- FY 00 through FY 09 data on spouse abuse includes only those incidents involving married individuals. Either the victim or the abuser may have been an active duty service member or the civilian spouse of an active duty service member. In FY 06 and onward, an additional category has been added to capture substantiated incidents involving a person of the opposite sex (1) with whom the victim shares a child in common or (2) is a current or former intimate partner with whom the victim shares or has shared a common domicile. In such cases the victim or the abuser may have been an active duty service member or a civilian.

- Reports represent the number of incidents of abuse; therefore, one or more reports may be submitted on a single victim. This allows for the identification of families in which repeated acts of family violence have occurred.
- The data only reflect child abuse and domestic abuse reported to the DoD FAP. It is not an estimate of the total amount of child abuse and domestic abuse that occurred in military families.
- The data include physical abuse (including acts resulting in no injuries), sexual abuse, emotional abuse (including emotional abuse without any acts of physical or sexual abuse), and neglect.
- In substantiated reports, the abuser may have been an active duty service member, a civilian family member, or (in child abuse incidents) a caregiver outside the family. However, in 95 percent of the substantiated child abuse incidents, the abuser was a parent or other family member.
- This data should not be compared to data from other studies unless:
 - Differences in military and civilian contexts have been addressed,
 - The studies' design and methodologies were similar (e.g., reports to authorities should not be compared to estimates from surveys of the population),
 - The data elements were similar,
 - The demographics from the studies are standardized to the military population, which is much younger and more male than the general civilian population.
- The DoD rates of child abuse have remained relatively constant and are less than half of their counterpart rates in the U.S. civilian population as compiled by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
