.

Part 2 - Fiscal Year (FY) 2013 Sexual Assault Statistical Report Data Call for Sexual Assaults in the Military: United States Army

1. Analytic Discussion

1.1. Provide an analytic discussion of your Service's Statistical Report. This section should include such information as:

- Notable changes in the data since FY12 (in percentages) and other time periods, as appropriate.
- Insight or suspected reasons for noted changes, or lack of change, in data
- Implications the data may have for programmatic planning, oversight, and/or research
- How Reports of Sexual Assault mesh with your Service's scientifically conducted surveys during FY12 or FY13 (if any)
- Other (Please explain)

There were 1,831 unrestricted reports and 318 restricted reports of sexual assault in the Army during FY13. The total number of reports (restricted and unrestricted) increased 51% from FY12. The FY13 data equates to 3.5 reported cases per 1000 active duty Soldiers, compared to 2.2 per 1000 in FY12, 2.5 per 1000 in FY11, and 2.6 per 1000 in each year from FY07 through FY09.

As noted in Part 1 of this report, the Army believes the increase in the number of reported cases does not equate to an increase in actual assaults. The unprecedented priority placed on sexual assault prevention and response by Army leaders in FY13 seemingly encouraged victims, who heretofore were reluctant, to come forward and report. While the magnitude of the Army's efforts cannot be definitively quantified, one indicator is the increase (from 8% in FY12 to 14% in FY13) of reports that were made more than one year after the sexual assault occurred.

Note 1: Includes restricted and unrestricted reports.

Note 2: Restricted reporting did not go into effect until June 2005.

Note 3: Beginning in 2007, DoD directed reporting be by fiscal year, not calendar year.

As displayed in Figure 1 above, the gap between the rate of reported sexual assault cases throughout the Army and reported cases involving deployed Soldiers increased in FY13, after narrowing significantly in FY12. This widening gap could mean sexual assault is less prevalent among deployed units (a positive sign), or it could mean deployed Soldiers are less inclined to report an assault (a negative sign). While more detailed data is needed to be definitive, the reasons Soldiers have historically given for not reporting are generally more prevalent in deployed environments.

Tabs 1 through 6 in the attached spreadsheet contain the detailed sexual assault data in the reporting formats required by DoD for restricted and unrestricted reports. These data represent cases reported Army-wide and in the CENTCOM Combat Areas of Interest (CAI) during FY13.

2. Unrestricted Reporting

2.1. Victim Data Discussion and Analysis. This section should include an overview of such information as:

- Type of offenses
- Demographic trends
- Service referrals
- Experiences in Combat Areas of Interest
- Military Protective Orders Issued as a Result of an Unrestricted Report (e.g., Number issued, number violated)
- Approved expedited transfers and general reasons why transfers were not approved
- Others (Please explain)

Figure 2 shows the breakout of victims (service members and non-service members) and each type of sexual assault investigated for the 1,831 unrestricted reports in FY13. The proportion of assaults that were the more serious offenses (specifically rape, aggravated sexual assault/sexual assault and forcible sodomy) was 55% in FY13, unchanged from FY12. This proportion was 66% in FY11.

Some demographic trends have remained consistent over the past few years. For example, 83% of Army victims in FY13 were in the grades E1-E4; relatively unchanged from FY11 and FY12. Also in FY13, 64% of victims in completed investigations were 24 years old or younger. This is comparable to FY10-FY12, but lower than the 70% in FY09, 73% in FY08, and 75% in FY07. While there is no definite reason why there has been more than a 10% decline since FY07, the Army's awareness and prevention efforts have specifically targeted this age group, suggesting a positive impact on peer-to-peer intervention. The percentage of male victims was 15% in FY13 completed cases, compared to 14% in FY12 and 13% in FY11.

Victims in reported sexual assaults in CENTCOM continued to be older and of higher rank than victims in Army-wide cases. Specifically, 74% of Army victims in CENTCOM reported cases in FY13 were E1-E4 compared to 83% of victims Army-wide (both relatively unchanged from FY11). Similarly, 48% of victims in CENTCOM reports were 24 years old or younger, compared to 64% Army-wide.

None of the 93 Military Protective Orders (MPO) issued in FY13 were reported to have been violated.

HRC processed 192 Permanent Change of Station expedited transfer requests. Only one was denied (see Section 4.12.2).

Additionally, Army commands reported 38 Soldiers requested expedited unit transfers (to remain on their current installation). None of these requests were denied.

2.2. Subject Data Discussion and Analysis. This section should include an overview of such information as:

- Demographic trends
- Disposition trends
- Experiences in Combat Areas of Interest
- Other (Please explain)

Figure 3 shows the breakout of subjects (alleged offenders) and each type of sexual assault investigated in FY13 unrestricted reports. The proportion of FY13 cases with service member subjects (81%) is slightly lower than the 84% reported in FY12 cases. The percentage of unidentified offenders in FY13 was 15%, compared to 12% in FY12.

| Offender Status by Assault Type(all unrestricted cases) | Service Member Offender | Non-Service Member Offender | Unidentified Offender | Total Cases | Percent of Total |
|---|-------------------------|-----------------------------|-----------------------|-------------|------------------|

Trends regarding alleged Army offenders remained mostly unchanged in FY13. Identified alleged offenders were 97% male in FY13; unchanged since FY10. The percentage of alleged offenders who were E1-E4 was 57% in FY13, compared to 59% in each year from FY09 - FY12. Also, 41% of known alleged offenders in FY13 were 24 years old or younger; compared to 42% in FY12 and 46% in FY11.

Subjects in reported sexual assaults in CENTCOM during FY13 also tended to be older and higher rank than subjects in Army-wide cases. Specifically, 19% of Army subjects in CENTCOM reported cases were E1-E4 compared to 57% of subjects Army-wide. Similarly, 13% of known subjects in CENTCOM reports were 24 years old or younger, compared to 41% in Army-wide reports.

Disposition data for FY13 show that cases in which the Army had jurisdiction over an offender and a final disposition was made, commanders prosecuted rape at a rate of 64% and sexual assault at a rate of 53%, compared to estimated prosecution rates for civilian jurisdictions of 18-22%. In non-penetrative cases (unwanted sexual touching), commanders held 90% of Army subjects accountable, imposing a range of punishments from courts-martial to administrative reprimands. Unwanted touches are not generally criminalized, investigated or prosecuted in civilian jurisdictions.

The authority to dispose of an allegation of rape, sexual assault or forcible sodomy is withheld to the SPCMCA at the O-6 (Colonel) level, with a servicing legal advisor. The time it takes to make a disposition decision depends on many factors, including; the complexity of the allegation, the availability of evidence, continued investigation, cooperation of victims and witnesses, and coordination with civilian authorities.

A commander is not limited to a single disposition choice and may employ more than one disciplinary tool, including administrative actions, to fully address an allegation. Although the format of this report requires the Army to place each allegation into a single disposition category, the explanations provided below and in the Sexual Assault Synopses Report (Spreadsheet 7) reflect that several disposition categories may be appropriate for a single allegation.

There were 1,235 allegations of sexual assault, ranging from rape to indecent assault, ready for disposition decisions in FY13. (This includes allegations from cases opened in previous years that were completed in FY13). Of these 1,235 allegations:

- 446 allegations were disposed of through the preferral of court-martial charges.
- 52 allegations were disposed of through an involuntary, adverse administrative discharge of the subject. Of those 52 subjects that were administratively discharged, 13 were also given non-judicial punishment, with reductions in rank, forfeitures in pay, extra duty and restriction, prior to separation. In two of the allegations, the victim would not cooperate in a military justice proceeding.
- 133 allegations were disposed of through non-judicial punishment. Each of these offenses involved a non-penetrative sexual assault offense, the vast majority an unwanted touch over the clothing. No penetrative offense (rape, aggravated sexual assault, sexual assault or forcible sodomy) was disposed of with non-judicial punishment.
- 55 allegations were disposed of through other adverse administrative actions. Each one of these 55 offenses involved a non-penetrative sexual assault, the vast majority an unwanted touch over the clothing. No penetrative offense was disposed of with an adverse administrative action.
- 141 allegations provided probable cause only for a non-sexual assault offense. In these allegations, there was insufficient evidence to establish guilt beyond a reasonable doubt of the founded sexual assault offense and punitive action was taken for a non-sexual assault offense, such as adultery, fraternization or indecent acts. In 37 of these cases, the subject was administratively discharged for the non-sexual assault offense. In 85 of these cases, the subject was given non-judicial punishment and in 19 cases the subject was given other adverse administrative actions. In 13 of these cases, the lack of probable cause was related to the victim's refusal to cooperate with the prosecution.

- 58 allegations were complicated by the refusal of the victim to cooperate in a military justice action. Without the cooperation of the victim in these cases, the Army was unable to take any punitive actions against the subject.
- 91 allegations were disposed of by a civilian or foreign authority although the accused was subject to the jurisdiction of the Army. In these cases, all of which occurred outside the limits of a military installation, the civilian authority served as the primary investigative agency and determined the allegation merited charges. The Army continues to track the results of these cases.
  - In 47 of the 91 allegations the civilian authorities declined to prosecute any offense for lack of sufficient evidence. After civilian authorities declined to prosecute, the Army has now preferred court-martial charges against six of these subjects.
  - In eight of the 91 allegations the civilian authorities prosecuted the sexual assault offense to conviction or acquittal.
  - In ten of the 91 allegations the civilian authorities chose to prosecute either a lesser offense or a non-sexual assault offense.
  - The remaining 26 allegations are pending adjudication in civilian court.

(Note: Army commanders can, and do, take punitive actions against subjects charged in civilian courts. In 18 of the 91 allegations, the Army took punitive actions against subjects, including administrative discharges, non-judicial punishments and other adverse administrative actions).

- 90 allegations were determined to have insufficient evidence of any offense. Although allegations made against the offender met the lower standard for titling in a criminal investigation, there was insufficient evidence to legally prove those elements beyond a reasonable doubt and proceed with a military justice action.

Of the 1,235 allegations, 169 could not be prosecuted by the Army:

- 53 allegations were disposed of by a civilian or foreign authority because the accused was not subject to the jurisdiction of the military.
- 105 allegations involved an unknown subject.
- 8 allegations involved a subject who was deceased or had deserted.
- 3 allegations involved an expired statute of limitations.

2.3. Reporting Data Discussion and Analysis. This section should include an overview of such information as:

- Trends in descriptive information about Unrestricted Reports (e.g., Did more reported incidents occur on/off installation)
- Investigations
- Experiences in Combat Areas of Interest
- Other (Please explain)

The unrestricted reports of sexual assault discussed above, and detailed in Spreadsheet 1, represent all cases reported to CID during FY13 in which either the victim or alleged offender was a service member, but neither was a juvenile. CID thoroughly investigates and documents each unrestricted report, regardless if the case is later determined to be unfounded.

While other jurisdictions may dispose of reports of sexual assault before opening an investigation, the Army's practice is to formally investigate every allegation. Although this practice may contribute to a seemingly higher number of cases, it demonstrates the Army's commitment to thoroughly investigate reports of sexual assault.

The average completion time for sexual assault investigations initiated and closed in FY13 by CID was 109 days, compared to 80 days in FY12. Each case is unique and the amount of time it takes to complete an investigation is dependent on several factors, including: type of complaint, delays in reporting the incident, amount of physical evidence, and cooperation of witnesses. FY13 had additional factors affecting the timeliness of completing cases: sequestration furloughs affected turnaround time at USACIL; a greater number of cases were reported to CID; and a greater proportion of cases were reported late in the year. As a result, 793 of the 1,831 investigations opened during FY13 were pending completion at the end of the fiscal year.

Additionally, 64% of unrestricted reports occurred on a military installation in FY13, down from 68% in FY12.

3. Restricted Reporting

3.1. Victim Data Discussion. This section should include such information as:

- Demographics trends
- Service referrals
- Experiences in Combat Areas of Interest
- Other (Please explain)

During FY13, the Army recorded 364 restricted reports, of which 46 reports later changed to unrestricted (for a net of 318 restricted reports). This includes 40 restricted reports in the CENTCOM CAI, of which 2 reports later changed to unrestricted (for a net of 38 restricted reports).

Restricted report victim demographics yielded some differences from unrestricted reports. For example, 57% of restricted report victims were 24 years old or younger, compared to 64% in unrestricted reports.

3.2. Reporting Data Discussion. Include information such as:

- Trends in descriptive information about Restricted Reports (e.g., Did more reported incidents occur on/off installation)
- Trends in Restricted Reporting conversions
- Experiences in Combat Areas of Interest
- Other (Please explain)

There are some similarities between restricted and unrestricted reports. For example, most reports (restricted and unrestricted) occurred on Friday, Saturday or Sunday. Reports in the CENTCOM CAI did not yield definitive trends as many cited "unknown" for the day of the assault.

There were also some notable contrasts between restricted and unrestricted reports. Only 37% of restricted reports were for alleged assaults that reportedly occurred on a military installation, compared to 64% for unrestricted reports. Also,

23% of restricted reports were reported more than a year after the incident compared to only 14% of unrestricted reports. Victims who reported a sexual assault in FY13 that occurred prior to their military service were much more likely to do so with a restricted report. Of the 116 reported in FY13, 94 were restricted reports.

4. Service Referrals for Victims of Sexual Assault

4.1. Unrestricted Report Referral Data Discussion. This section should include such information as:

- Summary of referral data and how your service counts a “referral”
- Combat Areas of Interest referral data
- Discussion of any trends of interest identified in referral data
- Other (Please explain)

Service members receiving victim services continue to use military facilities more often than civilian facilities. The percent of victim services performed at military facilities increased from 75% in FY12 to 85% in FY13.

There were 22 victims who received services for an incident that occurred prior to joining the military, compared to 16 in FY12.

Additionally, there were 136 SAFE exams conducted for unrestricted reports.

The vast majority (91%) of all services for victims of unrestricted reports in the CENTCOM CAI were performed with military resources, including eight SAFE exams.

4.2. Restricted Report Referral Data Discussion. This section should include such information as:

- Summary of referral data and how your service counts a “referral”
- Combat Areas of Interest referral data
- Discussion of any trends of interest identified in referral data
- Other (Please explain)

81% of Service members receiving victim services related to restricted reports of sexual assault did so in military facilities.

Services were provided to 94 victims who received services for an incident that occurred prior to joining the military. Additionally, there were 61 SAFE exams conducted for restricted reports.

Most victims receiving services related to restricted reports of sexual assault in CENTCOM did so military facilities, including four SAFE exams.

4.3. Service Referrals for Non-Military Victims Data Discussion. This section should include such information as:

- Summary of referral data
- Combat Areas of Interest referral data
- Discussion of any trends of interest identified in referral data
- Other (Please explain)

There were 176 non-military personnel who received victim services related to unrestricted reports of sexual assault during FY13; including one in the CENTCOM CAI. Most (75%) of the services were performed using military resources.

Additionally, 51 SAFE exams were conducted for non-military victims.

MEMORANDUM FOR ACTING UNDER SECRETARY OF DEFENSE FOR PERSONNEL AND READINESS

SUBJECT: Fiscal Year 2013 Department of Defense Annual Report on Sexual Assault in the Military

As requested by your memorandum of September 25, 2013, the attached is provided as input from the Department of the Navy (DON) covering Fiscal Year (FY) 2013 for your Annual Report to Congress on Sexual Assault in the Military, as mandated by the National Defense Authorization Act for FY 2011, Section 1631 and Public Laws 111-84 and 109-163.

The DON is committed to creating a Department-wide culture of gender respect where sexual assault is completely eliminated and never tolerated, and where sexual assault victims receive compassionate and coordinated support. Since assuming the office of the Secretary in 2009, I have made this a top priority for the Department and both Military Services – the United States Navy and the United States Marine Corps. Additionally, I am the only Service Secretary that has created a Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office within the Secretariat, the head of which responds directly to me. Although there are challenges yet to overcome, we have accomplished much. Our input this year details an extensive spectrum of vigorous activity across the Department and each Service. To briefly summarize, we have engaged senior leadership in clear and consistent messages of intolerance for sexual assault; instituted innovative forms of sexual assault prevention training on a broad scale; improved the responsiveness of sexual assault victim support mechanisms; and achieved groundbreaking evidence of sustained sexual assault prevention through pilot initiatives in a high-risk setting. In this context, we interpret across-the-board increases seen in the reporting of sexual assaults by Sailors and Marines as evidence of their increased trust in our support and the improved performance of our programs. Numerous site visits confirm this impression. Many individuals are now more comfortable reporting long-prior sexual assaults, and we see gradual progress in the proportion of male victims now coming forward.

Our commitment is unwavering, and we will not be satisfied until Sailors and Marines everywhere are free of the burden imposed upon us all by the crime of sexual assault. Should you need additional information, my point of contact for this action is Ms. Jill Loftus, who may be reached at (703) 697-2180 or jill.loftus@navy.mil.

Fiscal Year (FY) 2013 Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program Review Data Call: Department of the Navy

Executive Summary (Department of the Navy)

The Department of the Navy (DON) is committed to creating a Department-wide culture of gender respect, where sexual assault is never tolerated and ultimately eliminated, sexual assault victims receive coordinated support and protection, and offenders are held appropriately accountable. The Secretary of the Navy, the Chief of Naval Operations, and the Commandant of the Marine Corps work collaboratively towards these high-priority goals. The Department of the Navy Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office (DON-SAPRO) is an element of the Secretariat that reports directly to the Secretary of the Navy. On behalf of the Secretary, DON-SAPRO maintains visibility and oversight of Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) activities throughout the Navy and Marine Corps, and it conducts a number of Department-level initiatives.

There is no documented precedent for achieving sexual assault prevention in any comparable population, and we will break new ground in doing so. There is also no perfect metric of sexual assault prevention, and assessing our progress requires us to integrate different sources of information, thus creating a critical need for field-level insights on SAPR issues and programs. To meet this need, DON-SAPRO conducts a continuous and aggressive agenda of site visits to Navy and Marine Corps locations world-wide. Visits typically included meetings with regional leaders and facility commanders, separate interviews with key stakeholders, and focus groups involving individual Sailors and Marines. During FY13, the Director and her staff visited 15 major operational locations world-wide, interviewed 110 stakeholders, and conducted 14 focus groups involving 280 individuals. Also during FY13, DON-SAPRO led Departmental efforts to assess initial military training environments. In this effort, a dedicated DON-SAPRO team visited 23 Navy and Marine Corps training sites nation-wide, interviewed 145 stakeholders, and conducted 180 focus groups involving 2,570 Sailors and Marines. In addition, DON-SAPRO also led Departmental efforts to assess recruiting environments. In this effort, another dedicated DON-SAPRO team visited 27 Navy and Marine Corps locations, interviewed 119 stakeholders, and conducted 33 focus groups involving 530 recruits, recruit applicants, and officer applicants. Further still, DON-SAPRO undertook an exploration of SAPR issues unique to the reserve community. In this effort, DON-SAPRO teams visited six reserve component sites, interviewed 23 stakeholders, and conducted 28 focus groups involving 560 individuals. Collective insights from these visits suggest that we are on the right path. Commanders at all levels are now clearly engaged in combatting sexual assault, Sailors and Marines consistently tell us they are now more comfortable in reporting a sexual assault, and impressions of command climates are positive.

Late in FY13, DON-SAPRO and the Navy Education and Training Command (NETC), working in partnership, began initial implementation of a program for continuously ongoing sexual assault surveys of all graduating Navy post-recruit "A-School" students. Our intent is to develop data sufficient to assess trends in sexual assault incidence among young Sailors in training, to use in comparing experiences between specific sites, and to correlate with other facility-specific data on actual reports of sexual assault (both restricted and unrestricted reports). During FY13, voluntary web-based surveys began at Great Lakes, Illinois, and Pensacola, Florida. Early indications suggest that Sailors in “A-School” training environments have a relatively lower incidence of sexual assault than comparable others, and they express very positive impressions of “A-School” command climates. In fairness, this survey effort is still in its early stages, and our processes are maturing. Its very existence underscores our commitment to building new insight and assessing our progress in combatting sexual assault. We believe that our early results directly reflect efforts made in training environments and the engagement of local commanders, and they challenge us to sustain that commitment. Specific other assessments at Training Support Command, Great Lakes show that reports of sexual assault among “A-School” students there have decreased by 60-70% since multiple pilot initiatives were begun at Great Lakes in 2011-2012.

During FY13, DON-SAPRO worked in partnership with the Navy, Marine Corps, and DON Civilian Human Resources to develop and deploy a professionally produced SAPR training module for all DON civilian employees. The module combined guided in-person facilitation with video training tools, and was created specifically for civilian employees. Its content covered Department-wide efforts to combat sexual assault, the roles of civilians in addressing sexism and sexual assault involving Sailors and Marines, and also information relevant to their own risks and resources available to civilian victims of sexual assault. Virtually all 195,000 DON civilians received this training during FY13.

The Department has also been active in supporting innovative training for Sailors and Marines. During FY13, DON-SAPRO sponsored “No Zebras, No Excuses ...” training at over 30 Navy and Marine Corps locations world-wide. These large-audience programs are live acted and vignette based, emphasizing the responsibility of every individual to be responsible for their own actions and to intervene on behalf of others in jeopardy. Over 41,000 Sailors and Marines attended these sessions in FY13. Separate but related large-audience training for Navy and Marine Corps commanders and other leaders was also conducted at eight locations by Mr. Steve Thompson, a civilian expert on sexual assault criminal investigations and offender profiling.

The Department continued during FY13 to collaborate with the Department of Justice and the DON Bureau of Medicine and Surgery to explore potential applications of tele-medicine support for Sexual Assault Forensic Exams (SAFE). Necessary equipment was obtained and training conducted at two pilot demonstration sites – Naval Hospital Twentynine Palms, California, and Naval Hospital Jacksonville, Florida. Our goal is to explore the potential for supporting proficiency at locations with organic SAFE capability but where the procedure is infrequently performed, and also for supporting a basic level of capability in remote and operational settings where it would be impossible to maintain normal SAFE capability.

The Department was also active during FY13 in partnership with the United States Naval Academy (USNA). A DON-SAPRO review of the Academy's SAPR program helped identify manpower and process changes to improve sexual assault victim support and emphasize victim confidentiality. Specific impacts included the hiring of two full-time civilian Sexual Assault response Coordinators, two full-time Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Victim Advocates, and the relocation of SAPR offices to promote convenient yet less-visible access. In addition, training and SAPR program management functions were more clearly distinguished from actual victim support.

In order to improve the timeliness of sexual assault criminal investigations, the Department in FY13 approved funding for 54 additional civilian positions at Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS), including 41 Special Agents at 13 support personnel. Individual hiring and training is still underway. A pilot effort at Norfolk suggested that NCIS criminal investigations of sexual assaults could be reduced to about 89 days (not counting some lab processing) using a team approach that is in place there and at a few other large sites. This underscores ongoing overall NCIS efforts to confront sexual assault, and suggests what might be possible at more sites as the new assets come online.

Fiscal Year (FY) 2013 Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program Review Data Call: United States Navy

Executive Summary

U.S. Navy

Eliminating sexual assault remains a top priority for our Navy. We have made significant strides in elevating Sailor trust and confidence in command leadership and understanding the SAPR process, as evidenced by an unprecedented increase in sexual assault reporting this past fiscal year. Increased reporting supports our ability to understand circumstances of sexual assault and enables continuous improvement in our response and implementation of pertinent prevention methodologies as well as a better ability to hold offenders accountable as appropriate. Critical to increased reporting is the support and compassion shown to victims when they come forward. Our ability to respond well to incidents will drive additional reporting. Navy provides initial crisis support and sustained services and advocacy to victims throughout the reporting, investigative and adjudication process and as far beyond as the victim requests. When sexual assault victims report, they are provided a safe environment and offered medical care, counseling, legal assistance, and victim witness assistance.

Utilizing numerous approaches across the spectrum of lines of effort, we are creating a culturally-aware, educated Total Force environment intolerant of sexual assault, supported by well-defined prevention, reporting, investigation, military justice, and victim advocacy programs.

Summary/Principal Challenges

Part I (Program Overview) In compliance with DoD initiatives and DoD SAPRO's five lines of effort, Navy took the following actions in support of sexual assault prevention and response during FY13:

Prevention: In FY13, Navy implemented a comprehensive, tailored Sexual Assault Prevention and Response training program that reached 100% of the Fleet. Training focused on consistent messaging, prevention, and intervention and was tailored to specific audiences from junior Sailors and new Accessions at Boot Camp, ROTC and Officer Candidate School, to fleet leadership.

In conjunction with the Department of Navy's Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office (DoN SAPRO), we conducted Fleet Workshops and Personnel Readiness Summits in Fleet concentration areas. These programs incorporated Bystander Intervention training and innovative sexual assault training (e.g., Sex Signals, No Zebras). We held a comprehensive Sexual Assault Awareness Month campaign in April along with a DoD-wide SAPR safety stand-down. These events provided opportunities to further open lines of communication and discuss safety and accountability.

Prevention best practices from the Great Lakes pilot program such as partnerships with local business and civic leaders and barracks patrols have been implemented in all Navy Fleet concentration areas. We are also leveraging the creativity and innovation of our junior Sailor-led Coalition of Sailors Against Destructive Decisions (CSADD) chapters and other peer-to-peer organizations in our sexual assault prevention efforts.

To get at factors contributing to sexual assault, we revamped our annual sexual harassment training curriculum to remove the "green light, yellow light, red light" system and have replaced it with a clear definition of acceptable and unacceptable behaviors. As part of our alcohol de-glamorization efforts Navy-wide, we removed all distilled spirits from MiniMarts (often co-located with barracks and ships), and restricted distilled spirit sales to main exchanges or dedicated package stores. We limited floor space dedicated to the sale and display of alcohol in locations other than package stores to no more than 10% of total retail floor space and moved them to the rear of facilities. Finally, we limited the hours for sale of alcohol to 0600-2200.

Additional FY13 prevention efforts include:

- Developed SAPR Strategic Roadmap
- Developing SAPR-Sustainment training product that will leverage both SAPR-Leadership and SAPR-Fleet products and will be the foundational enduring training product
- Deployed SAPR-Delayed Entry Program Training for future Sailors
- Established comprehensive, audience-focused SAPR training at every Navy entry point (Recruit Training Command, U.S. Naval Academy, Reserve Officer Training Corps, Officer Candidate School)

- Updated Prospective Commanding Officer/Senior Enlisted Academy SAPR course curriculum
- Made DoN SAPRO's Commander's Guide available to all Prospective Commanding and Executive Officers, and Senior Enlisted Leaders during Command Leadership Course
- Implemented annual Navy Flag Officer training
- Identified and implemented regional pilot program best practices throughout the Navy
- Implemented roving barracks patrols with the intent of increasing the visible presence of leadership to deter behavior that may lead to sexual assault or other misconduct
- Established Resident Advisors program for all Navy barracks and created indoctrination training requirements to improve safety of barracks residents
- Surveyed facilities to identify areas that require better lighting, visibility, or other safety improvements to reduce the vulnerability of Sailors
- Launched alcohol de-glamorization campaign and fielded Alcohol Detection Devices
- Made single-use alcohol detection devices available for sale in Navy Exchange facilities
- Created 16 SAPR Officer billets in the grade of O-4 or above for our most senior commands to improve program oversight
- Required SAPR-related Uniform Code of Military Justice training for all O-6 Prospective Commanding Officers (P-COs) and Major Commanders, as well as most Prospective O-5 Commanding Officers, Executive Officers and Officers in Charge
- Designated Flag Officers as the SAPR program leaders for each Navy installation/Fleet Concentration Area and associated local commands to increase the level of oversight of sexual assault cases
- Enhanced requirements for monthly Sexual Assault Case Management Group meetings for installation and unit leadership
- Mandated that command climate surveys be conducted within 90 days of a Commanding Officers assuming command and annually thereafter, results shall be reviewed by all units' Immediate Supervisor In Command (ISICs)
- Continued Sexual Assault Response Coordinator in-person briefings to Commanding Officers, Executive Officers and Senior Enlisted Leaders upon changes of command

Investigation: To decrease investigation timelines and increase capacity, the Department of Navy doubled sexual assault investigative resources in FY13, hiring 54 additional Special Agents, forensic scientists, and adult sexual crime investigators. There are now 108 agents dedicated to adult sexual assault cases, integrated into Adult Sexual Assault Program Teams deployed throughout fleet concentration areas. We have also increased sexual assault training resources for investigators and judge advocates who support the Navy's Special Victim Capability.

A multi-disciplinary approach allows investigators, trial counsel, and sexual assault prevention and response personnel to troubleshoot sexual assault investigations, prosecution, and victim care issues as they arise. This forms the basis of our Special Victim Capability. To further this goal, seamless coordination between NCIS and the JAG Corps is essential. Over the past year a pilot program was conducted initially with two NCIS Sexual Assault Task Forces, as part of their Adult Sexual Assault Program (ASAP), to ensure early collaboration and ongoing multidisciplinary review of cases at the senior trial counsel and supervisory special agent level. ASAP has been expanded to all fleet concentration areas except two, with plans to expand to those areas.

Furthermore, we instituted a comprehensive the Sexual Assault Forensic Examination (SAFE) training program to enhance response to victims. All 24/7 Navy medical treatment facilities (MTFs) now have Sexual Assault Forensic Examination (SAFE) capability, and all Navy ships have a SAFE trained medical provider assigned.

Additional investigation efforts include:

- Mandated early trial counsel/NCIS collaboration & multidisciplinary review of cases
- Implemented Defense Sexual Assault Incident Database
- Continued specialized sexual assault training for military trial and defense counsel, including trial counsel attendance at the Army's Special Victim Unit Investigations Course

Accountability: During FY13, we enhanced pretrial investigations by continuing the practice of using only judge advocates (JAs) as Article 32 Investigating Officers (IOs) for sexual assault cases. We also continued the withholding of authority to Initial Disposition Authority Special Court-Martial (SPCM) convening authority (CA) O-6s in cases involving allegations of rape and sexual assault under Article 120, Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), forcible sodomy, Article 125, UCMJ, and attempts to commit those offenses under Article 80, UCMJ. Commanding Officers (COs) were required to make a face-to-face report to the first Flag Officer (Admiral) in the chain of command within 30 days of a sexual assault being reported. Additionally, a Flag Officer is appointed as the SAPR Program Leader for each Navy installation/Fleet Concentration Area and associated local commands, providing leadership and program oversight.

Additional accountability efforts include:

- Integrated facilitated SAPR-Leadership training into the Navy's Command Leadership Course (mandatory for all prospective Commanding and Executive Officers and Senior Enlisted Leaders)
- Published court-martial outcomes on Navy public websites to make them available to both the Fleet and the general public
- Established Special Victim Capability
- Created and held first ever Special Victim Capability Course with judge advocates, Victim Advocates, paralegals and Legalmen

- Slated for assignment JAG Corps O-5s as Directors of Litigation in our three largest Region Legal Service Offices to enhance prosecution and mentoring

Advocacy/Victim Assistance: Reporting, advocacy coordination, medical services, legal support and counseling for the victim, as well as appropriate advocacy and legal support of the alleged offender are the cornerstones of our FY14 advocacy and victim assistance efforts.

Additional advocacy and victim support efforts include:

- Completed hiring and professionalization of Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC) and SAPR Victim Advocate cadre, including establishment of SARC/SAPR VA certification program and specialized training
- Targeted assignment of SARCs in fleet concentration areas based upon sexual assault trend analysis to optimize intervention/prevention programs and victim support
- Targeted training by professional SAPR Victim Advocates to current cadre of over 3,000 volunteer uniformed Victim Advocates
- Published expedited transfer procedures. Enhanced victim command transfer requirements established to ensure timely adjudication of requests and transfer execution - includes provision for Flag Officer oversight of process
- Redesigned victim response phone access
- Established SARC-certified civilian Deployed Resiliency Counselors (DRCs) program to ensure continuity of care for deployed victims. DRCs will deploy onboard aircraft carriers and amphibious assault ships to provide victims with another avenue for reporting and support. (First civilian SARC-certified DRC to be assigned in spring 2014)
- Implemented Victims' Legal Counsel (VLC) program by Judge Advocate General's (JAG) Corps

Assessment: We continue work to effectively standardize, measure, analyze, assess, and report program progress with the goal of incorporating responsive, meaningful, and accurate systems of measurement and evaluation into every aspect of the SAPR program.

FY13 assessment efforts include:

- Held quarterly 4-star Flag Officer SAPR discussions to review program progress with Fleet commanders and make adjustments as necessary to ensure effectiveness and responsiveness
- Formalized bi-weekly senior Navy leadership review of all incident reporting, trends and status of SAPR programs
- Established rigorous analysis of incidents to determine trends and identify causal factors to be addressed

- Required first Flag Officer reports to assess command climate factors
- Added Defense Equal Opportunity Survey SAPR questions to Navy command climate surveys
- Conducted SAPR Quick Poll (Apr 13)
- Partnered with DoN SAPRO to establish recruit location/Military Entrance Processing Station assessments
- In conjunction with DoN SAPRO, implemented Initial Training schools (“A” School) site assessments

Part II (Statistical Overview): Highlights of Unrestricted and Restricted Reports of sexual assault which were reported during Fiscal Year (FY)13 as well as a brief profile (Sexual Assault Synopses report) disposition of sexual assault cases investigated are as follows:

Reporting (percentage increase/decrease, FY13 and FY12 raw totals/proportions):

- Total Reports (+46%): FY13 – 1,057; FY12 – 726
- Unrestricted (+52%): FY13 – 801; FY12 – 527
- Restricted (+29%): FY13 – 256; FY12 – 199
- Conversions (+4%): FY13 – 49; FY12 – 47
- Latent reports over 31 days (+84%): FY13 – 340; FY12 – 185
- Latent reports over 31 days as % of total Unrestricted Reports: FY13 – 42%; FY12 – 35%
- Penetration offenses (+34%): FY13 – 446 (56%); FY12 – 333 (63%)
- Contact offenses (+82%): FY13 – 355 (44%); FY12 – 194 (37%)

Navy has instituted a strategic, audience-focused training program designed to educate at all levels of rank and responsibility. Our Fleet is better trained and educated on sexual assault, and it shows in survey results and increased numbers of incident reporting. Navy SARCs and SAPR VAs are well-trained and credentialed, providing strong support to victims. Sexual Assault Forensic Exam (SAFE) kits are available at all 24/7 Navy medical treatment facilities. Through the Victims’ Legal Counsel (VLC) program we have dedicated 30 specially selected and specially trained judge advocates to provide legal support to victims.

We will continue a metrics-based approach to evaluate our progress, improve our prevention efforts, and identify leading indicators of sexual assault in order to accurately focus action and policy. In FY13, based on observing how well their respective leadership responded to reports of sexual assault and as a result of being equipped with a better understanding of what constitutes sexual assault due to the increased fleet-wide training provided, more Sailors than ever came forward to report incidents, many of which occurred months or even years prior. Building on this, our goal must continue to be to reduce actual incidents of sexual assault, not reports of sexual assault. Reported incidents represent only a percentage of actual incidents, some of which may have occurred years earlier. The increase in reporting, as a result of increased trust and confidence by Sailors, as opposed to an increase in incidents, cannot empirically be shown until the results of the FY14 Workplace Gender Relations Survey of Active Duty Members are released. While reports of both penetration and contact crimes increased this year, reports of contact crimes are up more significantly. This trend supports our strategic imperative to reduce more severe crimes in the continuum of harm by concentrating our efforts on less severe offenses such as hazing, fraternization, discrimination, and sexual harassment (the Broken Window Theory).

Focus on world class response and victim advocacy must, and will, remain a priority; preventing sexual assaults from occurring is an imperative, and will be the primary focus of our effort going forward. This coming year, we will focus on prevention by first better understanding why sexual assaults continue to occur and be a problem. Our prevention goal is to deliver consistent and effective prevention methods and programs. Sustained leader emphasis by Commanders and first line supervisors is critical to preventing criminal behavior from occurring and responding appropriately when incidents occur, as these personnel are central in establishing the climate of dignity, respect, sensitivity, and environmental expectations that can reduce or eliminate sexual assault. Navy is developing and instituting core competencies and learning objectives for all SAPR training, starting with pre-command and Senior Enlisted, to ensure consistent learning and standardization throughout the Fleet. We are also deploying innovation and assessment teams to identify promising prevention strategies and techniques. Navy's desired end state is an atmosphere where cultural imperatives of mutual respect and trust, professional values, and team commitment are reinforced to create an environment where sexual harassment and sexual assault is not tolerated, condoned, or ignored.

Additionally, the Navy has completed and/or is in compliance with the Secretary of Defense (SECDEF) prevention initiatives directed in FY13. These initiatives included the Sexual Assault stand-down (all-hands training, SARC/VA and recruiter refresher training/recertification); ensuring appropriate command climate through visual inspections; ensuring safety through assessments of Recruiting Organizations, MEPS, and ROTC sites; assessment of standardized protections/policies in place for recruiter/recruit and trainer-trainee relationships. Navy will remain focused on the SECDEF's objectives so that we may succeed in reducing, and ultimately eliminating sexual assault from our ranks.

Organizational Structure

The Deputy Chief Naval Operations for Manpower, Personnel, Training and Education (DCNO) (N1) serves as the SAPR Executive Agent (EA), overseeing SAPR policy, program and initiatives across the Navy. In June 2013, the 21st Century Sailor Office was established to ensure that every Sailor's total fitness needs – including physical, mental, social and spiritual – are met so they can better navigate the challenges faced during their military service. Working on improving a Sailor's resilience ensures their combat readiness and effectiveness. The Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) program is a crucial part of this effort.

OPNAV N17 (Navy Flag Officer, Director of 21st Century Sailor Office/Navy SAPRO ) chairs the SAPR Cross Functional Team (CFT), a body established by CNO to ensure coordination among major stakeholders on SAPR-related issues, strategies, and initiatives. Collaboration via this CFT is critical in bringing program challenges to the forefront as well as multi-dimensional resolution for the Total Force. The following is a list of key members of the Navy SAPR CFT:

- Office of Chief of Naval Operations (OPNAV N17)
- Commander, Navy Installations Command (CNIC)
- United States Fleet Forces Command (USFFC)
- Commander, Pacific Fleet (PACFLT)
- Naval Education and Training Command (NETC) Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD)
- U.S. Navy Chief of Information (CHINFO)
- Office of the Judge Advocate General (OJAG)
- Bureau of Medicine and Surgery (BUMED N095)
- Chief of Chaplains Corps (CHC N097)
- Navy Personnel Research, Studies, and Technology (NPRST)
- Naval Criminal Investigative Services (NAVCRIMINSERV)
- Office of the Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy (MCPON)
- Office of the Chief of Naval Reserves (OCNR N093)
- Commander, Naval Reserve Forces Command (CNRFC)
- Military Sealift Command (MSC)

The SAPR Strategic Communications Plan is coordinated with OPNAV N1 and other major stakeholders to ensure its messaging and activities promote sexual assault awareness and education and are synchronized with each major initiative.

Navy SAPR is a command program consisting of multiple key stakeholders and first responders. As the program manager for Navy SAPR execution, CNIC (N91) is responsible for managing, implementing, and overseeing installation SAPR programs to include maintaining a coordinated approach between medical, legal, investigations, security, chaplains, Fleet and Family Support Centers (FFSC), operational, installation, and tenant commands, and civilian resources. The structure of Navy SAPR is hierarchical and consistent both afloat and ashore. A brief description of that structure follows.

Regional Level:

Regional Commanders (RADM/O-8/ and RDML/O-7/USN) promulgate local, updated, SAPR regional or installation guidelines for installation commanders who are responsible for ensuring Service members and their family members have access to well-coordinated, highly responsive SAPR programs.

- Regional Fleet and Family Readiness Program (N9)
- Regional Fleet and Family Support Program Directors
- Regional Counseling and Advocacy Program Managers

Regional SARCs - As SAPR Subject Matter Experts (SMEs) for Regional Command, Regional SARCs are responsible for overseeing implementation and execution of SAPR programs within their designated regions. Additionally, Regional SARCs have program oversight over SARCs and SAPR Victim Advocates in their Area of Responsibility (AOR).

Installation Level:

Installation Commanders (CAPT/O-6/USN)
Installation Fleet and Family Support Center Directors/Site Managers
Installation Fleet and Family Support Program (FFSP) Counseling and Advocacy Supervisors

Installation SARCs - As SAPR subject matter experts (SMEs) for the command, installation SARCs are responsible for providing consistent, standardized program support to victims and facilitating communication and transparency among responders who provide victim support services.

Echelon II and III commands establish and maintain the SAPR program, ensuring subordinate commands support and maintain effective SAPR programs. Commanders, Commanding Officers (COs), and Officers in Charge (OICs) designate the following required SAPR program personnel who are assigned to individual commands and deploy with commands:

- SAPR Victim Advocates (duties supervised by installation SARCs, regardless of the deployment location)
- SAPR Command Points of Contact (POCs) (responsible for Command SAPR training and prevention program)
- SAPR Command Liaisons (liaisons between victims and Commanding Officer/Officer in Charge (CO/OIC) to ensure victim support)
- Data Collection Coordinators (assists command in data collection for SITREPs)

Each receives required initial and annual refresher training provided by Installation SARCs.

Other key SAPR Program stakeholders and their roles include the following:

- NCIS investigates all unrestricted reports of sexual assaults and maintains the authoritative database of unrestricted reports of sexual assault incidents within the Department of the Navy (DON).
- The Bureau of Medicine and Surgery (BUMED) provides oversight and policy to Navy Medicine personnel, partnering with Regional Commands, the Medical Officer of the Marine Corps (TMO), and civilian healthcare facilities. BUMED Medical Operations provides oversight and policy to Navy's healthcare providers and commands, which include Navy Medicine Regions, Medical Treatment Facilities (MTFs) and branch clinics. BUMEDINST 6310.11a outlines the SAFE program which ensures comprehensive medical management for victims of sexual assault at MTFs and provides templates for Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs) if needed. Civilian medical facilities conduct Sexual Assault Forensic Examinations (SAFEs) to maintain a 24/7 response capability when such services are not available at the local military MTF or command.

- Chaplains provide pastoral and spiritual counseling to sexual assault victims upon request.
- Judge advocates provide instruction and guidance regarding the legal aspects of sexual assaults and responder training, serve as judges, trial, defense, and victims' legal counsel throughout the criminal litigation process, serve as Article 32 Investigation Officers and provide consultation and advice to Commanders, installation SARCs and health care providers (HCPs).
- In coordination with CNIC, NETC Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) is responsible for the development and delivery of a communication, education and training strategy and program that is aligned with Navy's overall SAPR Program.
- CHINFO is responsible for development and implementation of Navy's SAPR Program.
- USFF; Commander, U.S. Naval Forces Europe-Africa (CNE/A); Commander, U.S. Naval Forces Central (CUSNC); and PACFLT bring expertise and insight from the Fleet perspective to create synergy and focused effort among constituents.

The structure of Navy's SAPR program is consistent both afloat and ashore. Victims are supported by trained and certified full-time and collateral duty SAPR Victim Advocates (SAPR VAs) and the installation SARC. Collateral duty SAPR VAs deploy with commands and are trained and supported by the installation SARC (reach back for support). Sailors serving as Individual Augmentees (IAs) or assigned to non-Navy installations are provided support by the affiliated/lead Military Service SARC and SAPR VA within that installation/environment (e.g., Combat Area of Interest, Marine Base, etc.).

1. Line of Effort (LOE) 1—Prevention—The objective of prevention is to “deliver consistent and effective prevention methods and programs.”

1.1 Summarize your Service or Component’s efforts to achieve the Prevention End state: “cultural imperatives of mutual respect and trust, professional values, and team commitment are reinforced to create an environment where sexual assault is not tolerated, condoned, or ignored.”

U.S. Navy

Understanding the realities of sexual assault and the conditions under which they occur is a primary, continuous activity. Prevention initiatives continue using a multi-faceted approach focusing on command climate, deterrence, and bystander intervention (BI). Leadership is charged with fostering an environment where behaviors and actions that may lead to sexual assault, as well as sexual assault itself, are not tolerated, condoned or ignored.

Prevention-based practices shifted to a focus on examining the cultural elements present in the military workplace, and assessing whether or not those elements adequately encourage positive and appropriate behavior. These cultural elements included the policies and statements of the command, but more importantly included the values and personal comportment of the entire crew. All Navy commands are expected to create a culture where Sailors will not tolerate questionable or inappropriate behavior, such as sexism, sexual jokes, or innuendo. This type of culture will discourage or help prevent sexual assault.

Command Climate

Our strategy for attaining climate and behavioral changes is aimed at education and prevention strategies that will precipitate a reduction in incidents of sexual assault and increase trust in the Navy organization and its leaders. By taking conscious steps to understand, identify and reduce environmental risks, high-risk behaviors, and personal vulnerabilities associated with sexual assaults or other abuse crimes, commanders can demonstrate that there is no tolerance for behaviors along the entire continuum of harm. Command leaders who promote climates and environments that incorporate SAPR principles as habitual and inherent command characteristics ultimately safeguard our core values and Navy culture. In FY13, Navy

- Designated Flag Officers as the SAPR Program Leaders for each Navy installation/Fleet Concentration Area and associated local commands. This designated Flag Officer will establish routine coordination meetings with appropriate installation/local command representatives, and local community and civic leaders to review SAPR program efforts. This designated Flag Officer will also ensure that community outreach and engagement—including base and region commander cooperation, coordination and consultation with local law enforcement, hospitals and hotels -- is part of each area's prevention and response measures.

- Updated Prospective Commanding Officer/Senior Enlisted Academy (PCO/SEA) SAPR course curriculum.
- Educated frontline commanders and leaders at all levels and held them accountable for establishing a climate of dignity, respect and professionalism.
- Mandated that command climate surveys be conducted within 90 days of assuming command and annually thereafter; results shall be reviewed by all units' Immediate Supervisor In Command (ISICs), presenting a Plan of Action and Milestones to address any area identified as a shortcoming.
- Ensured leadership involvement.
  - Navy has updated the rating criteria for officer fitness reports and enlisted evaluations, and has implemented additional initiatives to prevent sexual assaults, some focused directly on leadership presence.
  - SAPR training for leaders in the Fleet (SAPR-L) was developed for all senior leadership in the grade of E-7 and above. SAPR-L training provided command leadership triads (Commanding Officer/Officer in Charge, Executive Officer/Assistant Officer in Charge and Command Master Chief/Chief of the Boat/Senior Enlisted Leader) the skills to promote a culture of change through interactive video and facilitated face-to-face (F2F) discussion with command members E-7 and above.
  - SAPR training is integrated into critical leadership training curricula including those classes taught at our Senior Enlisted Academy (SEA) and Command Leadership School (CLS), as well as the Senior Officer Course. This comprehensive approach to training has allowed us to ensure continuous messaging and to tailor training to various audiences from the at-risk demographic to leadership who are accountable for prevention and response
- Established comprehensive, audience-focused SAPR training at every Navy entry point (Recruit Training Command, U.S. Naval Academy, Reserve Officer Training Corps, Officer Candidate School).
- Created 16 SAPR Officer billets in the grade of O-4 or above for our most senior commands to improve program oversight.
- Conducted mandatory SAPR training for all civilian employees entitled "Sexual Assault Prevention: One Team, One Fight." The training addressed bystander intervention (BI), reporting options and resources for civilian employees, and the impact of sexual assault on victims, commands and mission accomplishment.

Deterrence

Navy has undertaken a series of initiatives to align with SECDEF initiatives and export best practices.

- Launched alcohol deglamorization campaign, restricted alcohol sales, and fielded Alcohol Detection Devices (ADDs).
- Implemented roving barracks patrols with the intent of increasing the visible presence of leadership to deter behavior that may lead to sexual assault or other misconduct.
- Implemented barracks Resident Advisor (E-6 and above) training.

- Conducted safety assessments of all facilities and areas on base (lighting, visibility, monitoring).
- Published results of trial of all Navy courts-martial to increase transparency of accountability actions and serve as general deterrence to other potential offenders.
- Conducted All Hands safety stand-down to address criticality of problem, initiatives to resolve.
- Performed visual inspection of spaces to assess factors that may contribute to negative command climate and take corresponding action.
- Identified and implemented regional best practices throughout the Navy:
  - Sigonella Safe and Rota 25 (implemented in Commander, Navy Region Europe, Africa, Southwest Asia (CNREURAFSWA)) are one-day programs for service members aged 25 and younger. Topics include consequences of unsafe behaviors, risk reduction, social media, and BI.
  - Great Lakes installation's SAPR program supported a lead initiative by providing a BI program for all "A" school students assigned. In FY13, the SAPR Program and Fleet and Family Support Center counselors have supported 598 classes with over 14,000 Sailors in attendance.
  - Commander, Navy Region Hawaii (CNRH) organized a "Commissary bagging event" where volunteers bagged groceries and distributed SAPR materials reaching more than 200 commissary patrons over a two-day period. (PACFLT provided Navy Region Hawaii (NRH) SAPR office with grocery bags with "DoD Safe Helpline" logo).
  - Commander, Navy Region Mid-Atlantic (CNRMA) SARCs provided multiple training evolutions promoting sexual assault prevention, such as Sexual Assault Awareness (SAA) training, SAPR General Military Training (GMT), Safety Stand-down, pre-deployment briefs, SAPR Victim Advocate (SAPR VA) training, and BI training.
  - Naval Base Guam released a sexual assault awareness and reporting public service announcement (PSA) involving the CO, XO, and Command Master Chief (CMC). The SARC and Civilian SAPR VA also filmed a public service announcement (PSA) enabling area personnel to readily identify SAPR roles, location, and availability.
  - Most PACFLT Regions have a SAPR Drumbeat Counsel meeting led by the Region Commander and including Major Fleet/Force Flag Officers in the same geographic area. These meetings assist in aligning program goals, sharing best practices, and identifying leading indicators that may require leadership awareness and action.
  - USS WAYNE E MEYER (DDG 108) Command Triad (CO, XO, and CMC) implemented a SAPR Roundtable Luncheon for junior Sailors to find out how sexual assault affects them and solicited their inputs in resolving this issue. Each week, a new group of junior Sailors have lunch with the Command Triad, Chaplain, Medical, and SAPR Team members: (SAPR VAs, and key SAPR personnel) in the Wardroom for a 'no holds barred' discussion about sexual assault. The CO sets the tone for honest and forthright discussion, ensuring the junior Sailors that their inputs are vital and can make a difference in preventing their shipmates from becoming offenders or victims.

Bystander Intervention (BI)

- All Training Support Centers/Advanced training sites ("A" schools deliver BI training to post-recruit training Sailors; over 44,000 students have completed training to date).
- Completed SAPR-Fleet training for all junior Sailors.
- Leveraged Navy's Coalition of Sailors Against Destructive Decisions (CSADD) – over 200 Chapters - which provide peer-to-peer mentoring and SAPR strategic messaging.
- Delivered (FY10-FY13) Fleet Workshops and Personnel Readiness (PR) Summits to the Fleet concentration areas (FCAs); programs incorporate BI training and innovative sexual assault training (e.g., "Sex Signals", "No Zebras, No Excuses").

Navy additionally has completed and/or is in compliance with the SECDEF prevention initiatives directed in FY13. These initiatives included the SAPR Stand-down (all-hands training, SARC/SAPR VA and recruiter refresher training/recertification); ensuring appropriate command climate through visual inspections; ensuring safety through assessments of Recruiting Organizations, Military Entrance Processing Station (MEPS), and Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) sites; assessment of standardized protections/policies in place for recruiter/recruit and trainer-trainee relationships.

1.2 Identify the ways you are changing organizational prevention-based practices.

U.S. Navy

There are a variety of ways in which we are changing organizational prevention-based practices across the Navy and at various levels of command. These include the following actions:

- Unit Commanding Officers are required to report incidents of sexual assault to the first Flag Officer in their chain of command within 30 days of any unrestricted report. During this "First Flag Report" the Commanding Officer and Flag Officer discuss command climate and SAPR readiness issues. This report is then rolled up to four-star Fleet Commanders who share their findings quarterly with the Chief of Naval Operations.
- Navy Command Leadership School SAPR classes equipped leaders with the necessary tools needed to establish a culture of prevention, and encourage and foster a culture of BI.
- Organizational prevention-based practices within regions reflect increased use of the "continuum of harm" concept, focusing on BI as an opportunity to engage command leadership and Sailors in discussions of sexual assault, high-risk behaviors, and how they relate to the Navy Core Values. Additionally, shifting training methods from "lecture based" to "engaged facilitation" has assisted in Sailors better understanding the materials and retaining the prevention message as a whole.

- Navy also initiated prevention focused discussions with watch, resident advisor and roving patrol personnel.
- Command leaders have increased community engagement and outreach with local hotel proprietors, restaurant and bar owners, liquor store managers to educate them on sexual assault prevention efforts and make them aware of resources. Navy made significant progress in community engagement and increasing our presence off base. Representatives from boards of commerce as well as local establishments welcome the Navy's intervention efforts as they see the positive results in curbing incidents of sexual assault and other unacceptable behaviors that may occur or begin in the local community.
- The 21st Century Sailor Office is partnering with university leaders to understand and share best practices.
- Some communities actively participated in Sexual Assault Awareness Month (SAAM) by supporting numerous initiatives throughout April. SARCs engaged in over 575 prevention-based activities and outreach to over 113,000 personnel Navy-wide, a 13% increase from FY12. Media campaigns directed at raising awareness and promoting BI were developed across numerous Navy regions. Events provided prevention outreach and training throughout the installations.
- During FY13, CNIC HQ provided updated educational and marketing materials focusing on prevention-based strategies to the SARCs to facilitate dialogues on bystander strategies and what resources are available to prevent sexual violence.
- Navy Recruiting Command (NRC) implemented SAPR-DEP (Delayed Entry Program), a mandatory pre-accession training for all future officer and enlisted personnel. SAPR-DEP defines fraternization, sexual harassment and sexual assault as related to Navy policy standards, professional expectations and disciplinary action.
- Navy Regions under the CNIC claimancy and other shore and training commands increased sharing of best prevention-based practices to include the following:
  - Naval Station Everett SARCs established a proactive "Welcome Door" (open-door) availability to meet at any time for candid, yet comfortable, direct lines of communication, which are critical to response protocol and prevention efforts.
  - Commander Navy Region Mid-Atlantic (CNRMA) has incorporated the use of social media in order to ensure that Sailors have the knowledge of various ways (direct and indirect), that they can intervene, as well as the expectation to do so without feeling intimidated or confrontational. In addition, the CNRMA Public Affairs Officer (PAO) developed a SAPR strategic plan outlining marketing and media/marketing goals, processes, and venues to disseminate information, increase awareness, and support prevention.
  - Navy Region Europe, Africa, Southwest Asia (CNREURAFSWA) installations' Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) and CSADD chapters are collaborating on Single Sailor events to create a safe and healthy environment that appeals to more junior services members,

- Commander Navy Region Midwest's (CNRMW) SARCs and SAPR VAs worked closely with command and regional representation to explore and develop new multi-modal educational tools and practices. SARCs recommended that credentialed SAPR VAs be trainers for standardized SAPR training within their commands. Credentialed civilian victim advocates provided commands with general program and indoctrination briefs.
- Naval Education and Training Security Assistance Field Activity (NETSAFA) made a concerted effort to reach each staff member via face-to-face contact at "All Hands" and awards ceremonies. Pertinent information was disseminated via the Plan of the Week, Current Notice/Flyers on the Official Bulletin boards, and leadership emails to promulgate DoD/Navy/NETC/NETSAFA policy, their rights and available resources.
- NETC tenant commands initiated a policy of phased liberty for students. Completion of required SA training is part of the requirement for increased liberty and off-base overnight liberty which sets the tone for personal accountability and responsibility.
- Naval Service Training Command (NSTC) initiated an avatar-based simulation training pilot program. This effort will help quantify the effectiveness of using avatars to train soft skills such as SAPR counseling, by considering student performance and engagement level. This project is designed to help students recognize potential signs of distress, understand SAPR guidelines and policy, and develop and practice applying interpersonal skills during situations involving SAPR issues. Students (prospective Recruit Division Commanders (RDCs) at Recruit Training Command (RTC) interact with an avatar that is inhabited by a remotely located subject matter expert (SME). Two-way auditory and visual communications allow trainer operating avatar to respond to trainee verbal and non-verbal cues. SME assumes the identity of a victim, bystander, or perpetrator, while trainers have the option of assuming multiple ethnic, racial and gender identities.
- Naval Air Technical Training Command (NATTC) focused on the prevention aspect during training and being an active bystander to prevent sexual assault. Their efforts included:
  - Actively promoted use of the 24-hour DoD Safe Helpline along with the new mobile telephone application to ensure victims are aware of the policy in place to protect their privacy.
  - SAPR VAs met monthly with the installation SARC to discuss best practices among the many commands in their respective areas. Collaboration with SAPR VAs from other commands resulted in improved training aids and delivery methods as well as the most up-to-date program information being disseminated thoroughly.
  - Focus groups within different ranks and utilized feedback to create more effective training. For example, holding abbreviated SAPR briefs with emphasis on BI, implementing the use of multimedia applications, and inputs/critiques for weekly student indoctrination.
  - To target sexual assault and collateral misconduct, drug abuse, and improper alcohol use, commands utilized the Assistant Command Duty Officer/Barracks Petty Officer (CDO/BPO) to brief barracks policies and Center for Naval Aviation Technical Training Unit (CNATTU) regulations to each new resident upon check-in. The students are tested on their understanding and have acknowledgement of their completion of the training in their service records. Students received follow-on affirmation during indoctrination, weekly pre-liberty safety briefs and at required Navy Military Training and General Military Training (NMT/GMT) and training stand-downs.

- CSADD NATTC enforced liberty buddy policies and encouraged participation. CSADD has grown in size and strength from a small group of 18 Sailors meeting once monthly to a multi-service organization of over 360 service members who are actively holding events that involve the entire command on a near weekly basis.

1.3 Describe your efforts to comply with DoD SAPR core competencies for all SAPR training to ensure consistency. Include Professional Military Education, Pre-Command, and Senior Enlisted training.

U.S. Navy

In March 2013, DoD published its revised DoD SAPR Program policy, enhancing procedures and standardizing SAPR efforts across the Department. As of April 2013, standardized SAPR core competencies and learning objectives are being taught at DoD-wide pre-command and senior NCO training courses, SAPR training courses for basic training, victim advocates, and continuing professional military education.

The Navy identified the leadership training continuum as the location to satisfy proscribed Professional Military Education (PME) requirements. Training has been developed and implemented in the following courses consistent with the DOD SAPRO core competencies and learning objectives:

- Petty Officer Selectee Leadership
- Petty Officer Second Class Selectee Leadership
- Petty Officer First Class Selectee Leadership
- Chief Petty Officer Selectee Leadership
- Chief's Mess Training
- Command Master Chief/Chief of the Boat Leadership
- Division Officer Leadership
- Department Head Leadership
- Prospective Executive Officer Leadership
- Prospective Commanding Officer Leadership
- Major Command Leadership
- New Flag Officer and Senior Executive Course (NFLEX)

FY13 NDAA Section 574(d) required SAPR training at Pre-Command training.

Command Leadership School (CLS) provides training to all Sequential Commanders, Major Commanders, Prospective Commanding Officers, Prospective Executive Officers and Command Master Chiefs/Chiefs of the Boat in small mixed groups. Discussion among groups is facilitated by instructors who are all post-Command or post-Command Master Chiefs.

Navy also developed specific first responder training using the DoD Core Competencies:

- Judge Advocate General (JAG)
  - The Naval Justice School in Newport, Rhode Island provides mandatory training on SAPR to all judge advocates attending the Basic Lawyer Course (BLC), a ten-week course judge advocates must complete in order to receive Article 27(b), Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) certification. These judge advocates receive two one-hour block courses of instruction on SAPR and the role of the Sexual Assault Initial Disposition Authority (SA-IDA).
  - Additionally, the Naval Justice School hosts a three-day Senior Officer Course (SOC), required for all O-6s en route to command positions. The course is open to officers assigned as or reporting to duty as COs, XOs or OICs and other officers, O-4 and above, with a mission-essential need on a space-available basis. This course covers numerous subjects in military justice and civil law important to COs, XOs, and OICs in the administration of legal matters, to include training on a wide range of sexual assault related topics. Training includes the following subjects: Introduction to Military Justice, Search and Seizure, Self-Incrimination, Court-Martial Procedures, Responsibility of the Convening Authority, Hazing, SA-IDA, SAPR, and Victim and Witness Assistance Program (VWAP).
  - In addition to the SAPR stand-down that was executed Fleet-wide, the JAG Corps required SAPR training for all judge advocates, with specific emphasis on topics of special relevance to trial and defense counsel, and staff judge advocates.

- Chaplain Corps. In cooperation with DoD and DON SAPRO, Navy Chaplain Corps developed additional Core Competencies and Learning Objectives for Chaplain specific SAPR training which includes:
  - Summarize the critical issues in combatting sexual assault in the military.
  - Describe DoD and military Service-specific SAPR policies, including SAPR roles and responsibilities.
  - Demonstrate awareness of sexual assault policies and procedures in their command and in forward-deployed locations, including remote locations.
  - Describe the possible flow and outcomes of sexual assault investigations.
  - Recognize the range of reactions to victimization and the impact of trauma on the victim's behavior and ability to communicate clearly.
  - Demonstrate sensitivity in interactions with victims and avoid re-victimization.

- Educate victims on self-care strategies to prevent re-victimization.
  - Listen attentively to victims and alleged offenders and use the information they provide to identify crisis situations and offer appropriate care.
  - Identify and apply effective strategies to provide victim and alleged offenders care in contingency and remote areas.
  - Explain Chaplain's confidentiality and role in sexual assault victim support.
  - Refer victims and alleged offenders to appropriate resources regarding their situation.
  - Assess and address victim and alleged offender safety issues.
  - Provide support to sexual assault witnesses, bystanders, and any other unit members impacted by the crime, addressing the effects of trauma and stress.
  - Provide support to sexual assault first responders (SARCs, SAPR VAs, healthcare personnel, chaplains, JAGs, law enforcement, or any other professionals) regarding the secondary effects of trauma and stress.
  - Provide guidance to unit members on how to mitigate the impact of sexual assault in the unit, while keeping in mind the needs and concerns of the victim, the alleged offenders and their families.
  - Provide guidance to command leadership team on how to mitigate the impact of sexual assault in the unit, while keeping in mind the needs and concerns of the victim, the alleged offenders and their families.
- Navy Bureau of Medicine and Surgery (BUMED). BUMED has been effective in the implementation of all SAPR PMEs achieving 94% or higher for all required training. They developed a Prospective Commanding Officer/Prospective Executive Officer (PCO/PXO) course in FY13 on new SAPR program initiatives including; commanders accountability, climate review, administrative compliance, advocacy and prevention efforts. The SAPRO and Sexual Assault Forensic Exam (SAFE) Program Manager (PM) briefed all Commanding Officers at the Surgeon General's Leadership Symposium on the SAPR program. Senior enlisted personnel are included on working groups to develop and implement training.
  - Commander Navy Reserve Forces (COMNAVRESFOR). Leaders at all levels in the Navy Reserve Force continue to work diligently to eradicate sexual assault. Understanding that the Navy works as a Total Force and Reserve Sailors are heavily integrated with the Active Component, COMNAVRESFOR is in strict alignment with Navy and DoD SAPR training, adding content only as necessary for Reserve-specific variations in policy. To that end, COMNAVRESFOR completed all Total Force requirements for FY13 to include core training events such as SAPR-F, SAPR-L, General Military Training (GMT) SAPR topic, and SAPR Stand-Down All Hands Leadership Engagement.
  - SARC and SAPR VAs. CNIC updated the initial SARC and SAPR Victim Advocate 40-hour trainings, coordinated 40-hour SARC Annual Training, and provided monthly webinars to increase subject matter expertise, resulting in increased SARC and SAPR VA ability to provide culturally competent and effective services. These efforts ensure SARCs are delivering consistent training as outlined in the Department of Defense Instruction (DoDI) 6495.02.

- Regions. Navy Regions have implemented best practices resulting in a commitment to a SAPR team presence during training. Regions have implemented best practice efforts in which core competencies are addressed and reviewed during:
  - Executive Leadership SAPR training
  - Command Triad SAPR Toolkit

1.4 Describe your progress in implementing the findings and recommendations from the SAPR Initial Military Training reviews. Include your efforts to enhance accession training by including SAPR policies and implementation of SAPR training within 14 days of entrance to active duty.

U.S. Navy

At the Navy's Recruit Training Command (RTC), SAPR training is embedded in basic Sailorization; embracing Navy Core Values and the concept of "what a Shipmate is and does" is at the forefront of each RTC Staff Sailors' minds as they transform civilians into basic Sailors over a 59-day period.

Recruit Training (Enlisted Accessions). Recruits receive SAPR training almost immediately after arrival at Recruit Training Command (RTC) and throughout their accession training. The training is provided by experts and is in multiple formats.

- Recruits view a video of RTC CO articulating six programs and policies: Sexual Assault and Harassment, Racism, Hazing, Fraternalization, Substance Abuse, and Recruit-to-Recruit Contact. This video is shown again when the recruits are completing in-processing. A formal RTC instructor-led topic (UCMJ) is presented to recruits during their processing week (from 5 to 8 days after arrival) of training. Enabling objectives applicable to SAPR:
  - Explain the relationship between Navy Core Values and the UCMJ.
  - Explain the meanings of the punitive articles (77 through 134, specifically including, Article 120) of the UCMJ.
- During the first week, at RTC (in-processing) recruits are provided over one hour of male/female wellness training by Naval Health Clinic Great Lakes (NHGCL) senior clinical personnel. During this training, recruits are split into separate classrooms by gender. Recruits are given a questionnaire which asks if they have ever been a victim of sexual assault, and if they would like individual counseling concerning the assault. Recruit Evaluation Unit (REU) personnel offer psychological counseling or refer the recruit to Counseling in a Recruit Environment (CARE).
- A formal RTC instructor-led topic ("Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Training for the Fleet” (SAPR-F)) is presented to recruits during the first week of training. The content is periodically reviewed by a Regional SAPR Representative for accuracy. Enabling objectives of the topic are:

- Identify definitions of sexual assault-related terms.
  - Identify procedures to follow by victim of sexual assault.
  - Identify Navy's policy on sexual assault.
  - Identify common myths/facts concerning rape/sexual assault.
  - Explain preventive measures and survival tactics for sexual assault.
  - Explain sources of assistance for a victim of sexual assault.
  - Explain relationship between Navy Core Values and sexual assault.
- The Chaplain presents training on Navy Core Values during the first week of training. Enabling objectives are:
    - Explain values and their influence on a person's behavior.
    - Define the Navy Core Values.
    - Identify behaviors that detract from Navy Core Values.
    - Explain the effects of low self-esteem on relationships with RDCs and other recruits.
    - Identify the limitations of gender relationships between male and female recruits, and RDCs during recruit training.
    - Explain the goals of Navy Core Values.
    - Explain the relationship between teamwork and behavior according to the Navy Core Values.
  - RTC CARE advocates provide individual and group counseling to recruits that were victims of sexual assault, as well as address other emotional issues. The CARE program was established to assist recruits experiencing difficulties in completing basic training requirements or adjusting to the military environment due to distressing personal backgrounds. The primary targets from the recruit population are those who have experienced abuse or had a traumatic experience. CARE is manned by RDCs who have been thoroughly screened and have attended an 8-hour SAPR course. These individuals provide initial evaluation, as well as individual, direct motivational guidance to recruits requiring or desiring intervention. They facilitate recruit access to chaplains, local social workers and mental health providers as needed.
  - RDCs are trained at RDC “C” school about resources available (e.g., CARE, Recruit Evaluation Unit (REU)) if a recruit requests counseling or if the RDC suspects a recruit's sub-standard performance may be due to emotional issues.
  - NHC Great Lakes provides an hour-long follow-up male and female recruit wellness brief during the fifth week of training called the Reinforcing Education to Achieve Health (REACH) brief on several topics including Sexual Health Awareness and stressing good decision making in sexual matters.
  - Prior to graduation and liberty weekend, recruits are given an hour-long liberty brief by the Ship's Officer, a Fleet O-3. The brief covers the “Buddy System” requirement and reinforces the no alcohol policy/no hotel room for early liberty weekends (phased liberty). An emphasis is placed on the importance of Shipmates looking after each other and avoiding situations that place them at risk.

- Formal instructor-led training is provided to students enrolled in advanced specialty courses immediately after transfer from RTC by Training Support Center (TSC) during indoctrination week. The training is titled “Violent Crime” and includes crimes that are sexual in nature. Enabling objectives are:
  - Define terms (i.e., Blue-on-Blue, assault, domestic violence, child abuse)
  - Identify reporting requirements for violent crime
  - State what a victim or witness to a violent crime should do
  - List two consequences of being involved in a violent crime

Officer Accessions:

- Officer Training Command Newport (OTCN). OTCN has developed a plan that keeps SAPR in the forefront of the minds of both staff and students. The plan includes:
  - Week 1 of their respective classes OTCN students receive an initial in-brief from the Chaplain and initial SAPR training on:
    - Navy and OTCN SAPR policies
    - The definition of sexual assault
    - Restricted/Unrestricted reports
    - Role of the SARC/VA and what to do if a sexual assault occurs
  - SAPR-L is provided to each class at a specific point in their training:
    - Officer Candidate School (OCS)—Week 8,
    - Officer Development School (ODS)—Week 3,
    - Direct Commissioning Officer Indoctrination Course (DCOIC)—Week 1,
    - Limited Duty Officer/Chief Warrant Officer (LDO/CWO)—Week 1
  - Additional SAPR training:
    - Continuation of SAPR-L for all OTCN students,
    - Annual observance of SAPR Awareness Month every April,
    - Quarterly review of SAPR training and awareness, and
    - Monthly training and awareness events.
- NROTC Units
  - During Freshman Orientation, all incoming freshmen receive SAPR-F as part of the training program. Any freshmen not attending Freshman Orientation must complete a make-up session within 14 days of joining the unit.
  - Within two weeks of the semester start date, each unit must complete the 2013 SAPR Stand-down requirements.
  - Within 60 days of the semester start date, all sophomores, juniors, and 1st/2nd year Seaman to Admiral 21 (STA-21) Officer Candidates and Marines participating in the Marine Enlisted Commissioning Education Program (MECEP) students must complete SAPR-F.
  - Within 90 days of the semester starting, the seniors and final year STA-21/MECEP students must complete Leadership training curriculum (SAPR-L).
- United States Naval Academy (USNA)
  - Plebes (freshmen) take four hours of sexual harassment and sexual assault training within their first month. The new Plebe SAPR training was introduced during Academic Program Year (APY) 12-13.

- The comprehensive training is divided into four phases.
  - o Phase 1 (Induction Day), plebes are introduced to USNA's SAPR Program and staff and receive an informational flyer with response/reporting information.
  - o Phase 2 (first week of Plebe Summer). Plebes receive an introductory SAPR brief and are offered a voluntary, anonymous SHAPE survey designed to understand entering midshipmen's beliefs on gender and sexual violence.
  - o Phase 3 (end of the first week of Plebe Summer; continues through the third week). Company officers provide SAPR briefs and reinforced prevention and awareness messages at the Company leadership level.
  - o Phase 4, (end of week one through week three). Command leaders provide two-hour SAPR Stand-down training to each platoon of 40-45 plebes.
- In addition to the formal Sexual Harassment and Assault Prevention and Education (SHAPE) curriculum, midshipmen receive briefings by the SAPR Office at the Fall and Spring Reforming of the Brigade, as well as prior to summer training. The briefings are designed to increase awareness, improve Brigade safety by identifying specific risks and providing BI training, and reinforce concepts introduced in formal training. During APY 12-13, every midshipman received both SAPR-Leadership (SAPR-L) and SAPR-F training as well. SAPR-F trainings were facilitated by Company Officers and Senior Enlisted Non-Commissioned Officers who, during APY 12-13, were trained and qualified as Master Mobile Training Team members.
- The Department encourages USNA explain to all midshipmen during SAPR training the role of the USNA Inspector General (IG) so they are aware of an important reporting channel for sexual harassment, reprisal, or violations of policy.
  - All Company Officers, Senior Enlisted Leaders, and Battalion Officers should receive a USNA-modified version of the Navy's Pre-command Training prior to beginning of classes or within 30 days of reporting for duty.

1.5 Identify specific SAPR monitoring, measures, and education that impart individual skills associated with BI and appropriate risk reduction that does not blame victims.

U.S. Navy

Navy Education and Training Command (NETC) deployed a series of turn-key products for Navy use in support of the SAAM recognition efforts. BI training, developed by Mentors in Violence Prevention (MVP) has been fully integrated into all post-recruit training schoolhouses with a NMT Program. This course continues to be well received and is fully supported by base and installation SARCs and command SAPR VAs to ensure any student needing assistance, even with a pre-service assault, is provided support and guidance.

Messaging and learning objectives consistent with the Department of Defense Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Office has been integrated in all levels of leadership training from accessions to Major Command. SAPR- L continues to be delivered at officer accession sources (i.e., USNA, ROTC, Officer Training Command Newport (OTCN)); SAPR-F continues to be delivered at RTC. Specific efforts within the NETC domain include:

- As students arrive, they are given briefs of BI and SAPR training to include victim rights and reporting and signs of predatory behaviors.
- “No Zebras” training for all command and student personnel and follow-on SAPR training for all command and student personnel.
- Quarterly SAPR/BI training.
- BI role-play, videos and lectures, so service members understand the different aspects of intervention and how to intervene.
- Quarters (formal morning meeting) for the entire crew on SAPR policies and the fact that command leadership has an open door policy for reporting any instances/perceived instances.
- All Hands BI training.
- Center for Explosive Ordnance Disposal and Diving (CEODD). During student indoctrination, the sailors received information about BI and how to report potential problems without fear of reprisal. They were encouraged to use buddy system at all times and understand that they will be held accountable if and when they don’t follow regulations.
- TSC Great Lakes BI training was provided to all students within the first week of checking onboard. Additionally, large and small group contract training was provided 4-6 weeks post BI training and built on the foundational BI.
- Quarterly SAPR training and GMT to include BI and command involvement at every level at Center for Naval Aviation Technical Training (CNATT).
- Command indoctrination, Petty Officer Indoctrination, Chief Petty Officer (CPO) 365 training, student weekly Operational Risk Management (ORM) brief, student indoctrination, and command observed sexual assault awareness month with command participation from students and staff. During Command Indoctrination, a brief is given to new Sailors/Marines on the SAPR program including points of contact and advocates and there is a BI discussion.
- Instructors give their students briefs before weekend liberty, reminding them to be vigilant and aware of their surroundings to reduce or eliminate sexual assaults. As part of the introduction to each class, Instructors give students an overview of the command SAPR Program and the steps to keep themselves and others safe.
- Safety stand-down periods prior to each holiday weekend to include liberty planning, responsible alcohol use and BI training. Individual training was conducted in the form of Navy Military Training (NMT) and GMT briefs for both staff and students. In addition, The CSADD utilize Sailor and Marine instructors to impart facilitated discussion for adherence of SAPR foundation principles, analyzing the more common pitfalls that lead to inappropriate situations.

- Initial Accession students complete the NMT curriculum, which incorporates scenario-based training on topics such as alcohol abuse, team building, sexual activity, sexual harassment as a victim and as a witness, grievance and redress procedures, and sexual assault. Members of the chain of command emphasize the importance of displaying professionalism as Sailors/Marines and focuses on military bearing and abiding by the Navy's Core Values. In the Navy "A" School, BI was taught as a part of required NMT. BI and appropriate risk reduction that does not blame victims were also topics that were specifically emphasized during the recent SAPR Stand-Down, SAPR-F, and SAPR-L training.
- BI is a primary topic during our command indoctrination (INDOC), and is also specifically included in the CO's remarks. INDOC is provided on a weekly basis to all new student personnel by the SAPR VA with a focus on command policies and BI. It is also reinforced by the CO, Sergeant Major (SgtMaj), XO and Maintenance Chief. Additionally, all students are required to have a liberty buddy when off base liberty is granted.
- All permanent personnel are required to check in with the SAPR VA, SAPR Point of Contact (POC), XO, and CO upon assignment to the Command during which the Command policies on sexual assault and BI are covered and reaffirmed in detail. Male and female mentorship is conducted on a weekly basis. BI is taught once a week. Operational Risk Management (ORM) briefs were conducted prior to the weekend and holidays, covering available ways to report, BI, liberty buddy policies, and how to stay safe.

Best Practices

USFF

- Leveraged Highly Qualified Expert (HQE) Mr. Eric Hipple (University of Michigan Depression Center) as a guest speaker in the 11 Fleet SAPR workshops (34 individual sessions), for command leadership, front line supervisors, and program managers. Mr. Hipple brings qualities and expertise to these sessions that were critical in laying the foundation for USFF and Navy SAPR strategies, which include SAPR, BI, victim blaming, and Sailor Resiliency as integral elements.
- Collaborated with Mr. Bernie McGrenahan of "Comedy is the Cure" to bring an innovative approach to Sailors in the Fleet. These sessions brought realistic and effective examples of BI, responsible use of alcohol, and SAPR to the "deckplate". Participants were provided tools they could use which will help influence behavior change and raise awareness.

PACFLT

- Encourages sharing best practices and innovated resources concerning risk reduction and is highly encouraged throughout PACFLT commands. For example, disseminating information regarding tools and Smart phone applications.

- Increased focus on the responsible use of alcohol campaigns, especially during social events where alcohol may be available, in efforts to reduce alcohol related-incidents and alcohol-related sexual assaults.
- Conducted All Hands Call upon arrival taking command and periodically through the year. Leaders addressed sexual assault as one of their policy priorities.
- Revised on base, especially overseas, alcohol serving restrictions and server training requirements.
- Rigorously promoted and advertised “Keep What You Earn” initiative of alcohol deglamorization, continually placing emphasis on the importance of key Sailorization programs, MWR Single Sailor Programs, and off duty education.

SARCs

- Navy wide, SARCs focused on infusing BI strategies into training for various other programs as well. Additionally, SARCs received advanced BI training from Dr. Jackson Katz from Mentors in Violence Prevention (MVP) Project during the 40-hour annual training session.
- In an effort to develop an evidence base, the key SAPR Program personnel and BI Facilitators performed analysis of data trends provided on anonymous surveys taken by BI students. This interpretation of trends better informed instructors on the needs of their classes and changes necessary to their facilitation. As a result, SARCs incorporated a BI training module into the initial and refresher training for SAPR VAs. SARCs continue to provide refresher SAPR VA training on a monthly and/or quarterly basis to ensure they disseminate the latest information and build their knowledge and skills. These trainings enable commands to reduce re-victimization and improve response to potential victims.
- Naval Air Station Lemoore (NASL) SARCs frequently receive feedback from command leadership regarding the results of Defense Equal Opportunity Command Survey (DEOCS) surveys as they relate to SAPR. SARCs ensure that the discussion of survey results are incorporated into the CO’s toolkit briefs to facilitate development of the plan of action for addressing the lack of knowledge and skills/comfort with intervention. For example, one of the tenant commands reported having low scores in their level of confidence with intervention. As a result, SARCs worked with the tenant SAPR team to develop initiatives to increase confidence.
- Regional SAPR Program Officers developed and supported advertisements that had messages of positive BI strategies and skills.
- Specific SAPR “edutainment” such as “No Zebras, No Excuses”, “Sex Signals,” and “Shot of Reality” were conducted to help Sailors hone focus on BI. These types of presentations creatively catered to the demographic in need of this unique form of training. Feedback received from Sailors attending these trainings has been positive. They state that it allows them to receive SAPR training in an interactive way as they are included in the dialogue by the performers. The “theatrical vignettes” used in “No Zebras, No Excuses” and “Sex Signals” are fresh and effective methods of reaching our Sailors and leaders.

- Student critiques are reviewed for comments that may suggest beliefs that could possibly lead to inappropriate behavior. All students receive SAPR training from the command SAPR Point of Contact (POC) or SAPR VA promptly upon check-in during their respective indoctrination briefs. Topics addressed include BI, reporting procedures, and reporting options for victims, the benefits and limitations of each option, as well as victim assistance programs and tools available via the DoD Safe Helpline. Students are also provided with wallet cards and handouts that provide a quick-reference for contacting a SARC or VA should they require immediate assistance.

1.6 Describe your efforts to establish policies that create and sustain safe environments free of sexual assault. Include policies and practices that address alcohol consumption and barracks/dormitories visitation.

U.S. Navy

In July 2013, NAVADMIN 181/13 established that the following policies would be implemented by Fleet Commanders no later than 1 October 2013:

- Roving barracks patrols led by Chief Petty Officers or experienced commissioned officers (O-3 and above) and augmented with First Class Petty Officers to deter behavior that may lead to sexual assault or misconduct.
- Indoctrination training within 30 days of occupancy for all Sailors residing in barracks.
- Pay grade (E-6 or above) and training requirements for Resident Advisors (RAs).
- Facility surveys to identify areas that require better lighting, visibility or other safety improvements to reduce vulnerability of Sailors while walking on base.

In July, 2013, the CNO revised alcohol sales policies at Navy Exchanges (NEX) as follows:

- Distilled spirits only to be sold at main exchanges or at dedicated package (liquor) stores.
- Alcohol displays and merchandise in stores other than package stores will be no more than 10% of the total retail floor space and not displayed on the front of stores.
- Alcohol can only sold only between the hours of 0600 - 2200.

Many commands are working with local civilian establishments to reduce underage drinking and ensure that those of legal age are served a reasonable amount of alcohol. SARCs train bartenders and resident advisors on how to access resources for those in need of the SAPR program, how to support residents who have been affected by sexual assault and how to implement the policies set forth by their commands that reinforced a safe environment. Additionally, SARCs supported commands with their efforts in establishing unaccompanied housing policies and procedures, including the implementation of SAPR initiatives such as the addition of lighting around installation buildings and installation-wide roving patrols.

Best Practices:

- CSADD is a peer led group located around the world that deglamorizes the use of alcohol by planning alcohol-free liberty activities like movie nights, day-trips, and sporting events. The group meets regularly to discuss alcohol use, BI, core values, healthy lifestyle choices, and other Junior Sailor issues and responsibilities. In some chapters, students are given Arrive Alive wallet cards that guarantee transportation home via cab to individuals that may be vulnerable to assault. Also, leadership conducts weekly liberty briefs covering the alcohol consumption policy, BI (e.g., not only as it pertains to sexual assault, but also intervening should a Shipmate attempt to engage in drunk driving, etc.), and good decision making principles.
- Naval Base Kitsap's SAPR Team participated with Right Spirit OkSOBERfest, hosted by the Intermediate Maintenance Facility, with the goal of effectively delivering a message to deglamorize substance abuse while encouraging productive activities to Sailors, Marines, and military family members. The event focused on providing participants with an abundance of information, fun games, activities, food, and services that all contributed to healthier lifestyles and productive performance of the community members.
- Commander, Navy Region Southwest (CNRSW) conducts targeted training ensuring that all MWR bartenders, servers, and management staff receive Controlling Alcohol Risks Effectively (CARE) training to recognize alcohol is the weapon of choice to facilitate sexual assaults, understand bodily alcohol absorption rates, and intercept irresponsible drinking.
- Commander, Navy Region Midwest (CNRMW) SAPR staff trained bartenders and resident advisors on how to access resources for those in need of SAPR services.
- Naval Aviation Schools Command (NASC) has a female mentoring program which is led by female instructors as well as older mature female students. They meet once a month to discuss good decision making choices during liberty, BI, and grievance and redress procedures.

1.7 Describe progress, assessment, efforts, and/or approved plans for requiring commanders to conduct an organizational climate assessment within 120 days of assuming command and annually thereafter. Include policy for providing results to the next level in the chain of command.

U.S. Navy

NAVADMIN 181/13, reinforced command climate surveys requirement within 90 days of assuming command and annually thereafter. The policy also directs execution of a face-to-face debrief of command climate survey results with the ISIC. The debrief covers significant findings, areas of strength and concerns, and the actions taken by the command to develop a Plan of Actions and Milestones (POA&M) to improve the command climate.

Equal Opportunity Advisors (EOAs) monitor compliance and provide reports to the commander. Under OPNAVINST 5354.1F (Navy EO Policy), EOAs track and report compliance on a quarterly basis using the DEOMI Data Retrieval System (DRS).

Additional Resources and Best Practices:

- Commander, Navy Region Northwest (CNRNW) SAPR Team supports installations and commands with their efforts to address sexual assault within the command climate assessment. SARC's discuss climate trends and concerns with Command Triads during Commander's Toolkit training, at the Sexual Assault Case Management Group (SACMG), or as needed. The SAPR program staff has regular meetings with command leadership to discuss published aggregate data and trends. SARC's conducted approximately 32 Commander's Toolkit Briefs and follow-on conversations with all command triads within their area of responsibility (AOR).
- Commander, Submarine Forces Pacific (COMSUBPAC) commands foster an active partnership with the Submarine Cultural Workshop Program which focuses on communications, integrity, and trust throughout the command as a means to identify at risk behaviors that may have become cultural norms.

1.8 Describe collaboration efforts concerning prevention with external experts, federal partners (e.g. NATO), advocacy organizations, and educational institutions, to include prevention subject matter experts. Describe results and/or implementations of lessons learned from collaboration efforts.

U.S. Navy

In FY13, CNIC Headquarters (HQ) connected with MVP Project, a civilian prevention SME, in an effort to develop an evidence-based BI strategy which is now being utilized by the SARC's. SARC's continue to successfully create alliances at the installation level in collaboration with Navy and DoD SAPR stakeholders as well as community coalitions and networks working to prevent sexual assault and/or sexual violence. These collaborative efforts also include Navy programs such as the Family Advocacy Program (FAP), Work and Family Life programs, Ombudsman Assemblies, Family Readiness Groups and Clinical counseling service providers. SARC's strengthened collaborative efforts with CSADD Chapter members who are proving beneficial in fostering prevention-related efforts. SARC's have persisted in networking with local Sexual Assault Response Teams (SART's) and other community prevention committees as well.

- Regions evaluate the effectiveness of the SARC's' response to sexual assaults, coordinate programming efforts, and ensure that victim services are streamlined and addressing victims' needs. Additionally, some Regional Commanders hosted experts to include Catharsis Productions "Sex Signals" and "After Burner" performances as well as Steve Thompson and the “No Zebras, No Excuses”, performance. All regions report positive results in these collaborations and initiatives.

- Monthly meetings titled, “Kitsap Special Assault” are held onboard Naval Base Kitsap, in which military and civilian SAPR VAs, civilian prosecutors, civilian law enforcement, NCIS, Child Protective Service (CPS), Adult Protective Service, juvenile justice, corrections, probation, and tribal personnel meet to discuss challenging cases, changes in policies, legislative changes, and strengthening relationships. In addition, participants discuss lessons learned, opportunities for increased collaboration, and areas for growth.
- Naval Air Station Lemoore Installation SAPR Team engaged in several new partnerships which resulted in increased knowledge and an overall comprehensive prevention approach that is applicable for the DoD Community. They include Central Valley Against Human Trafficking Task Force, Federal Bureau of Investigation’s (FBI) Victim Specialist in Fresno County, the Family Support Center Advocacy unit of Tulare County and the local Sexual Violence Advocacy Group.
- CNRMW collaborated with the local Military Sexual Trauma (MST) Coordinator and the local Veteran’s Affairs hospital to coordinate services for members affected by sexual assault that transitioned out of the military.
- COs within the NETC domain participated in monthly strategic SAPR meetings with other area leadership. This communication and synergy promote efforts for the COs to work with external partners to develop sustained plans based on the advice of experts in the fields of victim advocacy and law enforcement. These meetings have fostered open communication between base SARCs, Base COs and tenant commands and local law enforcement regarding the necessary situational awareness with regards to preventing sexual assault cases. Quarterly SACMGs also provide a forum for sharing lessons learned and available resources on base and within respective communities. Experts, local organizations, and other federal partners have been brought into command efforts to reduce and eliminate sexual assault cases.

1.9 Describe your efforts to establish and implement policies that prevent individuals convicted of a Federal or State offense of rape, sexual abuse, sexual assault, incest, or other sexual offenses, from being provided a waiver for commissioning or enlistment in the Armed Forces.

U.S. Navy

Per Commander, Navy Recruiting Command Instruction (CNRCINST) 1130.8J, Volume II, Chapter 5, Article 010104, application for enlistment or affiliation shall be rejected (no waivers authorized) from any individual who is required by any state or federal court, statute, or administrative regulation, to register as a sex offender or has been convicted of rape, sexual abuse, sexual assault, incest, carnal knowledge, forcible sodomy, sodomy of a minor, prostitution involving a minor, indecent assault, assault with intent to commit rape, assault with intent to commit sodomy, indecent act with a minor, indecent language with a minor, kidnapping of a minor (by a person not a parent), pornography involving a minor, attempt to commit any of the foregoing, conspiracy to commit any of the foregoing, any other sexual offense, or solicitation to commit any of the foregoing. This policy has been in effect since 2003.

1.10 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to delivering consistent and effective prevention methods and programs, including how these efforts will help your Service plan, resource, and make progress in your SAPR program.

U.S. Navy

OPNAV N17 has requested programming for three full-time military billets to support SAPR work and provide much needed continuity and support to Navy's SAPR Program. OPNAV N17 is working to identify SAPR-related expenses across the Navy by use of unique identifiers in order to ascertain the total cost of the Navy SAPR program. We are working to ascertain the associated travel costs as SAPR related travel increases throughout the Fleet.

Training. Navy will continue to provide a wide range of enhanced training programs based on the standardized SAPR core competencies and using audience-focused, interactive, and adult learning methods. BI will remain a focus throughout the training program. Specific examples of training are:

- Navy Education and Training Command (NETC). In FY14, CPPD will develop both a standardized command indoctrination product; formalize the programmatic elements of BI to improve the efficiency of instructors at training locations; develop a standardized pre- and post-deployment series of products; and plan for the development, beginning FY15, of an end-to-end video diary project including a full system review of the SAPR program from time of incident report to adjudication and disposition.
- NETC as a whole will continually assess Command Leadership School (CLS) SAPR training for consistency and improvement. This includes actively engaging All Hands to practice prevention before sexual assaults take place, creating/fostering a climate with Sailors where reporting sexual assaults becomes instinctive, and reinforces the fact that the Command will act accordingly should a sexual assault or related incidents occur.
- CHC requested the design, development, and delivery of the FY14 Chaplain Professional Development Training Course themed, "Pastoral Care in Cases of Military Sexual Assault." The course will provide the essential knowledge, skills, and abilities to develop core competencies for chaplains and Religious Program Specialists to provide effective ministry and care to victims of Military Sexual Assault. In addition to caregiving competencies, the course includes an overview of the physiological and psychological impact of sexual trauma and a synopsis of the military justice process in circumstances of sexual assault.
- BUMED is currently undertaking the following:

- Revision of healthcare personnel first responder training and incorporating bystander training into command indoctrination.
- Coordination with the Fleet, Systems Commands (SYSCOMS), and Installations to align sexual assault data throughout the Navy to better understand sexual assault data. This will help to identify trends by locality as well as share best practices in training, administrative requirements, and resources.
- Revision of training vignettes that focuses on the continuum of harm, and help staff members identify and stop behaviors that may lead to sexual assault. BUMED is also revising first responder training for healthcare personnel.
- PACFLT initiatives are as follows:
  - TYCOM-led PCO/PXO Training (a Commander, Naval Surface Forces Pacific (COMNAVSURFPAC) Best Practice), Workshop messages from previous trainings will help to establish a strong prevention foundation that will ultimately reinforce the Navy's culture and core values. Participant's critiques will serve as tools for informing the effectiveness of presentations and for ensuring optimal program management.
  - Command Leadership SAPR briefings for the command triad and deck-plate leadership will include key note speakers and experts on the sexual assault. Additionally, annual SAPR non-computer-based (live) GMT Training will continue to be focused on a multi-level approach to prevention across command leadership levels utilizing subject matter experts in program/policy compliance, substance abuse prevention as it relates to SAPR.
  - Development of an "outside the box" training plan in order to not only provide required training topics, but to focus on the positive side of being an active by-stander. This uses the premise that service members join the Navy due to a desire to stand up for and protect others.
- USFF initiatives are as follows:
  - Continue focus, high quality Fleet workshop delivery in FY14. The agenda will continue to focus on prevention with expectations for leadership, personal behavior, Navy Core values, and our Navy Ethos while aligned with Navy's overall theme of respect.
  - Development of metrics for measures of effectiveness to ensure our training and communications are having a long-term desired effect in changing our culture.
  - Utilized Mr. Mike Domitrz of the Date Safe Project's "Can I Kiss You" at the All Hands sessions during all FY13 USFF SAPR workshops to focus on BI and to encompass the Navy's theme this year.
- Region leadership will undertake the following:
  - Continue to work with commands to institute the Navy BI Model, creating an environment where Sailors will effectively step-up and speak-up to challenge and reduce sexual assault incidents.
  - Implement focused social media outreach programs including at training events.
  - Navy Region Northwest and the USS JOHN C STENNIS are working with the University of Washington (Seattle) and Olympic Community College (Bremerton) officials regarding their sexual assault programs targeting similar demographics.

2. LOE 2—Investigation—The objective of investigation is to “achieve high competence in the investigation of sexual assault.”

2.1 Summarize your Service or Component’s efforts to achieve the Investigation End state: “investigative resources yield timely and accurate results.”

All allegations of sexual assault (from penetration to contact offenses) are referred to Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) for investigation. Seamless JAG coordination with NCIS is essential, and over the past year two NCIS Sexual Assault Task Forces conducted a pilot program with JAG Corps prosecutors to ensure early collaboration and ongoing multidisciplinary review of cases at the senior trial counsel and supervisory special agent level.

Each task force consisted of a small group of special agents assigned to sexual assault allegation investigations; the task forces meet weekly to review case progression, and monthly with the senior trial counsel for the region and installation SARCs. This multidisciplinary approach allows investigators, prosecutors, and sexual assault prevention and response personnel to troubleshoot sexual assault investigations, prosecution, and victim care issues as they arise. It also promotes early cooperation between stakeholders to improve the quality of practice and serves as the model for our special victim capability. The program quickly expanded and is now known as the Adult Sexual Assault Program (ASAP). The program is employed in other Navy geographic regions and fleet concentration areas (FCAs), tailored to the size and scope of each region’s area of responsibility.

Navy established dedicated NCIS agent-teams in Norfolk, Virginia; San Diego, California; Bangor, Washington; and Okinawa, Japan that exclusively handle adult sexual assault investigations. NCIS expanded this model during FY13 to Yokosuka, Japan. Expansion for Hawaii and Mayport, Florida are forthcoming.

To improve the overall quality of Navy court-martial litigation, the JAG Corps established the Military Justice Litigation Career Track (MJLCT) in 2007. The JAG Corps continues to select Military Justice Litigation Qualified (MJLQ) judge advocates to lead trial and defense departments at Region Legal Service Offices and Defense Service Offices, which provide Navy trial and defense counsel, respectively. These officers provide proven experience in the courtroom, personally conducting, adjudicating, or overseeing litigation in sexual assault and other complex cases. The MJLCT program leverages trial counsel, defense counsel, and judicial experience to enhance the effectiveness of complex court-martial practice.

We also continued to implement the SECDEF-directed policy (of 20 Apr 12) that increased the seniority of commanders authorized to decide the initial disposition of certain sexual assault cases (Article 120, Rape and Sexual Assault, Article 125, Forcible Sodomy, and Article 80, Attempts to commit those offenses) and required that commanders consult judge advocates in making disposition decisions.

As a matter of practice for several years, and even prior to SECDEF direction on 14 August 2013 that judge advocates serve as Article 32 Investigating Officers (IOs) for sexual assault cases, judge advocates have served as IOs for all Navy Article 32 pretrial investigations, not just those with sexual assault charges. The Navy fully implemented the SECDEF's requirement in policy through a change to the Manual of the Judge Advocate General (JAGMAN), promulgated by ALNAV 080/13.

Navy measures how it performs in terms of victim support. To do so, we measure metrics such as the timeline from report to investigation completion and adjudication to ensure system responsiveness. NCIS conducts an independent, thorough and professional investigation of every unrestricted report of sexual assault. They have enhanced their capability through specialized training for complex-crimes at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, development of an agent-team approach, doubling their cadre of agents to provide a surge capability, and by early collaboration with trial counsel. Although this timeline does not include the time required to complete evidence analysis and prosecution, shorter periods taken to conduct investigations, 300 days down to an average of 80 days, markedly impacted the overall time it took between a victim reporting the crime until the final adjudication.

All unrestricted reports of sexual assault, regardless of severity, within Navy are fully investigated by the NCIS and, in the most egregious cases involving rape, forcible sodomy, sexual assault, and attempts thereof, are reviewed for disposition by an O-6 or above special court-martial convening authority commander with disposition authority for sexual assault cases. Victims who desire to make an unrestricted report are encouraged to report sexual assaults to a SARC or SAPR VA, medical personnel, command leadership, judge advocate, base police, master-at-arms, NCIS or civilian law enforcement as soon as possible after the incident. The decision to make a restricted or unrestricted report rests with the victim; a victim can make a restricted report and later change to an unrestricted report. Once a victim files an unrestricted report, investigation and reporting requirements are mandated.

Victim studies and surveys indicate an excessively long investigative/judicial process adversely impacts victims. To lessen this impact, NCIS initiated an operational shift wherein teams of NCIS personnel have been dedicated to investigate reports of adult sexual assault in an effort to reduce the length of investigations. Upon receipt of a sexual assault report, NCIS personnel employ a team surge response to complete investigative activity expeditiously; resulting in a quicker delivery of the investigative package to the Convening Authority. The NCIS initiative includes early engagement with legal and victim advocacy personnel. These NCIS surge teams are located in the large Fleet concentration areas where the volume of sexual assault reports is the greatest; however, NCIS maintains a surge capability at our smaller or remote NCIS offices. As a result of the team approach, NCIS field offices are experiencing a significant improvement in timeliness for completion of investigative leads or steps within NCIS control. Current data indicates a significant improvement in the duration of these investigations. NCIS will continue to monitor the timeliness of our investigations as a measure of effectiveness in combating sexual assaults in the military.

All 24/7 Navy medical treatment facilities (MTFs) now have Sexual Assault Forensic Examination (SAFE) capability, and all Navy ships have a SAFE trained medical provider assigned. The availability of SAFEs has been increased to facilitate evidence collection and support services for the victims who desire them. SAFE kits processed through United States Army Criminal Investigation Laboratory (USACIL) have significantly faster processing times- 70-78 days average versus 150 days in civilian labs.

U.S. Navy

Navy has executed the establishment of a Special Victim Capability (SVC), as defined by Section 573 of the FY13 NDAA, and has worked diligently to cohesively integrate the professionals involved in (1) investigating and prosecuting allegations of child abuse, serious domestic violence, or sexual offenses; and, (2) providing support for the victims of such offenses. Trial counsel, NCIS investigators, credentialed SARCs and SAPR VAs, and paralegals form the core of the Navy's Special Victim Capability. The Navy and Marine Corps special victims counsel programs provide additional support. This multi-disciplinary approach at multiple organizational levels promotes early cooperation between stakeholders to optimize case development and management. Navy implementation efforts and plan include the following:

The Investigation, Prosecution, and/or Final Disposition of SVC Cases

- In support of the SVC mandate, NCIS created the Adult Sexual Assault Program (ASAP) approach to provide distinct and recognizable groups of specially trained NCIS special agents to investigate SVC related offenses. It also includes early engagement with legal and victim advocacy personnel. ASAP is an initiative in which teams of NCIS special agents and personnel are dedicated to investigate reports of adult sexual assault. NCIS ASAP teams or Task Forces meet monthly with the Senior Trial Counsel (STC) and installation SARCs to collaborate and troubleshoot sexual assault investigations, prosecution, and victim care issues as they arise.
- NCIS created the ASAP as one prong of a two-pronged approach to providing distinct and recognizable groups of personnel to investigate SVC related offenses. The ASAP initiative is an operational shift in which teams of NCIS special agents are dedicated to investigate reports of adult sexual assault. Upon receipt of a sexual assault report, ASAP personnel will employ a team surge response to complete investigative activity in a timely manner; resulting in quicker delivery of the investigative package to the Convening Authority. All NCIS special agents assigned to an ASAP Team have completed the Criminal Investigator Training Program (CITP) and Special Agent Basic Training Program at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC). Investigators and prosecutors from the USN, USMC and USA have the option to attend the course at either FLETC or Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri since the curriculum is similar and the instructors are the same. ASAP Teams are located in the large Fleet concentration areas where reports of sexual assaults are highest.

- The second prong of NCIS' response to the DoD SVC initiative is the development of a cadre of investigators skilled in conducting serious domestic violence and child abuse investigations. The NCIS version of the Special Victim Unit Investigations Course (SVUIC) is titled the Advanced Adult Sexual Violence Training Program (AASVTP). NCIS personnel responsible for investigating domestic violence or child abuse offenses must attend the NCIS AFSVTP at the FLETC. The AFSVTP, a two-week advanced course focused on domestic violence and child abuse collaboratively created by NCIS and Army Criminal Investigation Command (CID). The AASVTP course curriculum satisfies the requirements outlined in the DoD Instructions. Experts from within and without the DoD instruct students on victim and offender dynamics, domestic violence and child abuse injuries, risk assessments, stalking, and other relevant topics. Within the AASVTP, students receive advanced training on victim and offender dynamics as well as interview techniques designed for trauma survivors. Students conduct case reviews and "table top" exercises facilitated by nationally recognized experts and military senior trial counselors. Students must complete a comprehensive examination at the conclusion of the course. In addition to the AFSVTP, these investigators attend the Trial Component Training Program (TCTP).
- Training has also been developed for NCIS ASAP members in the form of the 1-day Trial Component Training Program (TCTP), a joint learning environment wherein investigators and prosecutors discuss topics such as trial preparation, courtroom testimony, and investigative tips designed to enhance the successful prosecution of a case at trial. TCTP is held locally and delivered by the regional Senior Trial Counsel. Through the joint training environment, investigators and prosecutors enhance their working relationship while working toward a more refined investigation and trial.
- Navy prosecutors, including all STC attended the Army two-week Special Victims Unit Investigations Course (SVUIC) along with investigators to better understand and integrate the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault cases. Navy Trial Counsel Assistance Program (TCAP) personnel also regularly taught at the course.

Judge Advocate Training

- Navy litigation training is overseen by the Litigation Training Coordination Counsel (LTCC), chaired and led by the Director of the Office of the Judge Advocate General (OJAG) Criminal Law Division (Code 20).
- The LTCC identifies and centralizes military justice litigation and trial advocacy training for both the prosecution and defense bars.

- LTTC meets quarterly and the chair closely coordinates with the Naval Justice School to review and improve existing curricula, as well as to design and develop new curricula responsive to the changing landscape of military justice.
- The LTCC provides a macro-level comprehensive review of the litigation training pipeline to ensure training is available at the appropriate stages of a judge advocate's career, to include training for U.S. Marine Corps and Coast Guard judge advocates executed by the Naval Justice School.
- At the beginning of their careers, judge advocates must complete special Professional Development Standards (PDS), checklists of tasks and skills that must be demonstrated prior to accretion of greater responsibility. Those judge advocates who exhibit both an aptitude and a desire to further specialize in litigation may apply for inclusion in the Navy's Military Justice Litigation Career Track (MJLCT).
- The JAG Corps established the MJLCT in 2007 to identify, develop, and retain those judge advocates who demonstrate significant military justice knowledge, litigation, and trial advocacy skills, while providing a structure for developing and maintaining a cadre of judge advocates who specialize in court-martial litigation. This community of military justice litigators forms the nucleus for reach-back capability for trial practitioners and SJAs worldwide, while providing advanced leadership opportunities for seasoned prosecutors. Career track judge advocates are board-selected and approved by the Judge Advocate General of the Navy.
- Once selected, MJLCT officers will spend the majority of their careers in litigation-related billets as trial counsel, defense counsel and military judges. In the course of their career, a MJLCT officer will advance from Specialist I to Specialist II to Expert. Failure to advance through these stages results in the officer exiting the track.
- Most MJLCT officers also receive an advanced law degree (a Masters of Law or LL.M.) in trial advocacy or litigation from a civilian institution. These officers are then required to complete a follow-on tour in a courtroom intensive billet with leadership requirements.
- Finally, the Trial Counsel Assistance Program (TCAP) provides on scene and online training to trial counsel in a variety of specialized areas and then monitors effective completion of this training to ensure world-wide capability in a variety of court-martial skills.

Specially Trained Trial Counsel

- The Navy has an experienced cadre of highly-trained judge advocates, litigation specialists, and military justice experts serving in litigation-intensive billets. This includes the nine regional Senior Trial Counsel (STC), who prosecute complex cases while supervising, mentoring, and training junior trial counsel.
- The Navy also hired a former civilian prosecutor as a highly qualified expert (HQE) to join TCAP's highly qualified GS civilian former prosecutor to assist trial counsel in all aspects of case preparation. Their assistance includes motion drafting, expert witness preparation, devising trial strategy, assisting with post trial matters, and providing advice concerning professional responsibility issues.

- In SVC cases, HQEs and the civilian GS attorney play a key role in enhancing information flow and knowledge sharing, promoting consolidation of Government resources and collaboration between investigators and trial counsel located worldwide. In addition, the Navy's newly hired headquarters HQE with significant civilian prosecution experience to develop specialized training for SVC cases completed her first year in the position.
- TCAP personnel and HQEs conduct on-site training and field assist visits as needed, hold monthly distance learning training online on a variety of topics, and participate as instructors at Naval Justice School training in trial advocacy, military justice management, and criminal law. They conduct training for trial counsel at every level of experience and expertise to educate and improve counsel judgment and performance. This training includes concentration on every aspect of case preparation, including any necessary supplementary investigation, case management, trial advocacy, and post-trial responsibilities.
- In the prosecution of special victim crimes, the trial counsel capability rests in the STC and in TCAP, which provides significant reach-back assistance and details trial counsel for many special victim cases.
- TCAP conducts annual Targeted Mobile Training, site visits with flexible training sections on special victims crimes and process inspection; live Defense Connect Online (DCO) training, interactive web-based training sponsored by TCAP and conducted by subject matter experts; Archived Online Training, including web-based recordings of previous trainings that can be accessed as needed as part of local training plans; and Mobile Training Teams, with on-site training sessions conducted in coordination with NCIS and Navy and Marine Corps TCAP that focus on complex cases including special victims crimes.
- Within each prosecution office, the senior prosecutor regularly evaluates the skills and experience of individual trial counsel in order to determine the detailing of new cases and additional training requirements.
- All STC and all uniformed TCAP personnel are members of the MJLCT and attend many specialized courses. Five of nine STC have received their LL.M. in litigation or trial advocacy from a civilian law school. All STC, all TCAP personnel and a majority of trial counsel successfully completed the Army Special Victims Unit Investigations Course, which also includes instruction on exploring the neurobiology of sexual trauma and focusing on investigative techniques unique to these cases.
- All STC and a large majority of trial counsel attended Prosecuting Alcohol Facilitated Sexual Assaults (PAFSA) and all prosecution offices will have completed a nine-hour online course of lectures on special victim offenses by the end of January 2014.
- Annually, each prosecution office is inspected by TCAP to ensure compliance with instructions, emphasize new developments, and identify best practices. TCAP receives weekly updates of nearly all felony-level investigations and courts-martial, including all special victim offenses, and engages offices in proactive interactions on the development of those cases.

Special Victims Capability Course

- In September of 2013, OJAG Code 20 offered the first Special Victims Capability Course of its kind which was a multi-disciplinary course integrating training for Legalmen (LN), victim advocates, and judge advocates.
- The goal of the course was to improve and enhance victim care, victim support, prosecution support, and provide a more comprehensive and standardized response to allegations of child abuse, serious domestic violence, and sexual assault offenses.
- The training focused on giving the attendees a better understanding of the dynamics of special victim crimes, working with victims, and to increasing collaboration of effort within the military justice system.

Paralegal Support

- Navy paralegals, or LN, possess knowledge and expertise regarding military and civilian legal systems and substantive and procedural law, which qualify them to provide the broad variety of legal support under the supervision of an attorney. LN receive wide-ranging training in military justice, court-martial procedures, legal assistance, and administrative, civil, operational, and procedural law. The course includes classroom instruction and practical application. Once trained, LN may perform a diverse array of military justice duties including preparation of records and hearings, investigations, courts-martial and courts of inquiry, processing appeals, and the coordination of non-judicial punishment hearings. LN may act as trial paralegals for SVC prosecution teams.
- The Naval Justice School based in Newport, Rhode Island, with additional command detachments in Virginia and California, provides extensive training for enlisted personnel performing legal duties. The LN Accession Course, for example, is an 11-week course which offers intensive paralegal training to Sailors selected for the LN rating. Select graduates from the Legal Services Specialist Course receive additional training in the preparation of verbatim records of trial.

VWAP Personnel

- The Navy's VWAP is governed by OPNAVINST 5800.7A and provides for a two-tiered approach. Oversight of the program is conducted locally by Victim Witness Liaison Officers (VWLO) who are appointed by the Region Commander or Type Commander. They provide supervision and oversight of the VWAP in their area of responsibility. This individual, VWLO, works in the Region Legal Service Office to provide legal support to the Region/Type Commander and either is a SJA, civilian attorney, or paralegal with legal training/experience with VWAP in the grade of GS-9 or above.
- All commands are required to appoint, in writing, a Victim Witness Assistance Program Coordinator (VWAC). This individual must be an E-5 (Noncommissioned Officer) or above or a civilian equivalent, but may not be a Chaplain. Navy VWACs are required to distribute the DD Form 2701, "Initial Information for Victims and Witnesses of Crimes," to all crime victims within their command.

- Additionally, NCIS agents and all trial counsel are educated in the VWAP as they play a role in advising victims and witnesses of their rights. NCIS provides initial notification and information, while trial counsel are responsible for advising victims at key milestones throughout the court-martial process.

Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs)

- The Navy hired more than 66 credentialed sexual assault prevention and response coordinators who work with specially-trained NCIS investigators and JAG Corps trial counsel to improve and enhance victim care, confidence, and participation in unrestricted reports of sexual assault.
- The Navy requires SARCs to receive 80 hours of National Advocate Credentialing Program (NACP) approved training (40 hours of online SARC training and 40 hours of in-person SAPR VA training provided by a SARC). SARC training includes training on how to supervise staff, case management, trainer skill building, Sexual Assault Case Management Group (SACMG) facilitation, SAPR Command Personnel cross training (SAPR Point of Contact, SAPR Data Collection Coordinator (DCC), SAPR Command Liaison), and other sexual assault topics. All SARCs are certified through the Defense-Sexual Assault Advocate Certification Program (D-SAACP) prior to providing direct services to sexual assault victims. Every two years, SARCs are required to recertify with D-SAACP by completing a minimum of 32 hours of approved continuing education (including two hours of mandatory ethics training).
- Navy annual SARC Training exceeds the minimum D-SAACP requirements for continuing education. SARCs received a total of 40 hours of in-person training including Special Victims' Capabilities, SAPR program updates, Mock SACMG, and Victims' Legal Counsel.

Civilian and Uniformed SAPR Victim Advocates (SAPR VAs)

- The Navy hired 66 full-time professional, credentialed victim advocates to augment the over 4,000 Unit SAPR VAs. They work with specially-trained NCIS investigators and JAG Corps trial counsel to improve and enhance victim care, confidence, and participation.
- SAPR VAs receive 40 hours of NACP-approved initial SAPR VA training as required by DoD. Training topics include: dynamics and effects of sexual assault, sexual assault in the military, prevention strategies, ethics, trauma informed care, cultural competency, confidentiality policy, SARC and SAPR VA roles and responsibilities, crisis intervention, self-care, the military and civilian judicial process, the medical process, resources and referrals, and victims' rights. SAPR VAs are certified through D-SAACP prior to providing direct services to sexual assault victims and are required to recertify every two years.

Victims' Legal Counsel (VLC). Although not a statutory component of SVC, the Navy established a Victims' Legal Counsel Program (VLCP) to provide trained and certified military counsel to help victims understand the investigation and military justice processes, advocate for the victims' rights and interests, and help victims obtain access to other support services. The legal support VLC provide to victims will complement and augment the support provided by VAs and SARCs.

2.3 Describe your efforts to enhance training and/or plans for enhanced training for investigators of sexual violence. Include your measures of effectiveness or means by which you are measuring enhancements.

U.S. Navy

SECNAVINST 1752.4B provides comprehensive guidance on SAPR training requirements for all Department of Navy personnel. To standardize services throughout the DoD, all DON sexual assault responders receive the same baseline training. First responders include SARCs, SAPR VAs, healthcare personnel, DON law enforcement, NCIS, judge advocates, chaplains, firefighters and emergency medical technicians.

With regard to responding patrol officers, specialized law enforcement personnel training includes:

- How to respond in accordance with the SAPR program, specifically how to notify the command, SARC, and SAPR VA and how to work with SAPR VAs;
- How to work with sexual assault victims, to include the effects of trauma on sexual assault victims;
- Ensuring victims are informed of and accorded their rights by contacting the appropriate Victim Witness Assistance Program personnel;
- Taking into consideration other victim's safety concerns and medical needs;
- Reviewing IG policy and applicable Service guidance regarding the legal transfer of the SAFE Kit and the retention of the DD Form 2911 or reports from civilian SAFEs in archived files; and
- Discussion of related sex offender issues.

NCIS agents selected to conduct special victim investigations receive specialized training, to include advanced family and sexual violence training and/or advanced adult special victims training programs. The TCTP, a joint specialized course taught by senior prosecutors focusing on case presentation in court, is also offered to these agents. NCIS has established ASAP teams in key areas that are designed to be a nucleus for investigative capabilities and maintain ongoing relations with other SVC services.

DoD Instructions 6495.02 and 5505.18 provide specific training requirements for investigators of sexual violence. NCIS has enhanced its advanced training course to reflect the DoD's specific requirements and is pursuing plans for enhancing basic and annual refresher training to include the additional training aspects related to sexual violence investigations. Specifically, NCIS has partnered with USACID to expand the Special Victim Unit Investigations Course (SVUIC) held at Fort Leonard Wood, MO to accommodate NCIS investigators. Investigators and trial counsel from the USN, USMC and USA have the option to attend the course at either FLETC or Fort Leonard Wood since the curriculum is similar and the instructors are the same.

Enhancements to NCIS' basic and refresher training are ongoing. Plans to incorporate interview techniques presented in the advance course are an example of changes occurring within basic training.

Measures of effectiveness, will include at least the following:

- Percentage of SVC cases preferred, compared to overall number of courts-martial preferred in each FY;
- Percentage of special victim offense courts-martial tried by, or under direct supervision of, a specially trained prosecutor;
- Percentage of specially-trained prosecutors and other legal support personnel having received additional and advanced training in SVC topical areas; and
- Victim feedback on the effectiveness of SVC support services and recommendations for possible improvements; feedback mechanisms will be coordinated and standardized within the Military Service so that victims do not have to unnecessarily complete multiple questionnaires.

2.4 Describe your Service's efforts to participate in Defense Enterprise Working Group of Military Criminal Investigation Organizations and Defense Criminal Investigative Services to assess and validate joint investigative technology, best practices, and resource efficiencies benchmarked against external law enforcement agencies.

U.S. Navy

As result of participation in DOD's Working Group of Military Criminal Investigation Organizations and Defense Criminal Investigative Services, specially trained investigators, victim advocates, prosecutors, and paralegals form the core of our special victim capability to respond to incidents of sexual assault within Navy.

NCIS participates in an MCIO working group focused on comparing and sharing sexual assault investigation training at the basic, periodic and advanced levels. Through the working group, the MCIOs are exposed to best practices and techniques included in the various training platforms of the other participating MCIOs. Subsequently, NCIS and USACID collaborated in a joint training project for an advanced sexual assault investigation training course where the curriculum is developed, discussed, and shared. In establishing a joint curriculum, NCIS and USACID assessed best practices of each agency for inclusion in the curriculum and continue to assess the curriculum for areas of improvement.

Further, OSD SAPRO hosted a training summit wherein instructors and subject matter experts representing the MCIOs compared advanced sexual assault investigation training courses to determine best practices and curriculum strategies. The primary result of the summit was the continued evaluation and collaborative efforts regarding advances in victim interviewing and the understanding of the impact trauma has on memory and recall.

2.5 Describe your Military Criminal Investigative Organization's (MCIO) progress on establishment of a Working Group to review initial baseline, periodic refresher, and advanced sexual assault investigation training in order to establish common criteria, measures of effectiveness, and leverage training resources and expertise. If already in progress or completed, briefly describe recommendations, results, and ongoing efforts.

In September 2011, the DoD IG initiated a project to determine if the MCIOs sexual assault investigation training conforms to DoD policy and standards as well as commonly accepted best practices. The DoD IG determined all of the MCIO's training was satisfactory. Since the conclusion of the DoD IG project, representatives from NCIS, USACID, and AFOSI formed a working group to compare and develop training. The effectiveness of the working group has been enhanced due to the co-location of the three agencies within the Russell-Knox Building, Quantico, Virginia. As mentioned in 2.3, NCIS and USACID have a training relationship in which investigators from both agencies attend the same advanced training course. The training partnership between NCIS and USACID is indicative of established common criteria, measure of effectiveness and leveraging of resources and expertise between agencies.

As part of the Navy's continuing effort to prevent sexual assaults and promote essential climate changes within the force, a SAPR Task Force (SAPR TF) was established under the command of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Manpower, Personnel, Training and Education (DCNO) (MPTE) (N1) to facilitate delivery of targeted sexual assault prevention training to all active and reserve personnel. Navy uses metrics such as the timeline from report to investigation completion to adjudication to ensure system responsiveness.

2.6 Describe and provide documentation of your Service or Component's implementation of policy for retention of sexual assault documentation (e.g. DD Forms 2910 and 2911). Documentation should be included as an appendix.

U.S. Navy

SECNAVINST 1752.4B documents the policy for retention of sexual assault documentation. (enclosure (1) in Appendix A)

- CNIC HQ executed records retention requirements IAW policy as follows:
  - Electronic copies of the DD Form 2910s for unrestricted reports of sexual assault are uploaded to DSAID for retention for 50 years.
  - Hard copies of the DD Form 2910s for restricted reports of sexual assault are maintained under double-lock filing for five years, unless victim requests DD Form 2910 be retained for 50 years.
- Procedures for evidence collection in restricted and unrestricted sexual assaults are the same. Designated DoD law enforcement agency or MCIO representatives are trained and capable of collecting and preserving evidence in restricted reports prior to assuming custody of the evidence using established chain of custody procedures.

- NCIS agents received SAFE Kits from the healthcare provider, label, and store such evidence in unrestricted cases.
- According to established chain of custody procedures, the SARC labels the SAFE Kit from restricted reports of sexual assault with non-identifying information, a Restricted report Control Number (RRCN), prior to the evidence processing and storage at the NCIS Consolidated Evidence Facility or applicable Service law enforcement agency. NCIS procedures for documenting, maintaining, and storing the evidence are thereafter followed.
- The NCIS Consolidated Evidence Facility representatives are trained and capable of collecting and preserving evidence to assume custody of the evidence using established chain of custody procedures, consistent with the guidelines published under the authority and oversight of the DoD IG. Memorandums of Understanding/Agreements (MOUs/MOAs) with off base, non-military facilities for the purpose of providing medical care to eligible victims of sexual assault covered under this policy include instructions for the notification of a SARC (regardless of whether a restricted or unrestricted report of sexual assault is involved), procedures for the receipt of evidence, restricted report labelling procedures, and disposition of evidence by NCIS or the NCIS Consolidated Evidence Facility.
- DoD Instruction 5505.18, "Investigation of Adult Sexual Assault in the Department of Defense", requires all MCIOs retain adult sexual assault investigative reports for a period of 50 years. Prior to DoDI 5505.18, NCIS already employed a 50 year retention policy. Additionally, DoDI 5505.18 requires the inclusion of DD Form 2911, or the civilian equivalent, as part of the archived file. NCIS further ensured agency wide compliance by issuing internal policy informing NCIS personnel of the DoDI 5505.18 requirements involving records retention and inclusion of DD Form 2911. NCIS employs Program Support Assistants (PSA) in the field and within NCISHQ. Both field and HQ PSA's are trained internally on DoD Instructions regulating records retention. Specifically, NCIS PSA's are trained to DoD standards enumerated within NCIS policy chapter "File Retention and Disposal of Closed Investigations, Operations, Sources and Security Clearance Adjudication Cases". The NCISHQ Records Management Division is responsible for the physical retention of NCIS investigative records.
- Though not exclusive to sexual assault cases, pursuant to OPNAVINST 5800.7A, Commander, Naval Legal Service Command maintains data on the number of victims and witnesses who received DD Form 2702, Court-Martial Information for Victims and Witnesses of Crimes; 2703, Post-trial Information for Victims and Witnesses of Crimes, and the number of victims and witnesses who elected to be notified of confine status changes via DD Form 2704.

2.7 Describe your efforts to review and implement policies and procedures that ensure all Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault (and attempts) against adults will be immediately reported to the MCIO, regardless of the severity of the allegation.

U.S. Navy

DODINST 6495.02 (28 March 2013) and SECNAVINST 1752.4 (8 August 2013) directed that all unrestricted reports of sexual assault (and attempts) against adults be immediately reported to the MCIO, regardless of the severity, to include contact offenses. The Navy implemented these procedures as directed.

DODINST 5505.18 (25 January 2013), Investigation of Adult Sexual Assault in the Department of Defense, establishes policy, assigns responsibilities, and provides procedures for the investigation of adult sexual assault within the DoD. Further, it directs that Military Criminal Investigative Organizations (MCIOs) will initiate investigations of all offenses of adult sexual assault of which they become aware that occur within their jurisdiction regardless of the severity of the allegation. NCIS has ensured there is agency wide awareness of the requirements listed in DoDI 5505.18 by issuing internal policy informing NCIS personnel of the specific requirements. As such, NCIS is prepared to receive and respond to all reports of sexual assault, as mandated by DoD Instruction and service specific instructions.

OJAG provides legal review and recommendations to proposed changes to OPNAVINST F3100.6J, which dictates the operational/situational reports (OPREPs/SITREPs) reporting requirements for unrestricted reports of sexual assault. In accordance with this instruction, commands are required to consult judge advocates to ensure that appropriate legal advice is provided and procedural steps followed. OPREP-3 reporting remains the primary tool for tracking MCIO notification within Navy. Notification of MCIO remains an OPREP-3 reporting line item, emphasizing contact prior to release of initial SITREP (within 24 hours of knowledge of incident). These operational messages are subsequently tracked and are followed by mandatory reporting to the First Flag Officer in the COs change of command within 30 days of the report being submitted.

2.8 Describe efforts, policies, and/or programmatic changes undertaken to improve Service member confidence and/or victim participation in the investigative and military justice process, as well as how you are addressing the number of victims declining to participate. Include rate of conversion from Restricted to Unrestricted reporting.

U.S. Navy

In FY13, Navy made significant strides in elevating Sailor trust and confidence in command leadership and understanding the SAPR process, evidenced by an unprecedented increase in sexual assault reporting. Better understanding of what defines a sexual assault, awareness of the multiple avenues to report, trust in the command to take seriously all reports, and confidence that the command will support the victim throughout the process, have all contributed to the increase in reporting. Sailors observe how those who report a sexual assault are treated by Navy. Based on that observation, Sailors will decide what they themselves will do in a similar situation. In FY13, based on what they saw, more Sailors than ever came forward to report incidents, many of which occurred months or even years prior.

Navy has employed and instituted a number of measures to improve service member confidence and/or victim participation in the investigative and military justice process. Our statistics show an increase in incident reporting during FY13, most likely due to increased victim confidence in the reporting, investigative and adjudicative process. NCIS supports the multidisciplinary approach to sexual assault investigations. As a member of a unified team, NCIS provides victims the continuity of care designed to enhance victim participation, as well as, build confidence in the investigative and military justice process among Service members. Specific efforts include early coordination between NCIS and military prosecutors, and early assignment of trial counsel. With the investigator-prosecutor team, victims receive consistent communication regarding the investigation while reducing the possibility of miscommunication or confusion that occurs during the traditional transition or hand-off from investigator to prosecutor. Further, the early formation of the investigator-prosecutor team reduces the overall length of the process. Victim participation and stamina is significantly improved through improved timeliness of the process.

The DEOCS results showed trust in the organization increased to 3.51 in FY13 from 3.47 in FY12 (scale of 5.0). Positive responses to questions about "leadership responding appropriately to reports of sexual assault" and "promoting a climate free of sexual assault" increased in FY13 to 4.39 from 4.36 in FY12 (scale of 5.0). Concerns of privacy and confidentiality violations have diminished appreciably between FY12 and FY13, down 18 percentage points.

During FY13, our rate of conversion from restricted to unrestricted was 16% (49) as compared to 19% (47) in FY12. We will continue to build trust in the SAPR program, and encourage more victims to report. Our efforts include:

- Awareness and Prevention Training
  - Service members receive SAPR training at multiple times throughout their service in their Navy careers. Training begins within the first two weeks of boot camp or other accession programs such as Officer Candidate School, and continues annually thereafter.
  - Sexual Assault Awareness Month and SAPR stand-down activities enable us to target demographics within the force and assure continuous messaging of the issue, which sends the message to Sailors across the Fleet that sexual assault is not tolerated within the Navy.
  - SAPR training has also been incorporated and held at the command-level, through specialized training such as BI training. This supplemental training allows us to target demographics within the force and ensure continuous messaging.

- SAPR training for the Fleet (SAPR-F) was developed for all Sailors in the grade of E-6 and below with a focus on BI, responsible decision-making, core values, and responsible use of alcohol. The intent of this training is to empower Sailors to recognize and assume personal responsibility to stop inappropriate behavior.
  - SAPR training for leaders in the Fleet (SAPR-L) was developed for all senior leadership in the grade of E-7 and above. SAPR-L training provided command leadership triads (Commanding Officer/Officer in Charge, Executive Officer/Assistant Officer in Charge and Command Master Chief/Chief of the Boat/Senior Enlisted) the skills to promote a culture of change through interactive video and facilitated face-to-face (F2F) discussion with command E-7 and above.
  - SAPR training is integrated into critical leadership training curricula including those of those classes taught at our SEA and CLS, as well as the Senior Officer Course. This comprehensive approach to training has allowed us to ensure continuous messaging and to tailor training to various audiences from the at-risk demographic to leadership who are accountable for prevention and response.
  - The Navy also developed mandatory SAPR training for all civilian employees (SAPR-C) entitled “Sexual Assault Prevention: One Team, One Fight.” The training addresses BI, reporting options and resources for civilian employees, and the impact of sexual assault on victims, commands and mission accomplishment.
- Victim Reporting and Support
    - The Navy hired 66 additional credentialed SARCs and 66 full-time professional, credentialed SAPR VAs. They work with specially-trained NCIS investigators, and JAG Corps trial counsel, and VLC to improve and enhance victim care, confidence, and participation.
    - There continue to be numerous reporting options available to victims who choose to disclose sexual assault. In the event a victim chooses to make a confidential restricted disclosure/report, an investigation is not initiated and the command is notified that an assault has occurred with no identifying information on the victim or suspect. Victims can make restricted reports to SARCs, SAPR VAs, healthcare personnel, or by contacting the DoD Safe Helpline by telephone or online 24 hours per day, 7 days a week.
    - Victims who wish to make an unrestricted report can use the reporting options listed above, or can file a report with NCIS, or contact base police, masters at arms, shore patrol, local law enforcement, members of the command, judge advocates or command leadership.
    - The Navy also offers victims who make an unrestricted report of sexual assault the option to request an expedited transfer to another command or duty station. Other protection measures available to victims include the issuance of a military protective order against the accused prohibiting further contact with the victim and, in appropriate cases, pretrial confinement of the accused.

- The Navy implemented a VLC program will dedicate 30 judge advocates (29 VLC and one COS) with military justice experience to provide eligible victims of sexual assault with legal support. The primary mission of the VLC Program is to provide legal counsel and, as appropriate, advocacy for victims. Navy VLC help protect victims' rights through the investigative and adjudicative stages of the military justice system. VLC will also assist SARCs and SAPR VAs in the successful execution of their duties. VLC duties will include explaining the investigative and military justice processes; advocating the victim's rights and interests; and, when appropriate, appearing in court on the victim's behalf. The legal support VLC provide to victims will complement and augment the support provided by SAPR VAs and SARCs.
- In FY13, the Navy released and published courts-martial results in the public domain, enabling members of both the military and civilian population to see the disciplinary actions taken by commanders on unrestricted reports of sexual assault that were prosecuted at court-martial.

2.9 Describe your plans for FY14 that pertain to the achievement of high competence in the investigation of sexual assault.

U.S. Navy

Competency is a result of continuing education and advanced training for investigators. In FY14, NCIS intends to increase the availability of training and the rate of agents who attend training. Currently, NCIS is partnered with USN and USMC Trial Counsel Assistance Programs to develop strategies for delivering continuing education to agents and prosecutors while limiting the operational impact. Specific strategies include using webinars and other delivery methods that remove travel costs and lost time in the workplace. Additionally, NCIS is currently partnered with USACID in an advanced sexual assault investigation training course. There are limits to the number of agents that can attend the course; therefore, NCIS is pursuing strategies to increase the rate of agents attending the advanced training.

In FCAs, ASAP Teams, which are composed of dedicated, advanced trained sexual assault NCIS investigators, work in collaboration with SARCs, SAPR VAs, and judge advocates through the investigation and prosecution process in accordance with the Special Victim Capability (SVC) mandated by Congress. NCIS Field Office Europe and Africa implemented a policy requiring collaboration with all Regional and installation SAPR working groups in addition to the required monthly SAPR case management group. Furthermore, within 48 hours of a sexual assault notification, NCIS implements a Sexual Assault Task Force to include RLSO and concerned commands. The goal of this collaborative approach is to enhance the thoroughness and timeliness of investigations and to ensure that all services and support are available and accessible to victims.

In FY14, NCIS will continue to investigate all allegations of sexual assault, to include both penetration and contact offenses. Navy will also continue its practice of using judge advocates to sit as Investigating Officers for Article 32 hearings in order to enhance competence in the investigation of sexual assaults and has formally adopted the requirement in policy. Additionally, Navy will continue to use VLC to ensure victims are aware of their rights and benefits through ongoing training. VLC duties include explaining the investigative and military justice processes, which in many circumstances will encourage participation by victims during the investigatory, pretrial, and trial phases of the process.

VLC personnel will continue to support the efforts of the SARCs and SAPR VAs. These individuals are key to fostering positive working relationships with other stakeholders to ensure victims and witnesses have a high level of confidence and feel supported throughout the investigative process.

Navy's VLC Program is expected to drive increased reporting, an increased conversion rate of restricted reports of sexual assault to unrestricted reports, and more victims staying in the investigative and adjudicative process through conclusion. The VLC will also be able to liaise with the victim's command, investigators and trial counsel, attend interviews and court proceedings, and represent victims at court proceedings where the victim has standing and interests.

3. LOE 3—Accountability—The objective of accountability is to “achieve high competence in holding offenders appropriately accountable.”

3.1 Summarize your Service or Component's efforts to achieve the Accountability End state: “perpetrators are held appropriately accountable.”

U.S. Navy

Navy is dedicated to ensuring sexual assault investigations proceed in a timely manner and offenders are held appropriately accountable for their actions. Specific actions being undertaken to achieve this goal include:

- The execution of deliberate and engaged management provides strong leadership-driven prevention and response programs, as well as law enforcement, investigative, and criminal justice policies and procedures that address victim safety and, ultimately, hold assailants accountable for their actions as appropriate.
- In order to achieve the desired accountability end state, reports of sexual assaults must be immediately investigated. These continued efforts are being constantly implemented to identify what crimes have been committed, to identify who has been victimized, and who may be held accountable for the crime.
- In this regard, the Navy must ensure COs understand the full range of administrative and disciplinary actions that are available to address inappropriate behavior. In the case of military personnel, these include informal counseling, comments in fitness reports and evaluations, administrative separation, and punitive measures under the UCMJ. In the case of civilians, options include informal counseling, and disciplinary action including removal from the Federal Service.

- Every effort will be made within the confines of our statutes and regulations to ensure that perpetrators are held appropriately accountable for their actions in accordance with Navy guidelines, policies and procedures currently in place. These efforts include:
  - Investigate all reported unrestricted incidents of sexual assault, ensuring NCIS or another MCIO thoroughly investigated all unrestricted allegations of sexual assault.
  - Increase the availability of SAFEs across Navy.
  - Handle all sexual assault reports with high importance and a sense of urgency.
  - Hold sexual assault offenders accountable as appropriate.
  - Promote command climate where sexual assaults are not tolerated.
  - Ensure SAPR Program information is displayed at commands to include reporting procedures, Points of contact, consequences of perpetrating sexual assault offenses, results of closed investigations, etc.
- The JAG Corps has focused on continuing to grow the pool and enhance the training of litigation specialists to include mentorship by those who lead trial and defense departments in RLSOs and Defense Service Offices (DSOs). Trial and defense counsel attend cutting edge sexual assault training through military and civilian courses.
- Senior leadership and command triads were provided training on changes to UCMJ Article 120 (rape and sexual assault) through SAPR-L training.
- Update policies regarding requirement to report all known (unrestricted) sexual assaults regardless of the duty status of the victim or subject. This goes above and beyond DoD requirement to report incidents that occur only during active service or inactive duty training. Additional Reserve-specific reporting requirements include the duty status of the alleged offender, serving to clarify the ability to prosecute under the UCMJ.
- Inactive duty Reserve Component (RC) Sailors may be retained in an active duty status to receive services and support or participate in the investigative or prosecutorial processes. RC members may also be recalled on active duty for the purpose of court-martial appearances.

3.2 Describe your efforts to enhance training and/or plans for enhanced SAPR training for attorneys and military judges. Include your efforts to monitor training requirements to ensure the optimal number receive enhanced SAPR training and your measures of effectiveness.

U.S. Navy

Specialized JAG training and the introduction of several HQEs have enhanced Navy's ability to professionally and efficiently adjudicate complex sexual assault cases. In FY13, the JAG Corps enhanced training for attorneys and military judges through the following combined efforts.

Naval Justice School

- In FY13, Naval Justice School (NJS) offered DCO webcasts on emerging issues including, Article 32 Investigations Officer Training (to include those dealing with sexual assault cases), sexual assault initial disposition authority (SA-IDA) Training, and the SAPR JAG - Line of Effort focusing on training the judge advocate community (Train-the-Trainer).
- The SAPR JAG Line of Effort training was developed by NJS and OJAG. It was primarily delivered live, with an online option in two train-the-trainer DCO sessions focused on JAG Corps COs, XOs, and Professional Development Officers. Topics included within this training included SAPR lines of effort by the JAG Corps and Navy, UCMJ Article 120, SA-IDA requirements, restricted reporting, expedited transfers, and Military Rules of Evidence related to sexual assault cases. It also covered Victim/Witness Assistance Provider (VWAP) and victims' rights and services.

Navy Trial Departments

- Navy trial departments are divided into nine regions that reflect the regional structure of the Navy installation organization. Each prosecution shop is supervised by a Senior Trial Counsel (STC) (typically O-4 and above) and staffed by core trial counsel and first tour judge advocates who provide supporting attorney work. Each of the nine regional offices maintains a special victims capability, and that capability is developed through a combination of training and experience. Establishing an in-house sexual assault litigation expertise in each of the nine regional STC facilitates supervision and training of the other trial counsel located in that office.
- Training is conducted through NJS and through mobile training efforts. NJS-sponsored, school house litigation training focuses on the long term development of litigators and ensures base-line consistency among trial counsel and defense counsel. Mobile litigation training is sponsored by the Trial Counsel Assistance Program (TCAP). This training is developed annually and is intended to be a flexible and adaptable method to meet emerging needs, including specialized topics related to sexual assault litigation. Mobile training is provided in a variety of ways, specifically, on-site, at each of the nine regional prosecution shops, and online.
- All litigation training focuses on increasing trial and defense counsels' knowledge base, including mastery of pretrial, court-martial, and post-trial procedure; military offenses; witnesses and evidence; sentencing; adverse administrative proceedings; and ethical behavior. Training also focuses on development of litigation and officer-related skills, including leadership, verbal articulation, written communication, prosecutorial vision, perceptiveness, adaptability, and composure.
- All STC and many trial counsel attend the Army's Special Victims Unit Investigations Course (SVUIC), and all trial shops ensure completion of nine-hours of online training in special victims' offenses. Participation in these training efforts is monitored by NJS and TCAP.

Military Judges

- Navy military judges also received SAPR training separate and apart from other members of the judge advocate community. During the judicial certification process, all judges attend judges' school, at which they receive instruction on the rules of evidence and procedure that guide trials, to include trials involving sexual assault allegations. Before reaching the trial or appellate bench, each judge receives advanced instruction in the rules applicable to these cases.
- Each year, to include this past fiscal year, the inter-service trial judiciaries gather for training, which includes training on rules, procedures and the law involved in sexual assault cases. At the appellate level, the judges hold an annual conference that addresses related items. While the topics change from year-to-year, topics related to sexual assault cases have been included every year. In FY13, one of training blocks included training on the new Article 120.

3.3 Describe your Service's efforts to conduct an assessment of DoD Pilot Program for Special Victims Counsel. If an assessment has been completed, explain findings and recommendations.

U.S. Navy

In February 2013, the Joint Service Committee on Military Justice (JSC) was asked to review, among other things, the concept of Special Victim Counsel (SVC) representation. Navy OJAG is a voting member of the JSC. In January 2013, the Air Force initiated a Special Victims Counsel (AFSVC) pilot program. When the JSC review and report were completed in September 2013, the AFSVC Program had been operational for approximately six months. The Air Force evaluated their pilot program by surveying 14% of the victims that had been represented by an AFSVC; no other military justice entities were surveyed. The infancy of the program as well as the Air Force's limited and one dimensional analysis of its program made any meaningful assessment challenging.

In an effort to help assess the AFSVC pilot program and training issues, the Navy sent two judge advocates to the Air Force SVC Courses held at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Alabama in December 2012 and April 2013. This proved invaluable in identifying the challenges and successes of the program, which assisted the Navy in creating its own Victim's Legal Counsel (VLC) Program.

In August 2013, the Navy established the VLC Program. The VLC program consists of a cadre of specially-trained, independent judge advocates who are detailed to provide legal support to eligible victims of sexual assault. The primary mission of the VLC Program is to provide legal counsel and, as appropriate, advocacy for victims. The Navy VLC Program achieved full operational capability in January 2014, an assessment of its effectiveness at its current nascent stage would be premature.

3.4 Describe your efforts to expand the availability, sequencing, and scope of commander's legal courses. Include your measures of effectiveness.

U.S. Navy

The Naval Justice School provides military justice training to Navy and Marine Corps Commanders at the Senior Officer Course. Each block of instruction below covers issues dealing with sexual assault.

Military Justice Training at the Senior Officer Course

- Introduction to Military Justice. This course is not limited to sexual assault, but it provides instruction on key military justice considerations for commanders that are relevant in sexual assault cases to include the following:
  - Overview of the military justice process from investigation to appellate review
  - Mandatory NCIS investigations
  - Courts-martial forums
  - Differences between the military justice and civilian court systems with respect to self-incrimination
  - Search and seizure
  - Grand jury versus Article 32 hearings
  - Speedy trial
  - Sentencing
- Search and Seizure. This course is not limited to sexual assault, but provides instruction on search and seizure issues for commanders that is relevant in sexual assault cases to include elements of a Fourth Amendment search, probable cause searches, non-probable cause searches, and inspections and inventories.
- Self-Incrimination. This course is not limited to sexual assault, but provides instruction on self-incrimination issues for commanders that is relevant in sexual assault cases to include the differences between Article 31b and Miranda rights, custodial interrogations, the exclusionary rule, the voluntariness doctrine, and self-reporting.
- Court-Martial Procedures. This course is not limited to sexual assault, but provides instruction on court-martial procedures for commanders that is relevant in sexual assault cases to include personal and subject matter jurisdiction, reservist jurisdiction, legal hold, double jeopardy, mechanics of convening and referral of charges, types of courts-martial, roles at a court-martial, court-martial members, clemency, and post-trial review.
- Responsibilities of the Convening Authority. This course is not limited to sexual assault, but provides instruction on the responsibilities of a convening authority for commanders that is relevant in sexual assault cases to include the accuser concept, unlawful command influence, apprehension and pre-trial restraint to include the pre-trial confinement review process, speedy trial clock and excludable delay, and pre-trial agreements to include scope of agreements, protections, and suspension versus disapproval of punishment.

- Hazing. This course does not directly address sexual assault, but provides instruction on hazing for commanders that may be relevant to other misconduct related to sexual assault cases. Instruction is provided on the hazing references, definitions, command responsibilities, and practical examples.
- Sexual Assault Initial Disposition Authority. This course provides instruction to commanders on the Navy and Marine Corps SA-IDA withholding policies, collateral misconduct, distinctions among Article 120 offenses, mechanics of withholding and disposition decisions, initial considerations in sexual assault cases, and reporting requirements.
- Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR). This course is primarily taught by an area SARC as a guest instructor. It provides training to commanders on SAPR policy, restricted and unrestricted reporting, SAPR personnel requirements, expedited transfers and SAFE kit/records retention, protected communications, and command responsibilities upon notification of an unrestricted report of sexual assault.

3.5 Describe your efforts to assess the effectiveness of the policy to elevate initial disposition authority to a Special Court Martial Convening Authority in the grade of O-6 or higher. Provide documentation in the appendix. If assessment complete, briefly describe results and recommendations.

U.S. Navy

There was a significant increase in the number of sexual assault cases reported in FY13 as compared to FY12. Whether any of that increase was due to victim confidence in the process as a result of the policy to elevate the initial disposition authority (IDA) to a Special Court-Martial Convening Authority is unknown. Elevating the IDA to the grade of an O-6 level though, does help ensure that IDAs who are dealing with sexual assault matters generally have more experience convening courts-martial and have easier access to staff judge advocates for legal consultation and advice.

Navy is committed to a fair and robust adjudicative process. Navy Victims' Legal Counsel will provide comprehensive support to sexual assault victims throughout the investigative and adjudicative process in the hope that that fewer victims will withdraw from the process. Additionally, OJAG has implemented specialized Sexual Assault training for JAG prosecutors and defense counsel.

Commanders play a critical role in the military justice system. The most serious cases of sexual assault now have initial disposition authority elevated to the O-6 special court-martial convening authority level. All Commanders must consult a JAG prior to making any disposition decision.

3.6 Describe any treatment or rehabilitation programs implemented by your Service or Component for those members who have been convicted of a sexual assault. Include any pertinent referrals such as drug and alcohol counseling, or other types of counseling or intervention.

U.S. Navy

Navy stakeholders (i.e., BUMED, CNIC, Regional commands, chaplains, and NCIS) partnered to support victims and alleged perpetrators as appropriate. Through TRICARE, Service members are eligible to receive medical treatment and counseling services at medical and civilian treatment facilities (as needed).

Sailors and Marines convicted of sex offenses are offered various treatment programs at Naval Consolidated Brigs depending upon the length of their confinement and details of their offense. All sex offenders are required to complete a 10-week Sex Offender Education Course (SOED) to familiarize them with the treatment programs and the legal requirements of being a convicted sex offender. Prisoners with enough time to complete the 24-month Sex Offender Treatment Program (SOTP) are confined for treatment at Naval Consolidated Brig Miramar. Sex Offenders frequently have simultaneous troubles with substance abuse and/or violence, so conjunctive programs are also available and offered as needed: Violent Offender Treatment, Anger Management, Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT), and Drug and Alcohol Dependence Treatment. After care programs include referrals to community based treatment for continuance of care. Prisoners without sufficient time on their sentences to complete the SOTP program are referred to community based programs after their release. Often, participation in these community programs is stipulated as a condition of supervised release.
